

THOUSANDS CROWD FESTIVAL CENTER

Revelers Form Seething Mass of Humanity.

CHILD HAS UNIQUE HONOR

Lois Conover, 9 Years Old, First Girl in World to Use New Voice Amplifier.

Thousands of pleasureseekers literally jammed their way into the park blocks Thursday night to take part in the celebration focused about Festival center. The revelers packed the blocks adjacent to the rostrum with a seething mass of humanity even before the fireworks celebration in Multnomah field was concluded.

Nearly all of those present packed into the streets near the center for dancing and those who didn't dance listened to the intermittent and impromptu concert put on for their benefit.

And they were fully rewarded, for among the features that they saw and heard was the first girl in the world ever to use the recently invented voice amplifier.

Honor Lois Conover's.
The honor went to Lois Conover, 9-year-old daughter of A. M. Conover of 420 East Fortich street North.

It all came about when those who were sponsoring the festivities at the center were suddenly confronted by the necessity of providing entertainment for a crowd which far exceeded their expectations.

They were forced to provide impromptu entertainment instantly, and through Fred Carlton they did it. Carlton called for volunteer entertainers, and asked especially for youngsters, as the telephone company which is supplying the amplifier desired to test out the effect of children's voices on the instrument.

The first of the child volunteers was Miss Conover, who proved that she had an exceptionally sweet and pleasing voice. And so she won the honor of using the same instrument through which President Harding delivered his inaugural address.

Child Called Back.
Miss Conover sang "Whispering" with such success that the crowds applauded for more, and she was called back for several encores. Then in quick succession came Ruth Peterson, 11 years old, who recited "Our Hired Girl" with great effectiveness, and Mary and Anna Harold, 10 years old, and Mercedes Hickman, 8 years old, who recited, and Weldon Hyde, 16, who displayed great whistling talents.

But the programme was not entirely given over to the children. S. McFarlane gave some pleasing baritone selections, and David B. Fuller whistled two times at one time while the audience danced. M. A. Howard, a professional pianist, volunteered as accompanist for the singers and whistlers.

Chimes Are Amplified.
One of the most pleasing features of the programme, was the rendition of chimes by the amplifier. The tones were thrown back from the tower of the Congregational church opposite the rostrum and drifted slowly to the audience below.

The amplifier cast a cloud of music for blocks for the dancers, who were forced to specialize in close dances because of the packed crowds. Everyone listened to the concert, or danced, and all thoroughly enjoyed themselves, and promised to come back again tonight, and C. E. Hickman of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph company, who had charge of the amplifier, promised to provide music for everyone.

NEWBERG PEOPLE CELEBRATE

Winning of Prize in Festival Contest Causes Jubilation.

The award of second prize to Newberg for its float in the section for outside towns was the cause of a celebration there Thursday evening, according to Dr. R. W. Van Valin of that community. This was the first victory of the Newberg booster organization, which was formed May 24 to promote through advertising and publicity the advantages and interests of the valley.

The float, which many of the townspeople did not see in the Port land procession, Dr. Van Valin said, was paraded through Newberg in full array. It was decorated with strawberries, vegetables and fruits, products of that region, and a canopy at the rear sat the queen, Miss Audrey Lemon, who was elected by popular vote. From the front of the canopy was suspended a huge logan berry and a number of gaily dressed children were posed on the front of the float.

Seven Plead Not Guilty.

SALEM, Ore., June 10.—(Special.)—Seven Marion county men arrested on indictments returned by the grand jury recently on charges of violating the prohibition laws pleaded not guilty at circuit court Thursday. Their trials will be held during the present term of the circuit court. The men include L. A. Williams, J. F. Clark, John McKinney, Harold McKinney, Jesse Padden, J. Christensen and Ralph Wagner.

DR. SCHOLZ SEATED AS REED PRESIDENT

Duties Accepted at Impressive Ceremony.

LEADERSHIP HELD SACRED

Need for Combining Realism With Idealism Recognized.

In an impressive ceremony attended by representatives of every major university in the United States, Dr. Richard Frederick Scholz was formally inaugurated president of Reed college Thursday afternoon. The Reed college chapel, where the inauguration took place, was packed with students and spectators. Representatives from Yale, Harvard, Stanford university, University of Washington and other institutions, regents and trustees and faculty of the college, took part in the robed academic parade which conducted the new president to his place on the platform.

James B. Kerr, president of the board of regents, declared Dr. Scholz to be the duly chosen executive, stating that Reed college is yet in its infancy, but at the approach of a new era of progress, "Reed shall grow as the west grows," he said, "and upon the shoulders of President Scholz rests the responsibility of guiding that development."

