

INDUSTRIAL CENTER CUT FROM GERMANY

Result of New Allied Occupation Is Studied.

NO SOLUTION YET SEEN

Half of Biggest Manufacturing District Is Placed Outside of Nation's Boundary.

(Copyright by the New York World. Published by Arrangement.)

BERLIN, March 20.—(Special Cable.) The German national economic council, the economic committee of the reichstag, the united Rhenish Westphalian chamber of commerce and innumerable other official and industrial bodies have been studying all week what will be the result of the new allied occupation and the customs boundary.

As the problem involves the most intricate manufacturing district in the world, with highly specialized factories on both sides of the new line of demarcation, the problems presented have not been solved so far. The result of the united conferences has inevitably brought the industry back to the same point, from which it can see no escape.

New Barrier Established.

Raising the new frontier places the Rhine provinces and half of the biggest German industrial district outside of Germany. When the custom frontier is erected the factories and business concerns in the occupied portion of Germany also will become a market for foreign products. As the entente powers are now in the position to control the exportation of their products to advantage, they can remove import duties which formerly prevented the introduction of allied products when they complied with the German.

The change of the German customs frontier from the old western boundary to the eastern side of the occupied regions leaves the Rhenish regions as a field for foreign sales. The united opinion of the industrial bodies in that region is that the occupation and the new customs frontier remain, the occupied regions must be considered as outside Germany and be dealt with economically as such.

Rearrangement Needed.

This hits the German manufacturers and merchants in occupied Germany who deal with the occupied regions. But, more important, it necessitates the rearrangement of the delicate mechanism of the Ruhr district.

It is much as if half of an enormous manufacturing plant were cut in two, with a special tax imposed upon every unfinished part which goes from one side of the plant to the other. Of course, this would lead to infinite confusion, which is the state of German industry at the present day. The corresponding members of the Duesseidorf chamber of commerce as to what would be the result of the new frontier. The unanimous reply was:

Expert Gives Opinion.

"The region occupied is partly devoted to the production of raw and semi-manufactured goods, and partly to the production of finished goods. But it is partly devoted to finishing articles which originate in the unoccupied region of Germany. Enough to say that Keesen is on one side of the new line and Duesseidorf on the other."

(Copyright by the New York World. Published by Arrangement.) LONDON, March 20.—(Special Cable.)—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Berlin Sunday says a very extraordinary picture of Hohenzollern family life has been submitted to the public by the Prussian minister of finance. The object of the department is to justify its action in sequestrating one of the estates of the ex-kaiser's cousin, Prince Friedrich Leopold, whose fortune is estimated at between 200,000,000 and 300,000,000 marks. The details published go far back into the days of the war when an attempt also was made to have the prince placed under a guardianship, but it was stopped by the opposition of the ex-kaiser.

Victims of Collision Near St. Helens Are Picked Up by Passing Automobiles.

(Copyright by the New York World. Published by Arrangement.)

Mrs. Irene Wallace of St. Helens and J. H. Klosterman of J. H. Klosterman company of this city were seriously injured when two automobiles, one driven by each, collided on the Columbia River highway two miles this side of St. Helens yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Wallace sustained some bad scalp wounds and it was necessary to make several stitches in her head. Klosterman was reported to have been taken to a local hospital. Both machines were wrecked.

Following the accident, Mrs. Wallace was taken to her home in St. Helens by Mrs. R. G. Phipps, 406 Felling street, who happened to drive past. Klosterman was brought to Portland.

Mrs. Wallace was reported to have said that Klosterman was driving from one side of the road to the other immediately preceding the accident. She was returning from Scappoose en route to St. Helens at the time and Klosterman was driving to meet her.

Passing motorists said that liquor was discovered in the machine of Klosterman following the accident. A. R. Duncan of the St. Charles hotel, driver of the St. Helens bus, took Mr. Klosterman as far as Scappoose in the bus. From there the injured man was brought to Portland in a machine by Bill Linton, proprietor of a Scappoose garage, Mr. Duncan said. Klosterman feared that some of his ribs had been broken.

