

LOYD GEORGE PLAN FOR BELFAST

Proposals for Submission to De Valera Drafted.

KING IS KEPT INFORMED

Cabinet Has Trouble Working Out Financial End of Negotiations, but Finally Succeeds.

LONDON, July 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—The British cabinet sat for two hours today and a half this evening considering the Irish plans, after which Premier Lloyd George went to Buckingham palace and laid before the king proposals for submission to Eamon de Valera.

The prime minister presided at the cabinet council held in the house of commons and the king was present.

The financial arrangements in the new offer had given considerable trouble to the ministers, it was understood, but were agreed to.

Whether Mr. and Mrs. George has succeeded in overcoming the reluctance of Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, to join in a tripartite conference was not known, but an announcement that Sir James is coming to London again, probably next week, was considered a favorable omen, and in any case no hint of a breakdown in the negotiations is apparent.

General Jan Christian Smuts, premier of South Africa, is expected to return to Ireland tomorrow.

The meeting between Mr. De Valera and Premier Lloyd George tomorrow probably will be their last before the return of the Irish delegates to Dublin.

Following their return to Ireland, a meeting of the Irish republican parliament in all likelihood will be convened to give the republican leader and his associates the final say on the new proposals.

De Valera to Return Home. The meeting between Mr. De Valera and Premier Lloyd George tomorrow probably will be their last before the return of the Irish delegates to Dublin.

It was understood that Mr. De Valera then would go to Belfast for a meeting with Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, who is expected to return to Ireland tomorrow.

DALE WINTER SCORNS SUMMER FURS, LIKES GREAT OUTDOORS

Irene Thinks Women Dress More Sensibly Than Ever Before Because of Own Choice and Not From Legislative Suggestion.

BY LEONE CASS BAER. DALE WINTER, who is Irene, the bright and only shining star in the musical piece of that name, said she'd like to make the entire wardrobe body luxuriantly in the sunshine flooding the veranda at the Portland hotel.

"To my mind, it's just heavenly," she said, basking her slim young body luxuriantly in the sunshine flooding the veranda at the Portland hotel.

"I just love the sunshine when it shines on both sides the fence at once. We are going to be here for one week, and I plan to stay outdoors in this exhilarating air all I can. I notice that in common with other cities, Portland has its share of women who wear furs on warm days.

"I try to stay so busy that I haven't time to hear gossip. I am absolutely happy when I'm not in my dressing room and learn from watching the others. I learn, and then I reject as not good or accept as good whatever I see."

Outdoor Life Enjoyed. "I'm an omnivorous reader, but not for fiction. I read essays, impressions, research articles, constructive and destructive things that build and strengthen me mentally. The outdoors and the Golden Rule are my gods."

"I don't care if it does," declared Mrs. Patrick, a sister of Dr. Brumfield's, who is Irene's neighbor.

DETECTIVE METHOD ROUSES SENATOR

Sluething on Miners' Activities Denounced.

COERCION IS RECALLED

Witness Testifies Men Whipped, Shot At and Killed for Refusal to Join Union.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 20.—Aroused by a description of methods used by private detectives in obtaining information about activities of union miners, Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, at today's hearing before the committee investigating disorders in the mine in W. Va. field, declared it was not "right" for men to work themselves into the confidence of union officials and then to report to detective agencies on what was transpiring.

C. E. Lively had testified that while a member of the United Mine Workers he served as an agency operative in behalf of mine owners. During the last nine years, he said, he had acted as a confidential man, and attended conventions as a delegate, and all the while he made regular reports to the detective agency.

Then the Tennessee senator inquired of Lively whether the miners would have let him in into their meetings if they had known he was a detective.

Senator Hays Practices. "Let me say," Lively retorted. "They would have turned me over to the undertakers."

S. D. Avis, counsel for the operators, growled that the department justice resorted to the practice of having its agents join unions and other organizations in order to report developments.

BODY IS HELD RUSSELL'S

CORONER'S JURY DECLARES LABORER MURDER VICTIM.

Many Witnesses Heard—Charred Remnants Identified by Some as Dr. Brumfield's.

for a number of years. The last time he saw Russell, he said, he was wearing a blue overalls and a vest and light-colored hat. The hat, which was picked up near the scene of the wreck, was identified as the one Russell was wearing on Sunday.

A report from James Hunter, Portland fingerprint expert, was given the jury by M. E. Ritter, coroner. Mr. Hunter stated that the fingerprints were entirely unsatisfactory.

The print taken from the Russell cabin was too old, and in spite of the effort to bring out the markings nothing could be learned which would assist in the case.

The inquest opened this morning with two witnesses testifying in attention in the courtroom.

Women Often in Tears. Seated at one side of the room was Mrs. Fred Smith of Willis Creek, a sister of Dennis Russell, surrounded by Ed and T. Russell, and a number of the friends of the family.

Both Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Brumfield were frequently in tears. Coroner Ritter made a statement to the jury reporting the findings of the body beneath the burning car. He described its position and the conditions surrounding the wreck.

"The decapitated body was about three feet from the overturned car," he informed the jury, "and when I first stepped over it, I saw it. As near as I could tell the body itself was not in the flames but was burned by the intense heat from the car."

Early the next morning, when he returned to the scene of the wreck and there found a silver watch which has since been found to be the property of Dennis Russell. I found a notebook and in it was the name of Dennis Russell, together with a list of names of other persons who had been in contact with the department by the last legislature without any extra expense.

TROUT CATCH COSTLY ONE Baker Man Pays Fine for Exceeding Legal Limit.

Deputy Game Warden Houston interviewed with the plans of Frank King of Baker, who evidently was bent on cutting the cost of living the coming winter by salting down trout. Houston arrested King at East lake near La Pine, Or., Monday for having too many fish in his possession at one time.

King had 150 pounds of trout. He pleaded guilty to the charge of violating the game law and paid a fine of $25 assessed by Justice Clark at La Pine.

C. E. Enders and Claude Kelsey of Baker also paid fines of $25 each for exceeding the limit of trout.

They were arrested by Deputy Game Warden Hazelton in Rye valley, following the complaint of locomotive engineers that the shooting of taglines was becoming a common occurrence along the railroad right of way.

Buffalo Herd Gain Large. CALGARY, Alta.—The increase in the number of buffaloes in Buffalo park, Wainwright, Alberta, has reached such proportions that it is proposed to slaughter the animals this year. It is expected that a considerable sum will be realized from the sale of the meat, hides and heads.

Serious Offense Charged. SALEM, Or., July 20.—(Special.)—Richard Burton, about 24 years old, was arrested at Seaside today on a serious charge preferred by Carson, district attorney. It was said that information which resulted in Burton's arrest was obtained from a 15-year-old girl.
