

IRISH CONFERENCE ENDS FOR PRESENT De Valera to Consult With Followers in Dublin. NEW OVERTURES PLANNED

Communicate is Issued Saying That Basis for Further Debate Has Not Been Reached.

LONDON, July 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—The basis for a conference to attempt a settlement of the Irish question has not yet been found, it was announced in the official communiqué issued after a conference today between Eamonn De Valera and Premier Lloyd George, who have been conferring with the object of finding such a basis.

Mr. De Valera and his colleagues, added the communiqué, will return to Dublin tomorrow and he will communicate with Mr. Lloyd George after further discussions with his followers there.

After the conference with the prime minister, Mr. De Valera and Robert C. Barton and Art O'Brien, who accompanied him to Downing street, drove in a motor car to their hotel. Mr. Barton, however, accompanied by Secretary Childers of the Irish delegation, immediately returned to Downing street, where it required an hour's further discussion before an agreement was reached on the text of the communiqué.

The Irish delegation submitted the first draft of the communiqué, to which Lloyd George withheld his assent. His substitute failed to meet with the approval of the Irish representatives and a lengthy exchange ensued before a draft mutually satisfactory was drawn.

The text of the communiqué, which was issued first by the Irish delegation, being withheld at Downing street for more than half an hour, is as follows: "Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. De Valera had a further conversation at 11:50 o'clock this evening, lasting about an hour. The basis for a further conference has not yet been found. Mr. De Valera has arranged to return to Ireland tomorrow and to communicate with Mr. Lloyd George again after further discussion with his colleagues."

Lord Curzon hopeful. A hopeful view of the Irish peace negotiations was taken by Lord Curzon, the secretary for foreign affairs, in the house of lords tonight. It was the government's intention not to have an autumn session of parliament, Lord Curzon said in answer to a question; but if the Irish negotiations proved successful—and so far he was glad to say, they seemed charged with hope—it was reasonable that the assembling of parliament in the autumn might be necessary.

Irish Freedom Demanded. MANITOWOC, Wis., July 21.—"Justice demands a free Ireland," was the wording of a cablegram sent to Premier Lloyd George of England by the Wisconsin Free Irish League, in a convention following the adoption today of resolutions urging President Harding and congress to recognize the independence of the Irish republic.

PLANE'S ABILITY PROVED (Continued From First page.) the sinking ship and was given a cheer by the crew on the Hawaiian liner when he passed that vessel after he had headed his 2-1/2 propeller plane for Lanai field. General Menoher later sent him the following radio message: "Congratulations to you and entire aircraft brigade on your brilliant performance today."

With the completion of the Ostrifriesland, the air men during the month of joint bombing tests off the coast, have sent down by means of bombs practically every type of vessel, including a submarine, a destroyer, a cruiser and a dreadnaught. In addition, navy airmen found and bombed the old battleship Iowa while that craft was seeking to approach the coast from sea under radio control.

Denby Issues Statement. Soon after the Ostrifriesland disappeared, Secretary Denby of the navy department, with a admiral and Koonitz, chief of naval operations, and many other high naval officers, army officers and members of congress, had viewed the bombing from the naval transport Henderson, issued the following statement: "The plunger of the Ostrifriesland, when she sank after the terrific pounding of the last few days, ended one of the most remarkable and interesting series of experiments ever conducted. They have been practically perfect in co-ordination between the two services and have been characterized throughout by a fine spirit of comradeship. Scientific conclusions of the utmost value undoubtedly will result. One outstanding and a most admirable feature has been the splendid courage and skill of the airman. I congratulate them."

Bomb Held Real Menace. Major-General Charles F. Menoher, chief of the army air service, who was aboard the Henderson, declared in a statement that he did not think the sinking of the Ostrifriesland showed that the battleship was doomed, but that it did show that the aerial bomb constituted a real menace to capital ships which must be met.

"A cold, material fact has been demonstrated," he said. "That fact is that the battleship can be sunk by the aerial bomb. That's the real lesson of this attack on the battleship. It is to be viewed that as a cold, material fact and attack the problem accordingly."

