

KRONSTADT REVOLT MERE SAILORS' RIOT

Seamen Resent Tightening of Discipline by Trotzky.

CITY IS TAKEN BY TRICK

Part of Force Allowed to Run Over to Enemy, Who Are Then Captured in Night Attack.

STOCKHOLM, March 27.—(By the Associated Press).—The details of the revolt in Kronstadt against the bolshevik administration and the circumstances forming a background against this episode have been learned by the correspondent from well-informed sources.

Ever since the bolshevik revolution, Kronstadt had a tendency to develop into a dependent soviet republic within the larger Russian republic. Under czarism, discipline in the navy was stricter than in the army but since the revolution lack of discipline among the sailors has been heard to check.

In Kronstadt the sailors lived in officers' private villas and idled in officers' clubs, avoiding all drills and enjoying a paradise as long as they were supplied with food and clothes from Petrograd. The government in Moscow did not interfere, arguing it was better to have the sailors for it than against it.

Trotzky Strong for Navy
General Denikin, Admiral Kolchak, General Yudenitch and General Wrangel, the anti-bolshevik leaders, had to be fought on land and it was necessary to establish a bolshevik army, but not a navy. Yet Trotzky never forgot the navy and he was anxious to make the Russian navy as strong and supple a weapon as he had made the army.

Trotzky started his reorganization directly as the Yudenitch venture was ended. It was from those days that the conflict between Trotzky and the sailors date. The sailors hated discipline, loved their freedom of action and the privilege of attending the amusements places in Petrograd.

Food Supplies Reduced.
Finally Trotzky employed a ready weapon—he reduced the food supplies. The sailors thereupon requisitioned food from Petrograd, which caused disturbances which received the color of a counter-revolution. The sailors were declared to have had no part in the movement.

Mr. Davis, who now is serving as the railroad administration's general counsel, will assume charge as director Monday. At the same time, he will succeed Mr. Payne as agent of the president in legal suits growing out of government operation of the railway. The double designation is made necessary by a technicality. In announcing appointment of Mr. Davis, the White House made public that the late President Harding had named Davis as director and secretary of the interior, expressing appreciation for the latter's services.

REDS AGAIN IN ORIENT

Poles and British Are Said to Have Given Official Consecration to Bolshevism.

BY ANDRE TARDIEU
Ex-head of the French high commission and delegate to the peace conference at Paris. Copyright, 1921, by The Oregonian.

PARIS, March 27.—(Special Cable).—The past week has not furnished any of the guarantees of that political order in Europe which the combined interests of the old and new world require.

In the Orient every happening has been to the advantage of that center of agitation called the soviet government. During the peace conference President Wilson said one day:

It would be easier to sweep back a flood with a broom than to conquer bolshevism by force. Even if that were true, there is no reason now to give to bolshevism the consecration of official recognition. But such recognition has been given, first in the treaty with Germany, second in the Anglo-Russian commercial agreement. The ex-secretary of state in America, Bainbridge Colby, in a note last summer, powerfully demonstrated that treaties of agreement with a regime which considers it a duty to deceive bourgeois governments, are nothing more than a delusion.

NEWCASTLE, Pa., March 27.—(Special.)—A masked man, dressed in a suit of a clown with a mask on his face and brandishing a revolver, a man entered the home of Mrs. Clara Defonso, of 218 Rabbit street, seventh ward, last night, and ordered her to put her hands up. She complied.

Police have as yet been unable to learn whether the episode was a joke or a serious hold-up. Mrs. Defonso, a 42-year-old woman with four children, said she was unable to recall the name of the man who carried the gun. Whether he was attempting a practical joke or whether he was intent upon robbery is not known.

5 FIRED FOR COWARDICE CHICAGO DETECTIVES SAID TO HAVE DESERTED COMRADE.

Witnesses Say Scuth Wounded by Gunman Was Left Unaided for More Than 15 Minutes.

