

FRENDS IN HONOR TO JOSEPH N. TEAL

Ex-Shipping Board Member Complimented at Dinner.

COMMERCE BODY IS HOST

Guest of Honor, in Address, Lays Stress Upon Urgent Need of Adequate Merchant Marine.

That honor seldom accorded prophets, the acclaim of the home folk, was given in generous measure last night to Joseph N. Teal, ex-member of the United States shipping board, at a complimentary dinner by the Chamber of Commerce in the main dining room.

The hall was hung with the signal flags of ships, with intertwined United States flags at the back of the speakers' table, and a small United States shipping board flag hung in the place of honor. Tables were hand-somely with flowers and tributes to the guest of honor were spontaneous and from the heart.

Work at Capital Reviewed. Mr. Eby told of Mr. Teal's successful work in directing the nation's transportation problem on the coast and the foundation work for a merchant marine. He said the nation was fortunate in having such a man apply himself to the big task he was appointed to do and which he carried out with so much credit.

War Cry Was for Ships. "The cry everywhere in those days was for ships and more ships," he said. "The question then was not how could we save money, but how could we win the war by having the most ships after the war was ended could not then be considered. We might as well try to value a drink of water given to a man in the third, or the value of bread given to a man dying of hunger, as to attempt to value ships when the need for them is so great."

Federal Fleet Stands Rates. Mr. Teal said in 1920 there were more than 100,000 tons of coal in export tonnage, and that in handling this freight the more than 10,000,000 tons available in shipping tonnage vessels of 1500 tons or more were in the possession of the board and more were being built. Our vessels sailed the seven seas and our trade routes were the globe. We must concede that our people in active charge deserve our consideration. They had not been wasting money to no purpose.

Board Greatly Abused. "I think the board was a much-abused and rather overcriticized public body, but I have a strong feeling that it will live in the history of our country to change the law and put one great big superman in charge of the whole thing. I believe it rather a more logical proceeding first to try out the present plan and change only when experience proves the value of such a move."

One source of inspiration during my term of service was the splendid showing made by vessels out of the north Pacific coast. They were as compared between the northwest ports and those of other sections, there is cause for pride.

Now that my responsibilities are over," he said, "and you miss something you feel you should have done. I hope you will sing out as they used to in the old days at the baseball park. 'Joe would have got it.'"

Merchant Marine Vital. "It is difficult to conceive a nation with its transportation in the hands of another nation. In preparation for war or peace, a merchant marine is vital. It is an integral part of the navy and an auxiliary of the armed forces on land as well. Surely this great nation, that has now put its hands to the plow, will not turn backward. In the interest of all the people we must press on and declare it settled policy of the nation to have a merchant marine adequate to our needs. In this great work I trust the people of the Pacific northwest will be in the forefront, for this problem of a merchant marine is tremendously important."

Chamberlain is Praised. "The country is to be congratulated on what seems to be the inevitable appointment of George E. Chamberlain to the shipping board. With him in that position, I believe we will have a champion for a merchant marine in keeping with the aims and ideals of the nation."

Teal closed with sincere thanks for the honor given him and modestly attributed the honors paid him to the kindness and warmth of heart of his old friends and neighbors of Portland.

Greek Offensive Opened. CONSTANTINOPLE, April 20.—The Greeks are delivering a heavy counter-offensive against the Turks near Usak.

NIGHT "COP" DISTURBS IDLER UP AGAINST WALL "THINKING"

Snore and Alcoholic Odors Attract Officer. "I Was Trying to Decide Which Job to Take," Prisoner Tells Judge.

WHEN George Kimball wants to think, he makes ample preparations for the ordeal. It was Tuesday night, and George had been out of work for several weeks. He had been offered several jobs during the day and had to make his decision before yesterday morning. So George snuggled himself up against a building in the north end and proceeded to think, so he told Judge Roseman in police court yesterday.

When Patrolman Henson strolled by with his night stick George was still propped up against the building. His eyes were closed and loud snore, which exuded alcoholic odors, were wafted on the evening breeze. "The cop wielded his night stick several times before George came to life. Then the patrol wagon came up and George was landed in the drunk's corridor of the city jail.

"Why the idea. This charge is an outrage," asserted the prisoner in police court yesterday. "I was simply leaning up against the building trying to decide what job I should take in the morning." "He was probably trying to decide how much more booze he could drink without falling into the gutter," cut in the arresting officer.