"I have not changed my mind at all as to the result of the bombing maneuvers. I have always contended that the bomb did constitute a very grave menace to the capital ship and that extraordinary precautions had to be taken to meet the menace. That's the whole story."

SERVICE ATTACKED BY PHONE TESTER Results of Portland Investigation Announced. EX-EMPLOYEE ON STAND Long Waits Before Central Responds and Disconnections Before Conversation Ends.

(Continued From First Page.) you were making the test for the city influenced the majority of the subscribers to some extent" interrogated Attorney Shaw.

"No, I don't," she answered. "Many of them refused to answer my questions. The only one who did, I feared that by so doing they would have their telephone removed."

"I don't know," the witness stated. "Two or three of them did say that they were all right. One of them was an attorney in the downtown district."

Loggett Wait 137 Seconds. In connection with her test, Mrs. Johnson declared that the maximum time she waited before she was able to call was 137 seconds. She said that in making her test she had received only complaints which indicated unusual trouble, throwing aside the complaints which, from her telephone sufferer to some extent the poor service caused, appeared to her to be trivial and unavoidable.

The exhibit contained extracts from the 1920 report of the Washington public utility commission, in which it showed that the average time consumed before the operator responded for a number in telephone calls of small cities of the state was 4.28 while in Seattle the average time was 4.16. This test, it was explained, was made in 1913, shortly after the armistice had been signed and during an influenza epidemic.

During the week of her test which covered a period from June 29 to July 13, Mrs. Johnson told the commission that she had received 100 calls. Five visitors were arrested with him and bailed out at $25 each.

James Allen, itinerant laborer, 29 years old, was arrested with cocaine in his possession. Violet Kerns, 29 years old, was arrested at 2312 North Second street, charged with violation of the hotel ordinance. Bail was set at $100.

Mrs. S. Clarke, 35 years old, was taken at 323 1/2 First street, charged with disorderly conduct. Dora Duffy and Grace Wilkinson, negroes, were arrested at Eleventh and Hoyt streets and booked as vagrants.

GENERAL CUT FORECAST Reduction in Rediscount Rates All Over Country Expected. WASHINGTON, July 21.—Reductions in federal reserve rediscount rates throughout the country generally were indicated today by high administration officials as likely to follow soon upon the action of the reserve banks of New York, Boston, Philadelphia and San Francisco in bringing their rates down from 6 per cent to 5 1/2 per cent. Baillet was expressed that the readjustment of the rediscount rates would mean the reduction of 6 per cent on these rates to 6 1/2 per cent and to 5 1/2 per cent of those now 6 per cent.

A favorable reaction in the business situation throughout the country, administration officials said, could be expected as a result of lower levels, as this clear indication of easier money should stimulate industries and business to greater activity.

PILOT OF GOVERNOR DIES Captain's Appeal From Verdict of Negligence Yet Pending. SEATTLE, Wash., July 21.—Captain Henry Marden, veteran Pacific coast steamship master and pilot of the steamer Governor when that vessel sank off Port Townsend, Wash., last April 1, died at a hospital here last night after an illness of several months. He was born in Stockton, Me., in 1852.

Captain Marden's appeal from a decision of the local board of the steamboat inspection service finding him guilty of negligence in connection with the sinking of the Governor and suspending his pilot's license for one year is still pending.

Woman Hugs Patrolman, Praying Fervently. After Policeman Escapes, Moon-Drinking Crawl, But Is Rescued. WEDNESDAY night while they were doing their best to tame a wild woman, Motorcycle Patrolmen and Cases were themselves nearly reduced to submission. She spat in Cases' face and scratched Forken's glasses from his nose, breaking them. The luck continued last night when the pair answered a call at 214 1/2 First street, where Mrs. Sarah Call, 50 years old, hugged Case while she fervently prayed.

The call was sent in by a passerby who heard the woman screaming for help, and, fearing that murder was being done, the streets echoed the hideous warning of the siren. Mrs. Call, in company with Harry Wilson, 50 years old, had been toying with moonshine.

Case did not object to the prayer, but in combination with bad whiskey it proved stifling. While Forken searched for the room in order to rescue her, when the patrol wagon arrived she was unceremoniously pushed into the room and officers were in the street breathed more easily.

