

WASHINGTON LABOR TRAPS VANDERVEER

President Short Is Upheld by Overwhelming Vote.

STATE CONVENTION ENDS

I. W. W. and Legal Bureau of Seattle Council Attacked by Head of Organization.

VANCOUVER, Wash., July 14.—(Special).—The stand of President William Short of the Washington State Federation of Labor against the I. W. W., George Vanderveer and the legal bureau of the Seattle Central Labor Council was sustained here tonight by an overwhelming majority in the state labor convention.

As a climax to the deliberations of the convention, a communication was received from the Seattle Central Labor Council asking that George Vanderveer as head of the legal bureau be allowed to appear on the floor of the convention and refute the charges made against the bureau by President Short. The latter reaffirmed his stand against the bureau and predicted that in the near future the bureau would be repudiated by the Seattle council. A motion to ignore the request of the Seattle council was put before the convention and passed with only one dissenting vote.

Bremerton Gets Convention. Bremerton was tonight chosen as the 1922 convention city. Phil Pearl of Seattle was called upon to prove his charges that certain business houses which had men prominent in the labor movement on their boards of directors were using these men's names to defraud the members of labor organizations who bought stock in the enterprises.

Pearl alluded frequently to a statement made yesterday that the convention would adjourn on Wednesday at 10 o'clock. He said that he was perfectly willing to go to jail if the convention does not believe me," Pearl said.

"Nobody wants to look Phil up in jail," President Short replied. "If ever he is locked up it will be in an entirely different institution."

Pearl's Charges Answered. At the end of Pearl's address President Short, taking the floor, replied to Pearl's charges himself. He said that Pearl's statements were nothing more nor less than a play on words and that "he was carrying on a campaign of lying charges."

Mr. Short was followed by William Swenson, a member of the Union Record organization, who said that "such snakes as George F. Vanderveer and Phil Pearl were seeking the overthrow of the union record."

Charges Held Groundless. A committee appointed to investigate the charges against the management of the paper reported that the charges were groundless and recommended that stock in the paper be sold to labor organizations throughout the state instead of vesting the control with the Seattle Labor Council, which now owns 51 per cent of the stock.

Pearl, representing an investigating committee of the Seattle council which had brought charges against Editor Ault and the management, immediately rose in defense of his committee's findings, which he said had been accepted by the Seattle council. He charged Ault with investing his money which he received in salary from the Union Record in capitalist enterprises and with using the paper had too many employees and that these employees did not take their work within a few days of payment was accused of being lax in collections of bills.

Editor Denies Charges. Editor Ault was present and he specifically denied each charge brought by Pearl. He declared the paper was being attacked because it was not radical enough and because there were four or five men who were attempting to wrest the power from the labor leaders and were using the Union Record as a basis for their attack.

A protest from the culinary crafts against the use of the St. Elmo hotel, which was declared to be unfair to union labor, as headquarters for the convention, was rejected and referred to the executive board.

The convention closed tonight after choosing Bremerton as the 1922 convention city. Vanderveer also put in a bid for the convention, but was defeated by a vote of about ten to one.

The new crew will not be as large as the others.

Railroad shipments during the same period included 172,996 bushels of wheat and 847,430 barrels of flour."

Expenses of administration for the full 12 months' period amounted to $115.80 and were confined to traveling expenses and office supplies. The transportation expenditures reached $109.65 and those for office needs were $6.15.

ROAD LOCATING IS BEGUN Contract to Be Let for Work Between Ethel and Mayfield.

CHEHALIS, Wash., July 14.—(Special).—Word was received by Representative A. S. Allen, from James Allen, superior of highway work, that a state locating party is at work between Ethel and Mayfield and as soon as the estimates and location are finished and right-of-way matters closed up the state will let a contract for the improvement of the roads in this district. Mr. Allen said the state department will not do any paving this year in the Morton district.

The improvement of the road east from the Pacific highway over the national park highway is of much interest locally because of the increasing traffic into eastern Lewis county. A mill is being paved by the state on the Pacific highway on the Jackson prairie.

LEGIONAIRES FIGHT FOR MEETING PLACE

Wenatchee in Maneuver to Land 1922 Convention.

BONUS STAND CRITICISED

Washington State Commander Declares Veterans Want Reasonable State of Preparedness.

HOQUIAM, Wash., July 14.—(Special).—Skirmishing for the convention city next year of the legion posts of the state began this afternoon in the second business session of the convention when E. W. Robertson, Spokane, offered an amendment to the report of the rules and order committee asking change in representation for voting on national committees and national delegates. Present representation is one vote for each post on delegates and on committees and one vote for each 100 members. Robertson would make the voting on both the same, one vote for each 200 or major fraction, thereof and one for each post. The proposal was defeated.

General opinion seemed to be that Spokane and Wenatchee were working together to land the convention for Wenatchee next year. Spokane has a land reclamation project in a resolution and needs help to get approval for it. Malcolm Douglas, prosecuting attorney of Seattle, moved for adoption of the amendment. This brought the opposition that Wenatchee was working with Hainier Noble post.

Lieutenant-Governor Speaks. W. J. Coyle, lieutenant-governor, in addressing the body briefly, said "machinations" were being practiced by some members and urged that representation remain as at present. He said that for the best interests of legion members the size of post should not be considered, nor the district in which it is situated. Fies, commander of the best interest in the city is shown with headquarters opened by Bremerton, Everett, Wenatchee, Pullman and Walla Walla.