Evidence showed that Kimball had a partially filled bottle of moonshine on him when the cop gathered him in, but when Kimball promised to make an instant decision and take the first job he could get before noon Judge Roseman suspended sentence.

It's a bit out of the ordinary to find a Jap peddling Chinese lottery tickets, but police yesterday picked up T. Hagl of the land of cheery bloom, who had a big sheaf of lottery tickets, which he was selling to north end habitués.

Hagl evidently didn't like the idea of being caught playing the same game of the wily Chinese and when he was arraigned before Judge Roseman he asserted the stenciled markings on the lottery tickets were Japanese printing.

"Well, what does this read?" inquired Deputy City Attorney Lansing, as he picked a lottery ticket at random and asked the prisoner to decipher it. "The Japanese song," Hagl replied instantly.

"Well, just sing that song to the court and I will ask him to suspend sentence," offered the prosecutor. Hagl looked at the ticket for a moment, then scratched his head. "I guess me no savvy," he admitted as he handed back the ticket, which veteran police quickly identified as being unmistakably the printing of Chinese.

"As long as you can't sing, I am afraid you will have to face the music," vouchsafed Judge Roseman as he fined the Jap lottery peddler to the tune of $50.

William Struve admitted in police court yesterday that he had made a grievous mistake when he objected to the steak which was served to him in the restaurant of A. H. Chapman at 223 Washington street. "This steak is no good; just charge it to the house," Struve told the waitress after he had partaken of the meal.

But the waitress told the proprietor and the latter started an argument with Struve, which did not end until he was seated upon the diner's body on the floor of the restaurant waiting for the police to come and gather in the prisoner.

Judge Roseman took a hand in the argument again yesterday and "sat on" Struve with a $10 fine.

Ben Sherwood came down from Hoquiam and proceeded to liquor up with the brand of stuff that is peddled through the north end resorts. By midnight Tuesday he was ready for the "house-gow."

When a watchful cop took the Hoquiam man into custody the latter had most of his roll of bills still intact and they were put away in the vault for safe keeping. "Let me go home and I'll promise not to come here and get drunk again," pleaded Sherwood as he admitted his guilt before Judge Roseman.

"Well, be on your way," ordered the court. "But give me my money first," demanded Sherwood. "I haven't got it," retorted the court. "Yes you have; give it here," insisted Sherwood.

AMERICANS BEATEN BY MOB IN BERLIN

James E. Tobin and Wife Attacked in Park.

WOMAN LEADS RIOTERS

Policeman and Two Civilians Save Victims Suspected of Mocking German ex-Empress.

BERLIN, April 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—James E. Tobin and his wife, residents of Chicago, were attacked by German men, women and children Tuesday night in Sans Souci park following the funeral of the ex-empress.

The Americans were rescued by a policeman and two German civilians, who surrounded them, accepting a pelting of sticks, stones and umbrellas until they could escort the couple to the station on In Stad-dam. Extra policemen dispersed the crowd.

During the attack the rioters could not quiet the crowd, members of which were shouting "foreigners," "French people!" Mr. Tobin was beaten about the head and shoulders and his wife suffered a bruised nose. Her hair was torn off, her hair was pulled and she was struck by umbrellas.

Potsdam police headquarters, in its report said: "The Americans were not to blame." "The mob," said Mr. Tobin, "was incited by an old woman who thought we were French. She was first attacked and chased us from the park to Potsdam. It is my opinion we would have been killed except for one policeman and two German civilians."

Mrs. Tobin said: "We were sitting in Sans Souci park speaking English. They were three women in the same seat. The one nearest us turned to her companions and declared we were French. They began abusing foreigners." "A crowd gathered. The old woman declared we had spoken in French words derogatory to the ex-empress. Neither of us understood French. One of the old woman's companions tried to explain we had not spoken about the dead ex-empress, but that we were discussing the beauty of the park."

"The crowd drew nearer, shouting we were French, and children began to throw stones." Mr. Tobin declared he and his wife were born in Russia. Mrs. Tobin, he asserted, is the daughter of American parents, but that he is a naturalized citizen. He said he could speak neither Russian nor French.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION INVITES

Speakers Urge Recall of Fred G. Williams and Score Rate Rise on Telephones.