Both were lodged in jail. Mrs. Call booked as drunk and disorderly and Wilson charged with disorderly conduct.

Phone your want ads to The Oregonian. Main 7070, Automatic 880-35.

IRISH CONFERENCE ENDS FOR PRESENT De Valera to Consult With Followers in Dublin. NEW OVERTURES PLANNED

Communicate is Issued Saying That Basis for Further Debate Has Not Been Reached.

LONDON, July 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—The basis for a conference to attempt a settlement of the Irish question has not yet been found, it was announced in the official communiqué issued after a conference today between Eamonn De Valera and Premier Lloyd George, who have been conferring with the object of finding such a basis.

Mr. De Valera and his colleagues, added the communiqué, will return to Dublin tomorrow and he will communicate with Mr. Lloyd George after further discussions with his followers there.

After the conference with the prime minister, Mr. De Valera and Robert C. Barton and Art O'Brien, who accompanied him to Downing street, drove in a motor car to their hotel. Mr. Barton, however, accompanied by Secretary Childers of the Irish delegation, immediately returned to Downing street, where it required an hour's further discussion before an agreement was reached on the text of the communiqué.

The Irish delegation submitted the first draft of the communiqué, to which Lloyd George withheld his assent. His substitute failed to meet with the approval of the Irish representatives and a lengthy exchange ensued before a draft mutually satisfactory was drawn.

The text of the communiqué, which was issued first by the Irish delegation, being withheld at Downing street for more than half an hour, is as follows: "Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. De Valera had a further conversation at 11:50 o'clock this evening, lasting about an hour. The basis for a further conference has not yet been found. Mr. De Valera has arranged to return to Ireland tomorrow and to communicate with Mr. Lloyd George again after further discussion with his colleagues."

Lord Curzon hopeful. A hopeful view of the Irish peace negotiations was taken by Lord Curzon, the secretary for foreign affairs, in the house of lords tonight. It was the government's intention not to have an autumn session of parliament, Lord Curzon said in answer to a question; but if the Irish negotiations proved successful—and so far he was glad to say, they seemed charged with hope—it was reasonable that the assembling of parliament in the autumn might be necessary.

Irish Freedom Demanded. MANITOWOC, Wis., July 21.—"Justice demands a free Ireland," was the wording of a cablegram sent to Premier Lloyd George of England by the Wisconsin Free Irish League, in a convention following the adoption today of resolutions urging President Harding and congress to recognize the independence of the Irish republic.

PLANE'S ABILITY PROVED (Continued From First page.) the sinking ship and was given a cheer by the crew on the Hawaiian liner when he passed that vessel after he had headed his 2-1/2 propeller plane for Lanai field. General Menoher later sent him the following radio message: "Congratulations to you and entire aircraft brigade on your brilliant performance today."

With the completion of the Ostrifriesland, the air men during the month of joint bombing tests off the coast, have sent down by means of bombs practically every type of vessel, including a submarine, a destroyer, a cruiser and a dreadnaught. In addition, navy airmen found and bombed the old battleship Iowa while that craft was seeking to approach the coast from sea under radio control.

Denby Issues Statement. Soon after the Ostrifriesland disappeared, Secretary Denby of the navy department, with a admiral and Koonitz, chief of naval operations, and many other high naval officers, army officers and members of congress, had viewed the bombing from the naval transport Henderson, issued the following statement: "The plunger of the Ostrifriesland, when she sank after the terrific pounding of the last few days, ended one of the most remarkable and interesting series of experiments ever conducted. They have been practically perfect in co-ordination between the two services and have been characterized throughout by a fine spirit of comradeship. Scientific conclusions of the utmost value undoubtedly will result. One outstanding and a most admirable feature has been the splendid courage and skill of the airman. I congratulate them."

Bomb Held Real Menace. Major-General Charles F. Menoher, chief of the army air service, who was aboard the Henderson, declared in a statement that he did not think the sinking of the Ostrifriesland showed that the battleship was doomed, but that it did show that the aerial bomb constituted a real menace to capital ships which must be met.

