Prosecution's Case Against Rector Approaches End.

C. N. HUGGINS IS GRILLED

Knowledge of Request That Defendant Resign as Price of Dismissing Suit Denied.

Witnesses will take the stand this morning, it was expected, in the suit of Episcopal school trustees, diocese of Oregon, against Dr. A. A. Morrison. Charles E. Cochran, attorney for the prosecution, said at the close of yesterday's afternoon session he felt sure he would close his case formally this morning, but asked the opportunity to put on more witnesses if a study of his notes overnight disclosed such need.

Bishop Sumner asked Dr. Morrison what he paid for the Bland Herring property, which transaction forms the basis of the suit against Dr. Morrison, according to the evidence introduced yesterday.

Answer Declared Denied.

Dr. Morrison is alleged to have replied it was none of the bishop's affair nor none of the board of trustees' business. This was information contained in a so-called secret document that held in a general way the basic reasons for the action brought in court. It was introduced in evidence, signed by Bishop Sumner, John E. H. Simpson, C. N. Huggins and J. W. Ganong. It was believed desirable to keep this cause of action statement separate from the minutes of board meetings because it was expected, it was said, the matter would be cleared up in a reasonable time.

Bishop Sumner was said to have repeated his question, but an answer was denied.

Then, according to this document, identified by Mr. Ganong, Bishop Sumner asked where the 50 acres of walnut trees were that, according to the contract of the Walnut Grove company with the school trustees, should have been planted and tinned upon the tract sold to the church.

Matter Left to Partner.

Dr. Morrison is alleged to have replied he had left that matter to the hands of his partner, E. E. Morgan, and the latter had, apparently, not done his duty.

"But you personally guaranteed the planting of 50 acres of walnut trees and their care until they reached bearing age," said Bishop Sumner, according to the memorandum.

Dr. Morrison is alleged to have replied that he supposed he had done so. Moreover, he had felt for a long time that the board of trustees had not had an entirely square deal in the transaction and that it was not getting enough land for the money it was paying. He did not feel right about it at the time, but could not himself control the situation.

He got his affairs in shape, it was related, he felt he might give the board more land or in some other way adjust the matters to the mutual satisfaction of the board members and himself.

Land Reported Divided.

C. N. Huggins, secretary of the board of directors, testified that the document set forth, as above, the meat of the conversation between Dr. Morrison and Bishop Sumner at a board meeting on May 12, 1918, and that then the tract of 50 acres supposedly planted to walnuts was growing oak.

It was testified that the final disposition of the land involved in the deal now complained of resulted in a 50-50 split between Dr. Morrison and his partner, E. E. Morgan, whereby each got about 275 acres, the school trustees being left out of this apportionment.

Another confidential report, made at a board meeting in May, 1917, figured in the case yesterday. Dan Malarkey, of counsel for Dr. Morrison, asked that this, which was a sort of preliminary statement of causes for the suit against Dr. Morrison, be produced in the suit. Charles E. Cochran, for the plaintiffs, said he did not have this report, of a highly confidential nature, and if he did he would not produce it.

Mr. Huggins Questioned.

C. N. Huggins, when testifying, said this report was not filed with him as secretary and that he had made no effort to obtain it for purposes of the present litigation.

Attorney Malarkey asked some direct questions of Secretary Huggins yesterday afternoon.

"You know that Bishop Sumner demanded that Dr. Morrison resign as the price of dismissing this suit, don't you?"

"No," said Mr. Huggins, "I do not." "Bishop Sumner is a rather cocky young fellow himself, isn't he?"

As to that the witness did not go on record positively.

In the morning session J. W. Ganong, on the witness stand for the prosecution, undergoing cross-examination by the defense, admitted he had, in a conversation with J. B. Kerr and W. C. Alvord, vestrymen of Trinity Episcopal church, intimated that if Dr. Morrison would resign as secretary of Trinity, the present suit against him would be dropped.

Resignation Reported Wanted.

These two vestrymen, it was said, alarmed at charges brought against Dr. Morrison, had gone to Mr. Ganong, a school trustee, and asked what it was all about. He was alleged to have told them, with some show of authority, that Dr. Morrison's resignation was more desired than a financial recompense to the school trustees.

Attorney Malarkey asked Mr. Huggins if he was under the domination of Dr. Morrison in acting on this land deal. He replied that he was not. Was he under the domination of Bishop Scadding? Not that he knew of.

"What do you mean, then, Mr. Huggins," asked the attorney, "in signing this complaint in which it is set forth that the board of trustees was under the domination and influence of Dr. Morrison and those associated with him and relied upon this statement in making this deal?"

ly the city council will parallel closely the car lines. This means a direct attack on the revenues of the two car systems.

The chamber of commerce committee, headed by Benjamin Holt, proposed that the chamber file a petition immediately with the state department of public works requesting a change in streetcar fare rates so that five tickets might be sold for 35 cents, and single fares for 8 cents, providing the city would agree to keep the jitneys off the street.

Benjamin Holt stated that the compromise had been agreed to by the street car companies and that he was confident they would not offer opposition to filing the petition with the state public works department.

The council flatly refused all proposals.

Unidentified Person Suggests Council License Street Criers.

letter is timed to come before the council on the date it will take up the matter of increasing license fees on second-hand shoes, junk dealers and a number of other occupations as a means of gathering revenue to meet the needs of an expense account that refuses to deflate.

Abrahamson's suggestion, officially tabulated as "communication of A. Abrahamson re licenses for camp meetings, etc.," will go before the council Wednesday.

It states: "City council: Why not license and make pay a fee the holly rollers and other gangs which annoy the public on the streets with their crying until late in the night. A. Abrahamson."