Public invitation, by request from the audience, to any member of the public service commission to come down in front and take part in the hearing, was given at the public mass meeting urging the recall of Fred G. Williams and protesting the telephone rate increase, held last night at the municipal auditorium, with about 500 persons in attendance.

Rumor that one member of the commission was present could not be confirmed. The phrase "six cents too much for a five-cent ride" was mentioned frequently throughout the programme, with Mr. E. P. Hender, Peter J. Arcey of Salem, Dan Kellaher and Robert S. Duncan speaking on various phases of the recall, the history of the public service commission and the results that a rehearing will bring about.

"Once the recall is used it usually does not need to be used again," declared Mr. E. P. Hender in the history of the law and pledging himself to work for the success of it against members of the public service commission.

"The people of Oregon should tell the public service commission either to give them a quarter of a cent for the recall," Mr. D'Arcy declared. He afterward asserted that the commission had begun to assume the place of master rather than servant of the people.

Dan Kellaher stilled an occasional murmur from the audience by demanding that anyone wishing to say anything come forward and speak his mind before the audience. He declared that the public service commission law had been put through the Oregon legislature by the streetcar, gas and telephone rates and the public service commission.

Empty seats and an audience that would not greatly have crowded an ordinary office reception room eliminated most of the mass meeting. The public mass meeting held yesterday morning and afternoon at the municipal auditorium in protest against the gas and telephone rates and the public service commission.

State Irrigation Securities Commission Postpones Action. SALEM, Or., April 20.—(Special.)—The state irrigation securities commission, at a meeting held here today, considered applications for the certification of $25,000 of bonds for the Talent irrigation district and a like amount of securities for the Squaw creek irrigation district.

The Talent bonds are required in connection with an agreement with the county court of Jackson county whereby a change is to be made in a road around Emmet's Bend reservoir, and for the acquisition of additional rights-of-way and for other purposes.

ALLEGED FORGER HELD

Mark B. Connelly Is Said to Have Passed Worthless Checks.

Mark B. Connelly, 27, ex-salesman of the Empire Candy company of Seattle, was arrested last night by Inspectors Horack and McCulloch and locked up in the city jail to face charges of obtaining money under false pretenses.

He was alleged to have issued no-fund checks in Portland, which he cashed in the Imperial, Portland, Clyde and Congress hotels; to have defrauded the Empire Candy company of $50; to have passed a no-fund check for $100 on the Wurlitzer company of Pendleton; to have confessed to the passing of similar checks at the Dalles and other places along the Columbia.

ALLEGED THIEF ARRESTED

Logger Is Said to Have Taken $165 From Friend's Belt.

Police were asked yesterday to iron out the difference between Solomon Korby and Pavill Heikka, alias Robert Halger, with the result that the latter was locked up on a charge of robbery after being arrested by Inspector Howell.

Korby, who is an elderly man, asserted that Heikka, one of his assistants in the logging business, had shared his room in Portland Monday night. Korby went to bed with a money belt containing $165 strapped to his leg, he said, but when morning came it was gone. He accused Heikka.

ALLEGED FORGER ARRESTED

A bride of eight months will be facing life alone if L. N. Harvey, who was arrested by City Inspectors Philip Howell last night, is convicted of the charge of forgery which was placed against him last night.

Harvey was apprehended in information given by the Everett officers. He was alleged to have forged an indorsement to a road around Emmet's Bend reservoir, and for the acquisition of additional rights-of-way and for other purposes.

Auto Hits F. R. Bruck

F. R. Bruck, 511 Lovejoy street, was run down by the automobile of C. H. Dawson, 172 North Eighteenth street, last night, and suffered numerous cuts about the head which were treated at the city emergency hospital. Dawson said that Bruck was watching another car which passed him at the intersection of Fourteenth and Gilman streets.

PUPILS AID INDUSTRIES

SALE OF OREGON PRODUCTS INCREASED BY CHILDREN.

Label Contest in Rose City Park School Stimulates Interest in Home-Made Goods. Demand for goods bearing the Associated Industries of Oregon label has been increased about 300 per cent in the school district in the last few days by dealers in the Rose City Park school regarding success of the contest among the grades in the Rose City Park school for the greatest number of labels from Oregon-made products.