CHICAGO, March 27.—Five officers were suspended from the detective force last night after witnesses had accused them of hiding behind telephone poles and refusing to answer the dying cries of their comrade, Detective Sergeant Patrick O'Neill, who was shot fatally Wednesday while trying to arrest "Tommy" O'Connor, an alleged gunman, who is charged with slaying at least three men.

While the search for O'Connor was being extended today to all parts of the country, Charles Pittmorris, chief of police, concluded the investigation leading up to the death of O'Neill. According to witnesses, the officers from the bureau surrounded the hide-out, which was supposed to be in a building. Neighbors told of being aroused by several shots and of finding five of the decoyed telegraph poles in the street. "Faddy" (O'Neill) has been shot, "one of them was quoted as saying, "and we are afraid to go to the rear yard until reinforcements arrive."

Meanwhile, according to witnesses, the dying officer was in the least. "Joe" three times, Joe Ronan, detective-sergeant and O'Neill's partner, heard the cries and began to weep, but no right was to the assistance. Of the wounded man, witnesses said, until the arrival of a police wagon full of gray-haired patrolmen who had been held in reserve at the station.

"You had better not go back there or you will get shot," witnesses said. "The man who shot O'Neill came to get O'Neill and we are going to get him," and the gray-haired patrolmen led the way to the wounded man, who was lying on the ground. He died on the way to the hospital.

COMMUNISTS TAKE FLIGHT German Authorities Control Most Troubled Saxon Cities.

HALLE, March 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Battalions of "green police" today were in control in a majority of the troubled Saxon cities, from which most of the male population had fled either in fear of arrest or in an effort to join their fugitive comrades to reorganize for another attack on the cities. The situation was considered probable Tuesday.

Police authorities, however, believed that the movement had been checked. Sporadic uprisings continued here and in Eleisen, Mansfeld, Hettstadt and other important mining and manufacturing centers.

Count Pommals, colonel of police in the Mansfeld district, said today: "The situation is in hand; the uprising has virtually been suppressed." As he talked he was surrounded by officers and studying a map. The correspondent had just come from Hettstadt, where he entered with several hundred police, all equipped with rifles, revolvers and hand grenades, and followed by field kitchens and army trucks carrying machine guns.

Prisoners taken at Hettstadt marched with hands upraised through the villages between companies of police. When Mansfeld was reached, ragged, unkempt communists were ordered to stand facing the wall of the city hall. Fifteen stood there two hours. Residents were ordered not to approach.

SCHOOL SPACE INADEQUATE.

MARSHFIELD, Or., March 27.—(Special.)—The city school board today is considering the need of a considerable amount of school room for next year, and is discussing plans for the size and size of building that would accommodate the increasing attendance. At present the board is using two rented rooms for school work, and it is planned for next year will demand an addition of at least six schoolrooms, besides the high, grammar and English buildings.

The time has come for the allies to translate this formula into acts. The conference of experts at Brussels last December unanimously agreed that indirect taxation could place here in a position to pay the annuities the treaty of Versailles requires. As it is not possible to do so will not do voluntarily, the allies must compel her by using more effective measures than those adopted recently at London. Otherwise political and economic disorder will continue to blight Europe and the United States necessarily will suffer a large share of the consequences.

STREET TERMINAL KEY
vacations to the people in June. That is Mr. Barbur's attitude, too, he said yesterday. Like C. A. Bigelow, commissioner of public affairs, Mr. Barbur is opposed, at present, to the council's acting under the provisions of the Kuhl bill, passed by the last legislature, which authorizes the council to vacate streets.

Street Vacations Not Favored.
"I do not, at present, favor the vacation of city streets by the council," said Mr. Barbur yesterday. "Of course, I have no means of knowing just what the railroads want, as they have not confided in the members of the council. Neither have they submitted anything to us as yet, but as a general rule I do not favor vacating streets without a vote of the people. The streets belong to the people, the people once voted a charter amendment prohibiting the council from granting vacations, and I certainly see no reason why we should override our charter.

