POINDEXTER FACES TEST

Washington Senator to Have Charge of Naval Appropriation Bill and Bitter Fight Is Likely.

THE OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—After the passage by the senate this afternoon of the rivers and harbors bill, carrying a lump sum appropriation, it was explained western members supported the bill with the understanding that at the extra session another bill will be brought in that will provide for urgent surveys and some additional money for worthy projects.

It was said that the house never would have accepted a bill carrying an increased appropriation. Among the projects expected to receive additional money at the extra session are the Columbia river and Grays and Willapa harbors.

Senator Poindexter will have charge of the naval appropriation bill when it reaches the floor of the senate on Monday, acting in the place of Senator Page, chairman of the naval affairs committee, who is ill. This bill will be a real test of the Washington senator's leadership because the most spectacular fight of the session is expected to be staged on some of the issues of this measure.

Senator Borah's naval holiday will get into the discussions and some weighty orations are in sight on this subject, it being intimated that several senators have been won over to the Borah proposal in the last few days. Another point of attack will be the proposed naval base at Alameda in San Francisco bay.

Senator Poindexter was one of the most sought-after men in the senate today, on account of the wide interest here in the fate of the naval bill. The Washington senator will fight for the bill as it stands without any additions.

The American Federation of Labor will not throw out a lifeline to the North Dakota non-partisan league. That much is settled. The labor federation is not going in at this perilous time for anything quite so communistic as the Townley scheme of non-partisan leagueism. All the league asks is something like six million dollars to pull the Bank of North Dakota, a non-partisan league institution, out of the ditch.

An interesting story is told of how the matter was received in a meeting of the American Federation yesterday. It was suggested by one of the members of organized labor that it would be a good thing for those with money to invest to put it in the North Dakota proposition.

"Who has any money?" piped up a voice from somewhere in the convention, and further discussion was stifled. The American Federation is opposed to the principle of socialism and communism, it was said, and that organized labor now regards the non-partisan league as one of those dreams which never come true.

Some individual support is understood to have been obtained from individual labor leaders of the more radical type, but it is asserted that if the Bank of North Dakota depends upon the American Federation to save it there is no hope.

LOTISSO CASE TO JURY

at the first hearing. The sneering smile which frequently played about his features during the first trial was not seen, except in flashes during his testimony on the witness stand. Until the burst of temper yesterday, he displayed little nervousness and very little emotion, even when the killing of the wife he said he loved was recounted.

Lotisso at no time during the trial has taken the direct position that his wife deserved her fate because she was guilty of infidelity, although the questioning and arguments of the defense in bolstering up the insanity plea have been such as to cause several spectators throughout the trial to comment that Tessie Lotisso appeared to be on trial rather than her husband. No shred of character or good reputation has been left the dead girl under the searching analysis of the defense attorneys.

Defamation Not Defense Purpose.

Attacks on the 19-year-old war-bride have not been for the purpose of defaming her in an attempt to justify the killing, however, Attorney Page assured the jury in the course of his argument yesterday. The lawyer insisted that the defense had brought nothing about Tessie Lotisso into evidence which had not been known to her husband before the murder and which might not have preyed upon his mind until he reached a state in which he was not legally responsible for his acts.

The state has costended throughout the trial that, granting some of the accusations against the dead girl are true and that her husband had learned of the indiscretions, these things not only did not justify the slaying of Mrs. Lotisso, but that the actions of the husband prior to the murder clearly indicated that he was not worried greatly by his wife's conduct. Chief evidence in support of this contention was a letter written by Lotisso to an old sweetheart in October, a little more than a month before the killing, in which he rejoiced over the trouble between himself and wife and addressed his old sweetheart in endearing terms.

Stress of Emotion Disclaimed.

Deputy District Attorney Hammersly laid particular stress on the fact that Lotisso's own testimony indicated that he was not laboring under a stress of emotion at the time he shot his wife. The lawyer pointed out that Lotisso's own story showed that several minutes had elapsed after a confession of early infidelity which might have enraged him was made, and that, in that interval, he did not upbraid his wife, treated her tenderly and even kissed her before whipping out the pistol and ending her life in a moment of which the defendent declared he remembered nothing.

The state argued that Lotisso's own story was false, that he knew nothing of the Chicago incident which he had testified was told him by his wife a few moments before the tragedy, that he learned of that later and employed it to inject force into an insanity defense. Throughout, Deputy Hammersly has insisted that the evidence produced by the state has shown conclusively that Lotisso threatened his wife on many occasions and on the night of the murder had her in such fear of him prior to the shooting that her screams and sobs awoke residents in the vicinity of Fourteenth and Alder streets for blocks around.

