BLUE SUNDAY SCARE IS DECLARED BOGEY

Preacher Says Agitation Was Begun as Propaganda.

THEATER MEN BLAMED

Amusement Magnates Said to Have Started Campaign to Protect Business Profits.

That the present agitation over Sunday observance was instigated by the amusement magnates and that the "specter of Puritan sabbath observance stalked forth from the theater manager's office," was the charge made by Rev. Owen T. Day, pastor of Arleta Baptist church, in his sermon last night on "What About the Blue Laws?"

"The attempt to place the stigma of Puritan blue laws upon the effort to safeguard the Christian sabbath is both malicious and dishonest," said the pastor. No accredited organization has urged or has any intention of presenting any such legislation. The bogey of puritanism has been sent forth simply to confuse the issue. The present agitation over Sunday observance was instigated by the amusement magnates, who foresaw that the abuses they effected during the war must necessarily meet with adjustments during the sober days of reconstruction. No definite legislation had been advocated when the specter of Puritan sabath observance stalked forth from the theater manager's office. He feared that something would be done and began an active propaganda against any such action to put off the time of its enforcement.

Alliance Is Target.

"The organization which bears the weight of the attack is the Lord's Day Alliance of America. Its object, as stated by its secretary, Harry L. Bowlby, is 'to defend and preserve the Lord's day as a day of rest and worship, and to enunciate and urge one day of rest in seven for all the masses.' The real issue is, shall the commercialized amusement magnates be given the Christian sabbath for the extenstion of their particular business? Consistency demands that if they are to enjoy this privilege other business organizations must be given the privilege of using the day as they see fit, for the advantage of their own firms. Why allow these men to capitalize a rest day and a day of worship which we compel industrial organizations to recognize?

"The amusement magnate's answer is that to interfere with their Sunday business is in defiance of personal liberty. Here is the old war horse of the liquor interest on parade again. His perceptible limp is evidence of this moral spavin. He will not go far. Every thinking man knows that each step in the progress of civilization means the curtailment of some unjustifiable personal liberty.

Defense Held Fraud.

"The next argument put forth is that to stop Sunday sports would be a calamity to the physical life of the nation. The knife in the bogey is commercialism. The church stands for the better physical development of the people in any worthy manner. But let the amusement organizations eliminate the profits from their business and we shall soon see the extent of their interest in the physical welfare of the people. It took baseball interests in one eastern city just two weeks to exhaust their interest and enthusiasm in profitless baseball for soldiers and sailors."

INFIDELITY BLAME PLACED

False Interpretations by Pastors Said to Have Worked Injury.

"Public opinion has not rejected the Bible, but it has rejected many old opinions of what the Bible teaches," said Rev. George H. Bennett, pastor of Patton Methodist church, in his morning sermon yesterday on "The Cause of Infidelity."

"Why has the church lost its grip on the public? That it has done so seems hardly a debatable question. It is not due, as cynics so often affirm, to lack of piety and morality in the church," he said.

"Public apathy toward the church is the reaction against the great conflict of opinion among 180 sects sounded on the Bible. The denominations ought to cast aside non-essentials and get together. It is due also to the fact that many preachers of all demoninations insist on teaching doctrines the thinking public has long ago discarded. Public opinion has not rejected the Bible, but it has rejected many old opinions of what the Bible teaches.

"Some preachers are still proclaiming that God created the world out of nothing, and the universe thus created was made in six literal days; Adam was the founder of the human race, the rainbow was created at the time of the flood, and the sun and moon actually ceased their motions (apparent motions in the heavens) at the command of Joshua; God actually inspired unjust laws and commands, as well as just, in his revelations to mankind; miracle working by prayer, irrespective of endowment of spiritual gifts, is open to all Christians; every word of the Bible was divinely inspired; everything in it must be taken literally—and whoever does not believe all this is doomed to everlasting fire.

