

SENATORS TO GIVE LAND OFFICE PLUMS

Oregon's Representatives Not to Have Hand in Matter.

ASPIRANTS SHIFT ATTACK

McNary and Stanfield Expected to Divide 14 Places Between Them in Making Selections.

Representatives Hawley, Sinnott and McArthur are to have nothing to say about who shall fill the jobs of receiver and register in the land offices in their respective congressional districts. The suggestion was that this patronage would be distributed by the members of the house, just as they are supposed to have the recommending of postmasters outside of the home towns of the United States senators, but the proposition was wrong. The house members haven't any more to say on the subject of last offices than a plain, ordinary citizen.

Senators McNary and Stanfield have been requested by the department to hurry up and make recommendations for the land office jobs. Some of these places are almost ripe and ready for picking, while some of the incumbents are still good for a couple of years.

Senators to Make Selection. That the senators and not the representatives are to fill the land offices—14 appointments in all—was made out when aspirants began bombarding the representatives with applications. Replies came back from Washington stating that the land office appointments were in the hands of the two senators, as those officials have been directed to make the necessary recommendations. This has caused candidates to open up a new campaign and shift their attack from the house members to the senators, although the latter have not enough trouble as it is with the headline jobs without having the smaller stuff, like receivers and registers, thrown at them.

It is possible, however, that if the representatives are invited to sit in with the senators on recommending candidates for the land offices, they may accept, although there is no disposition on the part of the house members to take a hand in distributing the half dozen big appointments, such as collector of internal revenue and United States marshal.

Officers May Be Divided. The presumption is that if the senators have the deciding vote between them, each naming seven of the 14 places to be eventually filled, with the seven offices are in eastern Oregon, so Senator Stanfield would have the edge on Senator McNary if they made the division according to geography and where the personal interests of the senators are most strong.

If the representatives were entitled to name the offices in their districts, Mr. Sinnott would walk off with ten appointments, Mr. McArthur with two and Mr. Hawley with two. The offices are at The Dalles, LaGrande, Vale, Burns, Lakeview, Roseburg and Portland.

INSURANCE IS INCREASED

UNITED WORKMEN MAXIMUM IS RAISED TO $5000.

Grand Lodge of Oregon Decides to Inaugurate Intensive Campaign for Members.

The maximum amount of insurance which Oregon members of the Ancient Order of United Workmen may take out was increased from $2000 to $5000, as the result of a revision of the constitution which was adopted at the 33d session of the grand lodge of Oregon, Ancient Order of United Workmen, held the first three days of this week in Portland. The organization at the same time decided to hold annual sessions hereafter. With a view to organizing new lodges in this state, and adding to the membership of those already established, the office of manager of extension work was created. D. C. Herrin, former grand master and elected during the sessions to the office of grand recorder, was placed in charge of the extension work in Oregon by virtue of the action which made the grand recorder manager of extension work. Mr. Herrin announced that the policy under which he would work would be to strengthen the lodges in the larger towns, rather than organizing weak lodges in the small towns. He said the policy of the order was opposed to the organization of lodges with a too limited membership. Officers chosen were as follows: C. L. Coppel, Portland, past grand master; workman; L. E. Crouch, Portland, grand master workman; Chester Shute, Hood River, grand foreman; Judge J. W. Maloney, Pendleton, grand overseer; D. C. Herrin, Portland, grand recorder; A. W. Allen, Portland, grand treasurer; W. J. Allen, Portland, grand guide; C. H. Langslet, Lakeview, grand inside watchman; Milton Era, Portland, grand outside watchman, and J. M.

PROSSER, Wash., April 20.—(Special.)—An item sent from here last week regarding contempt of court proceedings before Judge John Truax in connection with a suit by Henry C. Ewing, a prominent Seattle realty dealer, against C. L. Morris, receiver for the Kiona-Benton Land & Water company, is now said to have wrought a grave injustice upon Henry C. Ewing by stating that he was "himself awaiting trial upon a fraud charge." No such charge has been made against Henry C. Ewing. His brother, W. W. Ewing, is under bond pending trial on a charge of obtaining the signature to a note by false representations, having been bound over to the superior court after a preliminary hearing in justice court last December.