No Remorse Shown, Charge.

He contends that when Mrs. Lotisso succeeded in breaking away from her husband at Fourteenth and Alder streets and ran for her life, Thomas Lotisso pursued her and shot her down in cold blood, and that his actions subsequent to the murder showed no remorse for the deed such as would have come with realization after an insane moment.

Instead of remorse, the district attorney recalled the remark Lotisso was said to have made at the jail in response to an inquiry from a friend: "Oh, I bumped off the old lady last night."

Lotisso is reported to be the kingpin of the prisoners at the county jail, for he is the only one to have reached the height of a murder charge. Every evening after the hearing the inmates of near-by corridors have been entertained by Lotisso's recital of events of the day as they have impressed him.

The largest attendance of any day of the trial was observed yesterday. Judge Belt letting down the bars to some extent and permitting a large number of spectators to sit in the main courtroom behind the attorneys' tables. Only those who could find seats were admitted, however, and several score congregated in the corridors outside the courtroom awaiting their turns. The crowd was very undemonstrative, having been warned by Judge Belt that any noise would result in immediate clearing of the courtroom.

U. S. CANNED FOOD UNFIT

FOOD INSPECTOR SAYS STOCKS ARE SOLD TO PUBLIC.

659 Cases of Goods Destroyed. Government Charged With Spreading Ptomaine Poisoning.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 25.—Dr. E. L. Barnhouse, state food and drug inspector, today announced that some of the government canned goods, which has been retailed in many places here, has been found unfit for consumption. He added that he has ordered 659 cases of the goods destroyed.

Dr. Barnhouse explained his office has received numerous complaints recently as to the quality of the food and that following an investigation by his inspectors four local merchants were summoned to his office.

The merchants readily agreed to destroy the goods, and 440 cases of loganberries, 53 cases of soya beans and 166 cases of kraut will be dumped into the Mississippi river Monday, he said.

"The sale of these impure canned goods, which receive the recommendation of the government and are thus enhanced in the eyes of the general public as to purity of content, undoubtedly will cause great harm. It is a menace to the health of the country and may bring dire results. Impure canned goods cause p'omaine poisoning," he said.

"I have found that in St. Louis practically every bit of the stuff sold by the government which we examined, whether labeled good or bad, was bad," Dr. Barnhouse said. "The only exceptions to this were canned peaches, apricots and cherries. Government meat in cans is all right, as a rule, but those who purchase it should cook it thoroughly to prevent any possible infection."

PHONE OFFICE BURNED

Paraffine, Being Heated for Use on Wires, Explodes.

FALLS CITY, Or., Feb. 25.—(Special)—Fire, caused by the explosion of hot paraffine, gutted the interior of the Willamette Valley Telephone company's office between 10 and 11 A. M. yesterday and damaged the jewelry stock of Ernest Benton, which occupied the floor below, making a total damage of about $1000. The building is owned by C. J. Pugh and there is no insurance.

Guy Newton, a telephone lineman from Portland, was overcome by the smoke and flames after he had succeeded in helping save the switchboard and a part of the other equipment. He was taken to the Dallas hospital, where he is suffering from congestion of the lungs.

The local telephone system is being rebuilt under the management of Wire Chief Madero of Portland.

The paraffine, which was being heated for use on the lines when it exploded, ignited excelsior and other inflammable material nearby.

Temporary telephone offices were fixed up in the Oddfellows' hall, and were ready for business by night.

APPEAL URGED BY BORAH

Senator Asks Primary Forces to Take Issue to Polls.

BOISE, Idaho., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—In a telegram tonight to C. C. Cavanah of this city, United States Senator Borah urged that the fight for re-enactment of the direct primary be taken to the people. The telegram follows:

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25, 1921.—The friends of the primary have made a magnificent fight. They are entitled to the gratitude of the people of the state and of the party. I suggest that before the session closes and they go to their several homes, the friends of the primary organize to carry this fight direct to the polls in the next election. There will be nothing in the way two years hence to make it a distinct issue upon which the people will pass directly.

Beating With Iron Bar Charged.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—J. H. McNutt, west side ranch worker, was held to the grand jury today by A. W. Onthank, justice of the peace, on a charge of wife beating. He also faces a charge of assault and attack on a young daughter. Neighbors preferred the latter charge. Mrs. McNutt told the court she was beaten with an iron bar. Her body bears many bruises.

CENTRALIA, Wash., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—The Napavine schools will reopen Monday, after having been closed for two weeks, owing to an epidemic of smallpox. Conditions in the district appear to be much improved and almost a full attendance of pupils is expected.

UNIONS WILL FIGHT IMMIGRATION BILL

Johnson Measure, Airtight Ban for Year, Wanted.