"That class of preachers cannot understand that their interpretations are false. Belief in such dogmas is not essential to salvation, and they are not articles of religion in the orthodox church. Public opinion recognizes truth is both scientific and orthodox. It recognizes the essential from the non-essential, though such preachers do not. It holds all truths sacred, as God's truths—whether in botany, geology, anatomy, archaeology, or in morals and religion. There is no conflict between them.

"Jesus said: 'The children of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light.' The public is wiser than such religious teachers. The world will never be won to Christ by preaching untenable opinions already rejected by the enlightened public, whether in religion or science. The wise preacher will turn away from such dogmas. He will seek better interpretations of the Bible and science, and turn away from non-essentials—for it is his duty to win sinners as well as edify saints.

"Public opinion accepts the doctrine of God; inspiration of the Bible; redemption through Christ; rewards and penalties under God's government—in fact, all the fundamentals of Christianity. But it decisively rejects nonessential and untenable views of the Bible and science. It is high time the pulpit takes notice."

DISARMING TOPIC OF SERMON

Rev. Thomas Jenkins Urges Move Toward Peace.

At the end of a sermon on "Disarmament," preached yesterday morning at St. David's Episcopal church, by Rev. Thomas Jenkins, the latter said: "I wish that all present would stand, who believe that the world should disarm."

Nearly every member of the congregation stood, except about a half dozen people. Two of these, interviewed afterward said they did not stand, in reply to Mr. Jenkins' appeal, because they were taken too much by surprise.

Throughout the late world war, Rev. Mr. Jenkins, who was born in England, enthusiastically supported the cause of the entente allies, and now that this world-war is finished, he takes the ground that the world powers should disarm. That accomplished, he says, there would be no more need for armies or navies, except small forces for police duty.

"In the ideal sense," said the preacher, "there could be no war. Consequently, there would be no more need of armaments. But, remember we are not living yet, ideally. Every well organized city has a police force, but surely no one wants to argue that these police forces exist only to fight? They are there to keep order and to protect property. The time has actually arrived when in our hearts we believe in a sane use of an international army and navy."

The preacher sketched from scripture the life of Jesus, and pictured the rest that came from the words: "Blessed are the peacemakers."

"Christianity teaches us to love one another," proceeded Mr. Jenkins, "of course, it is a life of sacrifice, in which there is no self. It must be a difficult religion for the selfish, the self-willed. A recent writer stated that the United States government for every dollar it receives, spends 80 cents for past wars and preparing for wars that are to come. A naval writer says that the cost of a first-class battleship, even unarmed, is more than $22,000,000. We have many such battleships building. Suppose we put these millions of dollars to a better use—to the amelioration of working and living conditions, care of the sick, the infirm, the aged, for churches and hospitals?

"Would this change of policy toward world peace not usher in a better state of living? It is idle to say that continued war and preparation for more war bring us liberty. A great American general once said that war is hell. There is no liberty in hell."

AMERICA'S DUTY IS OUTLINED

Dr. Stansfield Says She Should Propagate Principles.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church last night Dr. Joshua Stansfield spoke on America's duty to herself and others.

"Duty is that which is due from one to another," said Dr. Stansfield. "Duty grounds itself in human relationships. One's relation to God, to family, to men, to movements and causes, and to state, and nation, and peoples and nations, makes the sum total of human duty.

"Toward God man's duty is to be religious, to his family filial, to his state and nation patriotic and loyal to human kind, to be neighborly and serviceful, and to nations and peoples outside to bring to them and for them the best of life as he knows it.

"We have heard much and we know something of the duty of the strong. 'Ye that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak.'

"That is a highest law and first duty of Christian life and character.

"What, then, is the duty of educated, rich, free, strong, mighty America?

"First, to herself, that she appreciates fully the principles underlying her own life and history, namely 'God-given human rights,' such as 'life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness,' and personal and political liberty and representative government guaranteed by constitution, and second, that she practice and propagate these same American principles and human rights to and for all others. It is true of a people and nation as of an individual, 'no man liveth to himself,' and 'whosoever will save his life shall lose it, but whosoever will lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it.'—Luke ix:24."