SPACE RATE UP TO STAY

PAPER CONTRACT DECLARED UNAFFECTED BY DROP.

Publishers Say Reduction in Price of Advertising Would Mean Financial Disaster.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 20.—That financial disaster would follow reduction of advertising rates was the consensus of opinion of publishers and advertising executives of newspapers today attending a meeting of the officers and directors of the national association of newspaper executives, according to Charles Miller, president.

"Retailers have been misled by the spot market price of paper," he said. "It is true that the spot market price of paper has dropped from 12 cents a pound to 7 cents. However, publishers by their paper on contract. Last year they were paying 6 and a half cents. Then, too, freight rates are higher and there have been no rate cuttings in the wage scales of union men. Consequently lower rates are out of the question."

Plans for the annual convention of the association to be held in Atlanta the week of June 12 were discussed. It was announced President Harding would speak.

WOMAN SHOOTS HERSELF

MRS. MARTIN NEAGLE IS NOT EXPECTED TO SURVIVE.

Attempt at Suicide Made After Writing Will on Envelope and Note to Friend.

After writing her will on the back of an old envelope and penning a farewell note to a woman friend, Mrs. Martin Neagle, 26 years old, sent a bullet into her brain as she lay in bed at her apartment, 734 East Morrison street, at about 6 o'clock yesterday morning.

She was removed to St. Vincent's hospital, where she lay at the point of death last night. Hospital attendants said she could not possibly recover. Her health and family troubles were said to have prompted the shooting.

On the back of an envelope Mrs. Neagle had listed a few articles of jewelry, including two watches, her wedding ring, two gold chains and a pin, which she bequeathed to Mrs. J. E. Mahan, 6423 Sixty-fourth avenue southeast.

Below her signature to this will she had written a parting note to the Mahans, in which she begged forgiveness for taking her own life. The note concluded by stating: "I cannot live this way any longer."

Other dwellers at the apartment house were aroused at about 6 o'clock from the revolver report in Mrs. Neagle's apartment. They rushed to her room and found her lying in bed with a gaping wound in her head. Police were called to investigate and ordered her removal to a hospital.

Mr. Neagle was not at home at the time, as he is employed at night.

KRONSTADT REVOLT LEADERS EXECUTED

Refugees Relate Victory With Trotzky Directing.

NO ONE AT ALL SPARED

Soviet Forces Mow Down Men, Women and Children in Way During Attack.

(Copyright by the New York World. Published by Arrangement.)

STOCKHOLM, March 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—Details of the fall of Kronstadt before the bolshevik onslaughts, with Leon Trotzky, soviet war minister, in command, have been brought here by refugees. In the citadel, they said, some 1700 men were left endeavoring to fight their way toward the east and in the other fortresses approximately 1000 were made prisoners.

All officers and leaders among the military forces and civilians immediately executed. Their bodies were thrown on the ice of the Gulf of Finland, with stones and scrap-iron in their pockets so that they will sink when the ice breaks up, probably in a fortnight.

Others Face Execution.

All the other rebel soldiers interned most likely will be executed. "The insurrectionary forces were betrayed by inhabitants sympathizing with the bolshevik and small bodies of the rebels were mowed down by machine guns fired by local communists."

The garrison was not strong enough to rush these forces of communists and regular outside attacks. Every one man or woman, with or without weapons, who got in the way of the bolsheviks was killed, the refugees asserted.

Refugee Stream Ceases.

Kronstadt suffered severely. The stream of refugees has ceased, according to dispatches from Terioki, on the Finnish frontier. Only a few men arrived today after an adventurous night, clad in white and with bandaged hands sustained in swimming along the ice.

Kronstadt had big stores of army equipment, which explained the good attitude of the soldiers and sailors reaching Finland. The latter country will have great difficulty in feeding them.
