ENGINEERS FILE PROTEST

OREGON CITY BRIDGE PLAN CALLED EXTRAVAGANT.

Local Association Wants Chance to Submit Designs for Use on State Structures.

Representations that the proposed steel and concrete bridge across the Willamette river between Oregon City and West Linn as designed by C. H. McCullough, bridge engineer for the state highway department, is impractical and that a steel bridge of a similar type would be much less expensive and at the same time more serviceable have been made by representatives of the Portland branch of the practicing engineers' section of the American Association of Engineers.

The organization yesterday dispatched a communication to the state highway commission, urging that in future operations of that body designs for bridges be thrown open to competition so that various bridge engineers might submit plans. In this way, the belief was expressed, the best ideas from a large number of engineers would be obtained and the public would be assured of durable and at the same time economical bridges.

The action was taken by the local branch of the American Association of Engineers after the engineering firm of Forrester, Lincoln & Stiger had prepared designs and estimates for a steel bridge between Oregon City and West Linn, which they said could be erected $20,000 cheaper, and at the same time would be a larger and stronger type of bridge in every respect.

The bridge designed at the instance of the local branch of the American Association of Engineers was a class A bridge, has a 27-foot roadbed and five-foot sidewalks on either side. The estimated cost was $190,000, this amount including a fee of $10,000 for engineering and the sum of $1256 provided for contingencies.

BOXER HELD AS SLAYER

Manslaughter Charged to Evans, Opponent of Dead Soldier.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 5.—(Special.)—Walter F. Evans of Sequim, the 18-year-old opponent of Emmett "Kid" Russo, Fort Flagler soldier, who died in the Fort Worden hospital Sunday evening from injuries alleged to have been received in a four-round boxing contest at Port Townsend Saturday night, is charged with manslaughter in an information filed in Jefferson county superior court by Prosecuting Attorney Gagnery. Evans was released on $1500 bail.

The action of the prosecutor followed the finding of a coroner's jury that Russo's death was the result of a ruptured vein or artery in the head as revealed by the autopsy. The jury made no attempt to fix responsibility for the death.

Fishing Reported Good.

KELSO, Wash., May 5.—(Special.)—Gilnet fishermen who operate in this vicinity have been making exceptionally good catches since the opening of the season Sunday night. The public would be assured of durable and at the same time economical bridges.

Road Contract Awarded.

KELSO, Wash., May 5.—(Special.)—The contract for grading and graveling seven miles of the Ocean Beach highway between Grays river and Deep river, in Wahkiakum county, was awarded Monday by the state highway board to the Pacific Coast Paving company of Tacoma whose bid was $128,821.

OLDER "PUPILS" DOWNED

YOUNGSTERS EASY WINNERS IN SPELLING MATCH.

Fun and Serious Thought as Well Developed at Luncheon of Business Men's Club.

"Hurry, up, boys; get into line," said P. H. Kneeland in the role of schoolmaster yesterday to 12 prominent business men, who lined up against 12 students from the high school of commerce. Reluctant, seemingly, the men faced their young opponents in the crystal room of the Benson hotel at the weekly luncheon of the Progressive Business Men's club.

Then the fun began, for although the spelling match was scheduled to be a serious affair, it turned out to be real entertainment. "There will be no communication on the part of the pupils," said Mr. Kneeland. "No favoritism will be shown, for there are no teacher's pets."

"Malfeasance," pronounced the teacher to Frank Hilton, attorney. "Malfe," began Mr. Hilton. "I won't spell it without my fee." And so it went back and forth, each man giving a ready answer, which brought shouts from the club members.

All of the high school pupils spelled the words given them with ease and at the end of the match, the 12 were left without opponents. J. H. Rankin was the last to go down. He failed by mispronouncing "octopus."

W. F. Woodward, school director, spoke of the value of schools and the need for new buildings in Portland. He told of the work done at the high school of commerce in the old wooden building, used years ago as a grammar school.

"Without our public schools, how long would this democracy endure?" asked Mr. Woodward. "The purest democracy is in the playgrounds and in the schools of our city. It is your duty and your privilege to help in making the schools ideal places in which to develop citizens. The greatest material welfare of the city lies in the school children of Portland."

FUND FOR SHOW SOUGHT

Lewiston Commercial Club Raising $10,000 for Stock Exhibition.

LEWISTON, Idaho, May 5.—(Special.)—A committee of Commercial club members today began a drive to raise among the business men of the city a fund of $10,000 to stage a big fair and livestock show in the early fall. The failure of the state legislature to make appropriation for the Northwest Livestock show has seriously handicapped the directors of the show, but there is a determination to put on next fall the biggest and most complete exhibition ever held here.

This will involve a change in the type of exhibition, as local business men favor a fair that will bring crowds to the city, in addition to the regular livestock features. Amusement attractions are now being investigated, and strong emphasis will be placed on the entertainment side.

Convention Plans Made.

ABERDEEN, Wash., May 5.—(Special.)—Lloyd Flower and a group of committeemen of whom he is chairman, are making final arrangements for accommodations for about 200 delegates expected to attend the 34th annual convention of the Western Washington Sunday School association here Saturday and Sunday, May 7 and 8. A large delegation is expected from each of the sound cities, as a result of the entertainment afforded the older boys' conference here last month, which was highly praised by Tacoma and Seattle churches.

Kelso Improvement Begun.

KELSO, Wash., May 5.—(Special.)—E. W. Flagg's store building and part of the C. M. Lyons residence adjoining have been torn down this week to make room for Mr. Flagg's new two-story brick building on Second street. While construction work is in progress, Mr. Flagg will operate his business in the Easton Music store.