"A cold, material fact has been demonstrated," he said. "That fact is that the battleship can be sunk by the aerial bomb. That's the real lesson of this attack on the battleship. It is to be viewed that as a cold, material fact and attack the problem accordingly."

"I have not changed my mind at all as to the result of the bombing maneuvers. I have always contended that the bomb did constitute a very grave menace to the capital ship and that extraordinary precautions had to be taken to meet the menace. That's the whole story."

IRISH CONFERENCE ENDS FOR PRESENT De Valera to Consult With Followers in Dublin. NEW OVERTURES PLANNED

Communicate is Issued Saying That Basis for Further Debate Has Not Been Reached.

LONDON, July 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—The basis for a conference to attempt a settlement of the Irish question has not yet been found, it was announced in the official communiqué issued after a conference today between Eamonn De Valera and Premier Lloyd George, who have been conferring with the object of finding such a basis.

Mr. De Valera and his colleagues, added the communiqué, will return to Dublin tomorrow and he will communicate with Mr. Lloyd George after further discussions with his followers there.

After the conference with the prime minister, Mr. De Valera and Robert C. Barton and Art O'Brien, who accompanied him to Downing street, drove in a motor car to their hotel. Mr. Barton, however, accompanied by Secretary Childers of the Irish delegation, immediately returned to Downing street, where it required an hour's further discussion before an agreement was reached on the text of the communiqué.

The Irish delegation submitted the first draft of the communiqué, to which Lloyd George withheld his assent. His substitute failed to meet with the approval of the Irish representatives and a lengthy exchange ensued before a draft mutually satisfactory was drawn.

The text of the communiqué, which was issued first by the Irish delegation, being withheld at Downing street for more than half an hour, is as follows: "Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. De Valera had a further conversation at 11:50 o'clock this evening, lasting about an hour. The basis for a further conference has not yet been found. Mr. De Valera has arranged to return to Ireland tomorrow and to communicate with Mr. Lloyd George again after further discussion with his colleagues."

Lord Curzon hopeful. A hopeful view of the Irish peace negotiations was taken by Lord Curzon, the secretary for foreign affairs, in the house of lords tonight. It was the government's intention not to have an autumn session of parliament, Lord Curzon said in answer to a question; but if the Irish negotiations proved successful—and so far he was glad to say, they seemed charged with hope—it was reasonable that the assembling of parliament in the autumn might be necessary.

Irish Freedom Demanded. MANITOWOC, Wis., July 21.—"Justice demands a free Ireland," was the wording of a cablegram sent to Premier Lloyd George of England by the Wisconsin Free Irish League, in a convention following the adoption today of resolutions urging President Harding and congress to recognize the independence of the Irish republic.

PLANE'S ABILITY PROVED (Continued From First page.) the sinking ship and was given a cheer by the crew on the Hawaiian liner when he passed that vessel after he had headed his 2-1/2 propeller plane for Lanai field. General Menoher later sent him the following radio message: "Congratulations to you and entire aircraft brigade on your brilliant performance today."

With the completion of the Ostrifriesland, the air men during the month of joint bombing tests off the coast, have sent down by means of bombs practically every type of vessel, including a submarine, a destroyer, a cruiser and a dreadnaught. In addition, navy airmen found and bombed the old battleship Iowa while that craft was seeking to approach the coast from sea under radio control.

Denby Issues Statement. Soon after the Ostrifriesland disappeared, Secretary Denby of the navy department, with a admiral and Koonitz, chief of naval operations, and many other high naval officers, army officers and members of congress, had viewed the bombing from the naval transport Henderson, issued the following statement: "The plunger of the Ostrifriesland, when she sank after the terrific pounding of the last few days, ended one of the most remarkable and interesting series of experiments ever conducted. They have been practically perfect in co-ordination between the two services and have been characterized throughout by a fine spirit of comradeship. Scientific conclusions of the utmost value undoubtedly will result. One outstanding and a most admirable feature has been the splendid courage and skill of the airman. I congratulate them."

Bomb Held Real Menace. Major-General Charles F. Menoher, chief of the army air service, who was aboard the Henderson, declared in a statement that he did not think the sinking of the Ostrifriesland showed that the battleship was doomed, but that it did show that the aerial bomb constituted a real menace to capital ships which must be met.