STRIKE INQUIRY SOUGHT

Congress Asked to Probe in West Virginia; Publicity Campaign Plans Complete.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 25.—Organized labor will endeavor to prevent the passage of the pending Dillingham bill, restricting immigration to 3 per cent of the number of aliens of each nationality in the country in 1910, as the first move under the new legislative programme adopted here by representatives of the national and international unions affiliated in the American Federation of Labor.

Announcement was made today at the federation headquarters that its legislative representatives would attempt to obtain substitution of the Johnson bill, virtually prohibiting immigration for one year. The Dillingham bill was passed by the senate and an agreement on it by senate and house conferees is now pending in the house.

Strike Inquiry Also Wanted.

Legislative representatives of organized labor also have been instructed to attempt to obtain a congressional investigation into conditions in the strike area in West Virginia.

Whether labor will attempt to bring about introduction of a bill at the extra session of congress for the repeal of the Sherman anti-trust act will depend, according to information today, upon what action is taken to exempt labor organizations from liability under that law.

Counsel for the United Mine Workers and other international organizations were said to have begun preparation of a bill to be introduced in the extra session to legalize union organization work in all lines of industry, despite any individual contracts made between employer and employes not members of trade unions.

Publicity Barrage Ready.

Plans for the new publicity campaign to be waged by the federation were being completed today, while the executive council was in session discussing means for raising the money necessary for the movement.

A proposal made by representatives of the typographical union at the labor conference yesterday that a fund of several million dollars be raised for propaganda work, it was learned today, was voted down and it was decided that no special fund would be advisable for this work.

The executive council of the federation was in session here all day, but made no announcement as to its work except that it had considered several jurisdictional disputes.

ITALIAN FACTIONS CLASH

SOCIALISTS AND NATIONALISTS IN OPEN WARFARE.

Many Reported Killed in Province of Bari; Government Trying to Establish Order.

ROME, Feb. 25.—Disorders in the province of Bari, in consequence of conflicts between socialists and members of the fascisti or extreme nationalist party, in which several persons were killed, are reported in a special edition of the Epoca. In the first encounter, it is said, an extreme nationalist and a socialist were killed, others were wounded and the chamber of labor of the town of Minervino Murge was stormed and burned.

Thereupon, adds the newspaper, the socialists proclaimed a general strike, obeyed among others by the employes of the electric light plant, leaving the town without light. A fresh encounter followed and another member of the fascisti was killed.

According to Epoca the socialists formed armed bands of peasants which scoured the country in search of extreme nationalists and land owners, and devastated property and poisoned water used by cattle. Three bodies are declared to have been found in a farm house, burned so badly that it was impossible to identify them.

Because of the vastness of the disturbed area, the dispatch adds, the local police and soldiers were unable to cope with the situation. Numerous troops, carbineers and rural guards were hastily dispatched by the government, which is adopting the most energetic measures to establish order. The government has suspended the head of the police in the province on the ground that he did act with sufficient promptness and determination to prevent the trouble.

The number of dead at Minervino Murge up to the present is placed at six.

OWNER REMAINS CALM

POSSESSOR OF POPULATION CENTER NOT EXCITED.

Farmer Says He Is Surprised to Hear That His Farm Has Won Fame Throughout Country.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Feb. 15.—(Special.)—Although considerably surprised, John E. Herrin, 60-year-old farmer of Whitehall, was not at all excited this afternoon when a reporter called at his home and broke the news to him that the center of population of the United States had been located on his farm by the census experts.

The reporter called at the home of Mr. Herrin, but was informed that he was attending a sale. Arriving at the sale, where a crowd of some 500 had gathered to bargain in the purchase of hogs, cattle and farming implements, the newspaper man had the noise stopped while one of the auctioneers "paged" the man to whom notoriety has come suddenly.

Wearing light blue overalls and slightly stooped with age, his gray hair showing from beneath a cap, Herrin was brought out of the mass and given the news.

"It's all a big surprize to me. I'm sure I never even dreamed of such a thing," he exclaimed. "And so your factory in Bloomington has lost it and now I have the honor," he said. One of Herrin's neighbors, who was standing near, interjected with the question, "Will it enhance the value of his land?"

The news soon spread about the crowd and within a short time Herrin was the most popular man there. The sale had been in progress all day and practically no one there had heard the news.

The new home of the center of population is just eight miles due west of the former center on the factory site in Bloomington and is less than 300 yards over the Monroe county line in Owen county on the Bloomington-Spencer pike. Herrin and his wife live in Whitehall and their farm of 60 acres of heavy timber and bluegrass land extends in a southwesterly direction from there.

