3 FEATHERS LEAD TO JAIL

Three stray chicken feathers which revealed under the armpits of Mack Lusper, a Russian laborer, 42, were nestled when Lusper was ordered to "stick 'em up" in the lobby of police headquarters early yesterday morning.

The patrolman was patrolling his beat near Twenty-third and Savier streets, early yesterday morning, when he noticed a man walking west on Savier street in a suspicious manner.

At police headquarters the patrolman commanded Lusper to take off his coat and hold his arms aloft. It was then the incriminating evidence, as exemplified by the Rhode Island bird chicken feathers, was revealed.

Lusper was sent to jail without further parley.