"A cold, material fact has been demonstrated," he said. "That fact is that the battleship can be sunk by the aerial bomb. That's the real lesson of this attack on the battleship. It is to be viewed that as a cold, material fact and attack the problem accordingly."

"I have not changed my mind at all as to the result of the bombing maneuvers. I have always contended that the bomb did constitute a very grave menace to the capital ship and that extraordinary precautions had to be taken to meet the menace. That's the whole story."

IRISH CONFERENCE ENDS FOR PRESENT De Valera to Consult With Followers in Dublin. NEW OVERTURES PLANNED

Communicate is Issued Saying That Basis for Further Debate Has Not Been Reached.

LONDON, July 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—The basis for a conference to attempt a settlement of the Irish question has not yet been found, it was announced in the official communiqué issued after a conference today between Eamonn De Valera and Premier Lloyd George, who have been conferring with the object of finding such a basis.

Mr. De Valera and his colleagues, added the communiqué, will return to Dublin tomorrow and he will communicate with Mr. Lloyd George after further discussions with his followers there.

After the conference with the prime minister, Mr. De Valera and Robert C. Barton and Art O'Brien, who accompanied him to Downing street, drove in a motor car to their hotel. Mr. Barton, however, accompanied by Secretary Childers of the Irish delegation, immediately returned to Downing street, where it required an hour's further discussion before an agreement was reached on the text of the communiqué.

The Irish delegation submitted the first draft of the communiqué, to which Lloyd George withheld his assent. His substitute failed to meet with the approval of the Irish representatives and a lengthy exchange ensued before a draft mutually satisfactory was drawn.

The text of the communiqué, which was issued first by the Irish delegation, being withheld at Downing street for more than half an hour, is as follows: "Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. De Valera had a further conversation at 11:50 o'clock this evening, lasting about an hour. The basis for a further conference has not yet been found. Mr. De Valera has arranged to return to Ireland tomorrow and to communicate with Mr. Lloyd George again after further discussion with his colleagues."

Lord Curzon hopeful. A hopeful view of the Irish peace negotiations was taken by Lord Curzon, the secretary for foreign affairs, in the house of lords tonight. It was the government's intention not to have an autumn session of parliament, Lord Curzon said in answer to a question; but if the Irish negotiations proved successful—and so far he was glad to say, they seemed charged with hope—it was reasonable that the assembling of parliament in the autumn might be necessary.

Irish Freedom Demanded. MANITOWOC, Wis., July 21.—"Justice demands a free Ireland," was the wording of a cablegram sent to Premier Lloyd George of England by the Wisconsin Free Irish League, in a convention following the adoption today of resolutions urging President Harding and congress to recognize the independence of the Irish republic.

PLANE'S ABILITY PROVED (Continued From First page.) the sinking ship and was given a cheer by the crew on the Hawaiian liner when he passed that vessel after he had headed his 2-1/2 propeller plane for Lanai field. General Menoher later sent him the following radio message: "Congratulations to you and entire aircraft brigade on your brilliant performance today."

With the completion of the Ostrifriesland, the air men during the month of joint bombing tests off the coast, have sent down by means of bombs practically every type of vessel, including a submarine, a destroyer, a cruiser and a dreadnaught. In addition, navy airmen found and bombed the old battleship Iowa while that craft was seeking to approach the coast from sea under radio control.

Denby Issues Statement. Soon after the Ostrifriesland disappeared, Secretary Denby of the navy department, with a admiral and Koonitz, chief of naval operations, and many other high naval officers, army officers and members of congress, had viewed the bombing from the naval transport Henderson, issued the following statement: "The plunger of the Ostrifriesland, when she sank after the terrific pounding of the last few days, ended one of the most remarkable and interesting series of experiments ever conducted. They have been practically perfect in co-ordination between the two services and have been characterized throughout by a fine spirit of comradeship. Scientific conclusions of the utmost value undoubtedly will result. One outstanding and a most admirable feature has been the splendid courage and skill of the airman. I congratulate them."