The contest for state commander will be spirited, for it became a three-cornered fight last night when C. D. Cunningham of Centralia was entered. He won state recognition and a warm place in the regard of the state legion when assisting an special prosecutor of the Centralia armistice day murderers.

Bonus Stand Criticised. Appointment of most of the committees for the convention work was completed today. Robertson of Wenatchee heads the resolutions body; Phillip Tisdell, Seattle councilman, is chairman of the Americanization committee; Arthur Younger, Seattle, is chairman of ways and means; A. S. Krosky, Centralia, convention, and E. K. Brown, Ellensburg, legislative. They are to report tomorrow afternoon and Saturday morning.

Tom Swale, state commander, in his annual address, criticised President Short's stand on the bonus legislation and declared congress would be "betraying" the ex-servicemen if they permitted this congress to disarmament, he said: "Men who have served with Uncle Sam stand for reasonable state of preparedness. Previous state and national conventions have endorsed unqualifiedly the national guard and such programs."

Swale recommended a state news service for the legion similar to the national legion service, and said the Pacific Legion magazine as a private enterprise is unprofitable.

OFFICERS BUYING SABERS

ORDER RESTORING SAM BROWNE BELT EFFECTIVE.

Modification of Regulation of Arms at Military Functions Not Contemplated at Camp Lewis.

TACOMA, Wash., July 14.—(Special).—Many officers at Camp Lewis are investing in sabers since the announcement that the Sam Browne belt would make its official debut on this side of the Atlantic. At present the saber, while a part of the prescribed equipment for an officer, is not worn in camp or field, being confined to post usage. It is expected that the saber will replace the revolver when officers are under arms, but no such order is contemplated, according to Colonel J. D. Leitch, chief of staff.

Regulations regarding the wearing of sabers is up to the camp commander to a certain extent. Colonel Leitch says that Major General Charles H. Muir does not plan to modify regulations existing at present. The Portlands are to don the saber at military functions.

It is probable, however, that the sabers will become more in evidence at social affairs hereafter where the local specifies the uniform to be worn. The order restoring the Sam Browne belt takes effect tomorrow.

RAIL MEN VISIT RICHLAND Proposed Construction to Give Wenatchee Four Roads.

RICHLAND, Wash., July 14.—(Special).—A party of officials of the Wenatchee Southern Railway company spent the day in Richland as guests of the Commercial club. The visitors were taken over the road surveys made through this district. The number of years ago. The right-of-way would be used in the construction of the proposed road.

This will connect Richland with Hanford on the north and Kennewick to the south and give a much needed means of outlet for the district which is rapidly becoming one of the best known sections of the state.

ASTORIAN ACCUSES WIFE

WOMAN CAUGHT IN ROOM WITH RIVER BOAT OFFICER.

Mrs. Ida Morgan, in Custody of Woman Operative, Permitted to Attend Sister's Funeral.

Mrs. Ida Morgan, wife of an Astoria merchant, attended her sister's funeral in Portland yesterday in company with a police officer because she was unable to procure bail to obtain her release from the city jail, whence she was taken shortly after midnight yesterday on a statutory charge preferred by her husband, L. J. Morgan.

In company with C. C. Turner, an officer of a river boat plying between Portland and Astoria, Mrs. Morgan was trapped in a room at the McIlroy hotel by the husband and a private detective, who called the police and had the pair arrested. They were occupying the same room and were registered as man and wife, the police allege.

After his wife had been taken to jail, Morgan declined to produce the bail which would procure her release, but when she told Judge Rossman that she had come to Portland to attend her sister's funeral, the judge arranged for her to attend the service in custody of a woman conductor from the women's protective division. After the sister had been laid to rest Mrs. Morgan was returned to the city jail.

Mr. Morgan told Deputy District Attorney Stockman that he had become suspicious of his wife's conduct several months ago, when her trips to Portland by boat became frequent. She never came except on the boat where Turner was working, Mr. Morgan said.

At the request of the two defendants Judge Rossman continued the hearing until Monday morning. Mr. Morgan left during the day for his home in Astoria, leaving his wife to obtain her release from jail the best way she could.

ATTACK ON CHILD DENIED

OVERSEAS VETERAN APPEARS TO ANSWER CHARGE.

Little Girl's Father Is Declared to Have Hit ex-Soldier Without Provocation.

Phillip Burg, overseas veteran, voluntarily admitted to the district attorney's office yesterday afternoon and denied that he had attempted on Wednesday afternoon to attack a year-old Renona Johnson, who was picking berries with her parents near Greesham. Burg exhibited a black and swollen eye, which he said Renona's father had inflicted without cause.

Burg, according to his story to District Attorney Hammesley, has lived in Portland since 1908, and has never been in trouble of any sort. He presented his honorable discharge from the army.

He said that he went to Greesham to pick berries with his brother. Johnson was also picking berries and, through some trouble over the berry picking, got into an argument with Burg's older brother. Burg said he had had no part in the controversy, which was a trivial matter.

A day or so afterward Burg said that Johnson came to him and charged him with attacking his daughter and struck him in the eye. Burg said he did not wish to fight with the older man, but that Johnson followed him and that he finally hit Johnson with a fruiting tree, which he held in his hands after Johnson said he was going to kill him.

Burg will appear in court at Greesham this morning. Mr. Hammesley will go from the district attorney's office to investigate the case.

The Women's Advertising club has launched a plan for welcoming to the club and to the city the transient women who come to Portland. Invitation cards will be left at the hotels the preceding day.