A total of 17,495 labels were returned during the five weeks of the contest, and it is reported that a dealer was virtually forced to put in a line of Oregon products because of the incessant demand created by the contest. Due to the cooperation of the principal and teachers of the school in inciting interest, the contest was carried out only into the homes of the school children, but also to the neighbors, in the district-wide search for Associated Industries labels. It is probable that similar contests will be held in other schools of the city.

The plan was sponsored by the Rose City Park Parent-Teacher association, Mrs. Bonnie Owens Webb president, and the contest called out the practical assistance of the Associated Industries of Oregon. Labels presented by the children included those from clothing, furniture, candies and practically every commodity manufactured in the state.

The Rose City Park school was divided into three groups, the primary, intermediate and senior, with prizes offered to the grade returning the largest number of labels in its division. First prize of $10 went to grade 5-B, under Mrs. Rowens A. Mills; second prize of $5 to grade 8-A, Elizabeth Caruthers, teacher, and third prize of $5 was won by the pupils in grade 3-A, Irene Carter, teacher.

The awards are to be used at the discretion of the pupils in purchasing adornments for their respective rooms.

GROUND RENTAL CHARGED

Oregon City Club Must Sell or Move Building. OREGON CITY, Or., April 20.—(Special.)—The Clackamas county farm bureau and the Oregon City Commercial club are facing a problem involving the disposition of the building used as headquarters and offices for the farm bureau and the county agent, but owned by the Commercial club.

The structure was erected about ten years ago and was intended as offices for the public department of the club, and was so used until the department ceased to function.

The ground was owned until recently by the Weinhard estate, which made no charge for the ground rent, for $100 on the land transferred to William Feltelson and he has asked the club to pay a ground rental of $35 a month or move the building off. Unless the building is sold while it stands it will be necessary to move it, as the club derives no revenue from its use by the farm bureau.

BRUNO LODGED IN PRISON

Slayer Under Life Sentence Begins Term at Penitentiary.

SALEM, Or., April 20.—(Special.)—John B. Kawacinski, alias John Bruno, recently convicted of murder in the second degree in connection with the slaying of Harry I. Pawlik, state superintendent of public instruction from Portland to start serving a life sentence.

After being "dressed in" Kawacinski was assigned to a receiving cell, where he will remain until Friday, when he will be photographed and subjected to Bertillon measurements. Later he will be employed about the institution.

AGRICULTURE LEFT OUT

Children to Be Exempt From Test on Subject Hereafter. SALEM, Or., April 20.—(Special.)—The subject of agriculture will not be a part of the examinations to be held in the schools of the state in May and June, according to notices sent out today by J. A. Churchill, state superintendent of public instruction. The letters prepared by Mr. Churchill were directed to all county school superintendents.

Mr. Churchill said that he is much interested in the subject of agriculture, but that little is being accomplished as it is now taught. This is due, he said, to the fact that few of the teachers have had any preparation or training in agricultural instruction.

Bank Offers Pure-Bred Bull

OREGON CITY, Or., April 20.—(Special.)—Clackamas county farmers who are interested in developing the livestock industry are facing a unique offer of the Bank of Commerce.

old of Oregon City. The institution has just made an offer to exchange a purebred Guernsey bull for a scrub animal, with no charge for the exchange. The bank has only a limited number of purebred bulls, sired from imported Guernseys. "We pioneered in the bettering of livestock in this county," said John R. Humphreys, cashier of the Bank of Commerce, "and this exchange for the elimination of scrubs will not cost a cent to the farmer who benefits."

Road Bids Called For. Bids have been called for $6.03 miles of road work, to be opened by the state highway commission tomorrow morning. Of the mileage, 44.8 miles will be for surfacing with broken stone; 16.26 miles will be hard-surface pavement; 5.25 miles will be grading and 11.28 miles will be both grading and grave surface. This will be the second meeting of the commission this month.

Bids on Supplies Received. SALEM, Or., April 20.—(Special.)—Bids for supplies for the several state institutions for the six months ending July 1.

Crater Lake Park Discussed. A discussion of further details in connection with the improvement of Crater lake national park facilities was held yesterday at a meeting of the Crater lake improvement committee in the rooms of the Old Colony club at the Malcomb hotel. M. P. Albright, representing the director of national parks, was present at the meeting. The discussion was confined to minor details of the plan formulated at the meeting held last Thursday at Medford.