Bomb Held Real Menace. Major-General Charles F. Menoher, chief of the army air service, who was aboard the Henderson, declared in a statement that he did not think the sinking of the Ostrifriesland showed that the battleship was doomed, but that it did show that the aerial bomb constituted a real menace to capital ships which must be met.

"A cold, material fact has been demonstrated," he said. "That fact is that the battleship can be sunk by the aerial bomb. That's the real lesson of this attack on the battleship. It is to be viewed that as a cold, material fact and attack the problem accordingly."

"I have not changed my mind at all as to the result of the bombing maneuvers. I have always contended that the bomb did constitute a very grave menace to the capital ship and that extraordinary precautions had to be taken to meet the menace. That's the whole story."

IRISH CONFERENCE ENDS FOR PRESENT De Valera to Consult With Followers in Dublin. NEW OVERTURES PLANNED

Communicate is Issued Saying That Basis for Further Debate Has Not Been Reached.

LONDON, July 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—The basis for a conference to attempt a settlement of the Irish question has not yet been found, it was announced in the official communiqué issued after a conference today between Eamonn De Valera and Premier Lloyd George, who have been conferring with the object of finding such a basis.

Mr. De Valera and his colleagues, added the communiqué, will return to Dublin tomorrow and he will communicate with Mr. Lloyd George after further discussions with his followers there.

After the conference with the prime minister, Mr. De Valera and Robert C. Barton and Art O'Brien, who accompanied him to Downing street, drove in a motor car to their hotel. Mr. Barton, however, accompanied by Secretary Childers of the Irish delegation, immediately returned to Downing street, where it required an hour's further discussion before an agreement was reached on the text of the communiqué.

The Irish delegation submitted the first draft of the communiqué, to which Lloyd George withheld his assent. His substitute failed to meet with the approval of the Irish representatives and a lengthy exchange ensued before a draft mutually satisfactory was drawn.

The text of the communiqué, which was issued first by the Irish delegation, being withheld at Downing street for more than half an hour, is as follows: "Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. De Valera had a further conversation at 11:50 o'clock this evening, lasting about an hour. The basis for a further conference has not yet been found. Mr. De Valera has arranged to return to Ireland tomorrow and to communicate with Mr. Lloyd George again after further discussion with his colleagues."

Lord Curzon hopeful. A hopeful view of the Irish peace negotiations was taken by Lord Curzon, the secretary for foreign affairs, in the house of lords tonight. It was the government's intention not to have an autumn session of parliament, Lord Curzon said in answer to a question; but if the Irish negotiations proved successful—and so far he was glad to say, they seemed charged with hope—it was reasonable that the assembling of parliament in the autumn might be necessary.

Irish Freedom Demanded. MANITOWOC, Wis., July 21.—"Justice demands a free Ireland," was the wording of a cablegram sent to Premier Lloyd George of England by the Wisconsin Free Irish League, in a convention following the adoption today of resolutions urging President Harding and congress to recognize the independence of the Irish republic.

PLANE'S ABILITY PROVED (Continued From First page.) the sinking ship and was given a cheer by the crew on the Hawaiian liner when he passed that vessel after he had headed his 2-1/2 propeller plane for Lanai field. General Menoher later sent him the following radio message: "Congratulations to you and entire aircraft brigade on your brilliant performance today."

With the completion of the Ostrifriesland, the air men during the month of joint bombing tests off the coast, have sent down by means of bombs practically every type of vessel, including a submarine, a destroyer, a cruiser and a dreadnaught. In addition, navy airmen found and bombed the old battleship Iowa while that craft was seeking to approach the coast from sea under radio control.

Denby Issues Statement. Soon after the Ostrifriesland disappeared, Secretary Denby of the navy department, with a admiral and Koonitz, chief of naval operations, and many other high naval officers, army officers and members of congress, had viewed the bombing from the naval transport Henderson, issued the following statement: "The plunger of the Ostrifriesland, when she sank after the terrific pounding of the last few days, ended one of the most remarkable and interesting series of experiments ever conducted. They have been practically perfect in co-ordination between the two services and have been characterized throughout by a fine spirit of comradeship. Scientific conclusions of the utmost value undoubtedly will result. One outstanding and a most admirable feature has been the splendid courage and skill of the airman. I congratulate them."