Leadership Held Sacred.

In accepting the presidency Dr. Scholz declared that there is no trust more sacred than that of educating and leading young minds. He affirmed his appreciation of the responsibility of formulating youthful character in an era beset with such great world problems. "It is with humility and with faith in the future of Reed college that I accept the trust which has been bestowed upon me," said Dr. Scholz.

quantity and fostered broad spiritual and humanistic vision.

Fundamental Problems Told.
President Suzzallo made clear the distinction between the former conception of the college as an institution dominated by idealism and the present-day college which combines idealism and realism in education. "Human ideals may be realized only when they are projected upon the facts controlling the behavior of men and women," he said. "The menace of modern civilization is over-specialization. Men have lost their mutual interest and manifest a lack of sympathy in the affairs of their fellows." President Suzzallo outlined the three fundamental problems before the modern college as that of making men appreciative of their fellow men, the destruction of public dependency upon economic leaders and the production of citizens of intelligence, wisdom and good taste.

Realism to Be Recognized.
"Education must have its roots in the soil. Education divorced from life is sterile, abstract and doctrinaire," declared President Scholz. "It shall be Reed's aim to combine idealism with realism in education, to project ideals upon the actual facts of life."

"Liberal Education" was the subject of President Scholz' inaugural address. "Liberal Education" he defined as the education of liberty, of a free mind, a free body and a free soul, endowed with a fitness for freedom.

While former President Foster at the laying of Reed's cornerstone spoke of the "Pioneer and the Frontier," President Scholz intimated that a fitting subject for his address would be the "Disappearance of Frontiers." "The frontiers are gone," he asserted. "We are now a world of economically interdependent nations, a commonwealth of neighbors. We have arrived at the second chapter of human development when history will deal increasingly with human relationships."

World Task Faced.

Political and economical standardization have been achieved but the greatest world problem, that of the reconciliation of races, cultures, and unrestricted religions is yet unsolved, according to the Reed president. This problem is most keenly felt upon the Pacific coast and Reed must train men and women of intellects broad enough to cope with it.

Outlining the future course of Reed college, President Scholz declared that henceforth instruction shall attempt to reconcile the human sciences with the natural sciences to obtain the perfection of education.

Harvard Greetings Spoken.

A. L. Mills, welcoming Dr. Scholz on behalf of the citizens of Portland, also brought the greetings of fellowship from Harvard. Dr. F. L. Griffin, representing the Reed faculty, assured the new president of the fullest co-operation. "In President Scholz," said Dr. Griffin, "Reed has secured a leader who will perpetuate those ideals upon which the college was founded." Dean Webster of the Reed Alumni association and Forrest Foster, president of the student body, voiced similar sentiments. St. Rev. W. T. Sumner opened the impressive ceremonies with an invocation, and following the benediction by Rev. Thomas Lamb Elliot, the programme was closed with a recessional. Following the inauguration Dr. Scholz was guest at a reception in Anna Mann cottage.

HEROIC FEAT PERFORMED

Canby Youth Saves His Companion

From Drowning.

OREGON CITY, Ore., June 10.—(Special.)—Ashel Mack, 17, of Canby, has been mentioned locally as a candidate for a Carnegie medal as result of saving Floyd Neff, also of Canby, from drowning in the Molalla river near Good's bridge. The river is at a high stage, and the feat is said to have shown unusual courage.

Robbers Are Pursued.

Two nervous young bandits, masked and armed with a nicked revolver, were chased for two miles on the east side last night by O. W. Withrow, 821 East Ash street, after they had held him up at Twenty-seventh and East Ash streets and robbed him of $12. Following their success the pair jumped into an automobile and sped away. Withrow saved he kept them in sight for two miles and then lost track of them.

Tobacco farmers of Canada are preparing for a 60,000,000-pound crop this year, which should have a total value of more than $15,000,000. Ontario last year produced 21,688,590 pounds on 20,114 acres.

"WHEN DAWN CAME"

CAME TODAY!

"Who Pays for Life's Folly?"

Here is a story of men and women that follows from New York to California, and tells of temptation, lust, degradation, but final happiness.

It's a big half-million-dollar production that has been called the year's biggest attraction.

Read these criticisms:

"When Dawn Came" is beyond doubt the greatest motion picture the editor had ever seen. We advise all our readers to go and see this picture.—Dramatic Mirror.

"This is the sort of production that will appeal to every class. It is a picture for the masses, and is a story of life as it really is. It has an entertainment value that will make a booster of everyone who sees it. Scenically it is beautiful.—Exhibitors' Trade Review.