Another point is that, should we follow the suggestion of the legislature in this matter, there is no reason why the legislature cannot, at its pleasure, tell us some other things to do. In other words, when the people of Portland voted for the present charter they supported their vote going to have home rule, and I take it that that is what they want. As far as vacating streets for this terminal project goes, I realize that it is a very important matter. I realize that that times change, and that we must meet the needs of our large and growing city in a businesslike way. As far as the terminal proposition goes, it resolves itself into a question of how best to provide modern facilities for speaking up traffic and distribution of products, and it must be so considered.

Haste by Railroads Urged.
"Personally, I think Mayor Baker has done well to suggest that the railroad officials when he expressed the wish that, if they want quick action, they submit their plans to the council and the council will act better. I shall go on the theory that these streets belong to the people and that it is up to the people to say whether or not they want them for whatever purpose they are sought."

The street vacations are the vital point in plans for Portland's terminal project and passenger terminal project. President Gray has said that the railroads concerned will be able to start within two months, if the vacancies are granted, but that they can do nothing until this feature is certain. The railroads concerned are the Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Great Northern and the Spokane, Portland & Seattle. The first unit of the project will be the new station on Bond's lake. This will relieve the congestion at the passenger station, now used jointly by these lines.

German Resistance Possible.
It is easily comprehensible under such conditions Germany will continue to resist and maintain her refusal to pay reparations. All expressions of German opinion confirm this probability. Nevertheless, it is apparent that Germany's resources constantly are increasing. The late Lord Curzon, governor of the Bank of England and a member of the British peace delegation, always said:

"Germany will recover much quicker than people think." The American economic delegates, Messrs. Baruch and Davis, held the same opinion. At the matter of fact between April, 1920, and January, 1921, Germany collected without effort $2,000,000,000 of marks in taxes, including the relatively insignificant sum of $800,000,000 in direct taxes. Germany offers an proof of her poverty. Her export tax yielded $900,000,000 marks, but official figures show that in the current year this deficit will be only 6,000,000,000. Moreover, the normal export tax yielded $900,000,000 in ten months, and is increasing constantly. German factories are working and capital is plentiful.

Ability to Pay Assessed.
Thus, if any one touched herself, Germany can, if she wishes, pay for what she destroyed, but she persists in not wishing to do so. Dr. Simons, the German foreign minister, declared in a recent speech:

"To repudiate the obligations of the Versailles treaty is necessary for the conquerors in the recent war who were devastated by Germany during the last few days and nights, they must do so before Germany deems herself strong enough to refuse."

Lloyd George, the British prime minister, said to me once:

"When I decided that Germany must pay to the utmost limit of her resources, I did not mean that we should allow her to be the sole judge of that limit."

The time has come for the allies to translate this formula into acts. The conference of experts at Brussels last December unanimously agreed that indirect taxation could place here in a position to pay the annuities the treaty of Versailles requires. As it is not possible to do so will not do voluntarily, the allies must compel her by using more effective measures than those adopted recently at London. Otherwise political and economic disorder will continue to blight Europe and the United States necessarily will suffer a large share of the consequences.

PAIN RESTORES SPEECH
Pulling of Tooth Shocks Dumb Man Into Articulation.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 27.—(Special.)—Four years ago when his son was drafted for the world war, Benjamin Zion Kramer, 207 East Pratt street, was so grief-stricken that he lost the power of speech.

Today Kramer had two teeth extracted by a dentist and the shock restored his power of speech. "Good luck," cried Kramer as he leaped from the dentist's chair. "I wish to have two shilling teeth removed. He indicated two front lower teeth. Dr. Quitt proceeded to extract the teeth. To his amazement, after the teeth had been pulled, Kramer suddenly spoke.

"Good luck," he said, and after a lapse of a moment uttered "Good-bye" as he left the office. Dr. Quitt said the case was the most remarkable he had ever experienced. The pulling of the teeth, he said, must have shocked a nerve which caused Kramer to speak again, something less than 30 miles. Engineering W. E. Chandler, state engineer.