Bomb Held Real Menace. Major-General Charles F. Menoher, chief of the army air service, who was aboard the Henderson, declared in a statement that he did not think the sinking of the Ostrifriesland showed that the battleship was doomed, but that it did show that the aerial bomb constituted a real menace to capital ships which must be met.

"A cold, material fact has been demonstrated," he said. "That fact is that the battleship can be sunk by the aerial bomb. That's the real lesson of this attack on the battleship. It is to be viewed that as a cold, material fact and attack the problem accordingly."

"I have not changed my mind at all as to the result of the bombing maneuvers. I have always contended that the bomb did constitute a very grave menace to the capital ship and that extraordinary precautions had to be taken to meet the menace. That's the whole story."

IRISH CONFERENCE ENDS FOR PRESENT De Valera to Consult With Followers in Dublin. NEW OVERTURES PLANNED

Communicate is Issued Saying That Basis for Further Debate Has Not Been Reached.

LONDON, July 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—The basis for a conference to attempt a settlement of the Irish question has not yet been found, it was announced in the official communiqué issued after a conference today between Eamonn De Valera and Premier Lloyd George, who have been conferring with the object of finding such a basis.

Mr. De Valera and his colleagues, added the communiqué, will return to Dublin tomorrow and he will communicate with Mr. Lloyd George after further discussions with his followers there.

After the conference with the prime minister, Mr. De Valera and Robert C. Barton and Art O'Brien, who accompanied him to Downing street, drove in a motor car to their hotel. Mr. Barton, however, accompanied by Secretary Childers of the Irish delegation, immediately returned to Downing street, where it required an hour's further discussion before an agreement was reached on the text of the communiqué.

The Irish delegation submitted the first draft of the communiqué, to which Lloyd George withheld his assent. His substitute failed to meet with the approval of the Irish representatives and a lengthy exchange ensued before a draft mutually satisfactory was drawn.

The text of the communiqué, which was issued first by the Irish delegation, being withheld at Downing street for more than half an hour, is as follows: "Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. De Valera had a further conversation at 11:50 o'clock this evening, lasting about an hour. The basis for a further conference has not yet been found. Mr. De Valera has arranged to return to Ireland tomorrow and to communicate with Mr. Lloyd George again after further discussion with his colleagues."

Lord Curzon hopeful. A hopeful view of the Irish peace negotiations was taken by Lord Curzon, the secretary for foreign affairs, in the house of lords tonight. It was the government's intention not to have an autumn session of parliament, Lord Curzon said in answer to a question; but if the Irish negotiations proved successful—and so far he was glad to say, they seemed charged with hope—it was reasonable that the assembling of parliament in the autumn might be necessary.

Irish Freedom Demanded. MANITOWOC, Wis., July 21.—"Justice demands a free Ireland," was the wording of a cablegram sent to Premier Lloyd George of England by the Wisconsin Free Irish League, in a convention following the adoption today of resolutions urging President Harding and congress to recognize the independence of the Irish republic.

PLANE'S ABILITY PROVED (Continued From First page.) the sinking ship and was given a cheer by the crew on the Hawaiian liner when he passed that vessel after he had headed his 2-1/2 propeller plane for Lanai field. General Menoher later sent him the following radio message: "Congratulations to you and entire aircraft brigade on your brilliant performance today."

With the completion of the Ostrifriesland, the air men during the month of joint bombing tests off the coast, have sent down by means of bombs practically every type of vessel, including a submarine, a destroyer, a cruiser and a dreadnaught. In addition, navy airmen found and bombed the old battleship Iowa while that craft was seeking to approach the coast from sea under radio control.

Denby Issues Statement. Soon after the Ostrifriesland disappeared, Secretary Denby of the navy department, with a admiral and Koonitz, chief of naval operations, and many other high naval officers, army officers and members of congress, had viewed the bombing from the naval transport Henderson, issued the following statement: "The plunger of the Ostrifriesland, when she sank after the terrific pounding of the last few days, ended one of the most remarkable and interesting series of experiments ever conducted. They have been practically perfect in co-ordination between the two services and have been characterized throughout by a fine spirit of comradeship. Scientific conclusions of the utmost value undoubtedly will result. One outstanding and a most admirable feature has been the splendid courage and skill of the airman. I congratulate them."