Whitehall consists of three stores and about a dozen residences. Herrin and wife belong to the Church of Christ in Monroe county and their two sons, who are married, live in Bloomington. A newspaper man erected a marker on the new site.

LIFE EASIER IN SEATTLE

DECLINE OF 10.2 PER CENT IN COSTS REPORTED.

Figures Compiled by University Students Based on Yearly Needs of Family of Five.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—Cost of living in Seattle declined 10.2 per cent between May 1, 1920, and January 1, 1921, announces the college business administration, University of Washington, in figures compiled by graduate students.

The figures are based on the yearly needs of a family of five—a man, wife and three children of 12, 6 and 3 years. If the cost of maintaining this family for a year, as prices were in May, be taken as 100, then the cost of maintaining them for a year as prices were in January would be 89.8.

Different classes of articles have declined at markedly different rates. Food shows a decrease of 11.1 per cent, clothing 26.8 per cent and furnishings and furniture only 8.9 per cent. Rent has remained the same. Fuel rose 13.3 per cent, though this has fallen since the first of the year. Miscellaneous items, including laundry, tobacco, candy, carfare, etc., have risen 4.5 per cent. Carfare advanced from 5 cents in May to 8 1-3 cents in January.

to receive as a reparation a capital sum today of $13,000,000,000 rather than what that sum would amount to with interest spread out over a series of 30 or 40 years."

Two Premiers May Have Erred.

Mr. Lamont dealt extensively with the discussions at Paris and the reasons for the decision to establish a permanent reparations commission. He questioned the wisdom of Lloyd George and Clemenceau in insisting upon such high figures from Germany, maintaining that the popularity of each was so great at the time that they could have outridden, or even profited by, the political storm which would have resulted in their two countries had they been willing to agree to a smaller figure, which Germany could have paid, and which would have gone far toward settling the world's economic condition.

Aircraft Needed to Stop Smuggling.

HONOLULU, T. H., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—The federal grand jury, in returning true bills against several persons for violation of the narcotic laws, added a rider recommending that aircraft be given the customs service to help in checking the smuggling of opium into the territory. The jury statement was to the effect that most of the opium landed here is dropped off steamers from the Orient and picked up by sampans.

POPE SECULARIZES NUNS

CARMELITE CONVENT NEAR STRASBURG ABOLISHED.

Immorality and Refusing to Obey Papal Edict Are Charges Against Sisters.

(Copyright by the New York World. Published by Arrangement.)

PARIS, Feb. 25.—(Special Cable.)—A papal decree dissolving the Carmelite convent at Marienthal, near Strasburg, and secularizing the mother superior and the other nuns because they refused to return money to two expelled German nuns and because of alleged immorality, was announced today. It is expected that the pope will ask the French government to enforce the decree, as the nuns refuse to leave the convent.

Such a request will test the present friendly relations existing between the vatican and the French government, for as the nuns own the convent and the adjoining land, it is doubtful if the government will feel called upon to expel them. Extreme nationalists charge that the dissolution order is the result of German propaganda, while the pope's interference in what is considered by them as purely French matters is bitterly resented by the anti-clericals.

After expelling the two Germans some time ago, the mother superior refused to return to them money they had brought with them when they entered the convent. The head of the Carmelite order admitted he was unable to cope with the situation, which was complicated by the immorality charges, and appealed to the pope.

Because of this a papal delegate, Dominican Zadoc Szabo, a Hungarian, prohibited the Catholics of the surrounding region from holding any intercourse with the inmates of the convent. This brought no change in the attitude of the nuns, so the delegate returned to the convent yesterday and summoned them before him. They failed to appear and the pope's edict dissolving the convent for schismatic action and rebellion against Rome was issued.

For some time the convent has been the center of heated disputes. Recently a father came to Marienthal and forcibly removed his 18-year-old daughter, who had announced her intention of becoming a nun and fled to the convent.

It is absurd to think that we must be stingy or that we must deny ourselves the comforts of life in order to be thrifty.

Those of us who have not laid aside any money and now know that we should have done so try to ease our consciences by saying: "Oh, money is not everything in the world," but when we say it we know we are fooling nobody but ourselves.

To every business person and wage earner two sources of income are always open—the revenue from his business or his wages, and the interest from his savings or investments.

No more attractive opportunity has ever been presented to the prudent and thrifty investors of this community than the 8% five-year Gold Notes which this Company is now offering.

It is a safe and sound investment yielding a high rate of interest, and it is backed by the large number of public utility properties which supply a steady, necessary and growing public service to nearly one-half of the population of this state and to nearly 40 different communities.

We urge you to call at any of the Company's offices and investigate this unusual offer before it is too late.
