New Plan for Determining Fighters' Avoirdupols.

BY DICK SHARP. The practice of weighing boxers at ringside, as has been done by both the Portland and Milwaukle boxing ommission, is ridiculous as well as harmful to the boxers and to the boxing game,

The reasons advanced for ringside weighing are: First, to let the fans know what the boys really weigh, and second, to determine the weight difference between the contestants. The way the thing has been done is a joke. Half of the time the correct weights have not been announced, and if there was too great a dif-ference the weights have been

The right thing to do is to every contestant at 2 P. M. the day of the fights. This is done in 17 states in which boxing is legalized. It was found harmful to compel boxers to make ringside weight, or even to weigh in at ringside. The plan of weighing in at 2 P. M.

will be tried by the Portland boxing commission Friday. Every boxer on the card will be obliged to weigh in at that time. The weighing will be done in public and the general public will be invited to be on band. If one of the principals in a bout is found to weigh too much he will be taken off the card. With the boys weighing in at 2 o'clock the matchmaker will have time to get substitutes who will rate as high as, the boxers billed for the match. Again, if two boys should get in a squabble about weight at the 2 o'clock session and one should refuse to go on, the and one should refuse to go on, the matchmaker will have pienty of time to get a worthy substitute. As it now is, if one boxer has a little weight advantage the other may refuse to go through until it is agreed that the match be called a draw if both boys their feet at the end of the of them gets huffy he can be yanked off the bill or pinned down to his word to go through to a decision. Neither matchmaker nor the fans side weighing in vogue. It stands to reason that it would be as hard for a boxer to make 118 pounds at 2 o'clock as it would to make it at ringside. On the other hand, if a boxer promises to make 118 at 2 o'clock and fails he still may be given the leeway of making it by ringside time. If he had promised to make it at ringside and then failed his opponent might refuse to box at the tlast minute. This has happened many opponent might refuse to box at the last minute. This has happened many

The fans are as much entitled to watch the boxers weigh in as they are to know the boxers' weight.