Bomb Held Real Menace. Major-General Charles F. Menoher, chief of the army air service, who was aboard the Henderson, declared in a statement that he did not think the sinking of the Ostrifriesland showed that the battleship was doomed, but that it did show that the aerial bomb constituted a real menace to capital ships which must be met.

"A cold, material fact has been demonstrated," he said. "That fact is that the battleship can be sunk by the aerial bomb. That's the real lesson of this attack on the battleship. It is to be viewed that as a cold, material fact and attack the problem accordingly."

"I have not changed my mind at all as to the result of the bombing maneuvers. I have always contended that the bomb did constitute a very grave menace to the capital ship and that extraordinary precautions had to be taken to meet the menace. That's the whole story."

Jantzen Swimming Suits. WHAT joy the summer months hold for those who swim. Whether at the beach, in the river or in pools, nothing quite compares with that glowing "good-to-be-alive" feeling after a real swim. Of first importance is the suit—it makes or mars the swim. The Jantzen is the right kind of suit for water activities. It never binds—it never sags—it fits. The Jantzen stitch makes this suit fit naturally, comfortably, easily and hold its shape after years of service. These champions wear and endorse Jantzen: DUKE KAHANAMOKU, Honolulu, World's Champion at 100 yds. Olympic Games 1920. NORMAN ROSS, Illinois Athletic Club, World's Champion at 220, 440, 880 yds. Olympic Games 1920. LEWIS (Hoop) KUEHN, World's Champion Diver, Olympic Games 1920. W.M. (Buddy) WALLEN, Illinois Athletic Club, National Mile Champion. The good shops of your city are showing new models in Jantzen for men, women and children. Ask to see the original Jantzen. Jantzen Knitting Mills PORTLAND, OREGON Creators of the Elastic-Stitch Swimming Suit.

BEEMEN TO GET LESSON Two Demonstrations Are Planned in Clatsop County. ASTORIA, Or., July 21.—(Special.)—County Agent McIndee has announced that a bee culture demonstration will be held at the Worsley ranch near Svensen, July 25, and that there will be one at Vesper the following day. H. A. Scullen, a bee specialist at the Oregon Agricultural college, will be present at each of these gatherings and give practical demonstrations in the handling of bees.

OSWEGO LAKE Only 30 Minutes From Portland. Ideal for the family picnic, a day or week-end outing. Boating, bathing, fishing, hiking and camping. For tickets and information inquire of ticket agent, Southern Pacific lines, 4 Fourth and Stark streets.—Adv.

FLAX HARVEST TO BEGIN More Than 200 Pullers Needed to Harvest Big Crop. SALEM, Or., July 21.—(Special.)—Marion county's flax crop, which pullers will start to harvest next week, probably will be the largest ever, approximately 45,000, according to a survey completed recently by Robert Crawford, superintendent of the penitentiary flax plant.

FOR your week-end lunch or your Sunday dinner, buy double the usual quantity of cooling, delicious Red Rock Cottage Cheese. —you'll relish its piquant flavor; it will refresh and invigorate. Delightful in many ways. Made daily by Red Rock Dairy.

ROBERT W. CHAMBERS starts his greatest series of short stories in McCall's Magazine, just out. Read "The Flaming Jewel" a breathless, thrilling tale of love and mystery, of stolen jewels, of a noble girl. Get the August issue.

Safe Milk For Infants & Invalids NO COOKING. The "Food-Drink" for All Ages. Quick Lunch at Home, Office, and Boutiques. Ask for HOKLICK'S. Avoid Imitations & Substitutes.

Hawaii Sends Only Her Choicest Fruit to You. Hawaiian Crushed or Grated Pineapple. Aboard a liner, San Francisco bound out of Honolulu, you could enjoy the luxury of sun-ripened pineapple fresh-picked from Hawaiian fields. Before your ship reached San Francisco Harbor, much of the fruit's native lusciousness and flavor would be gone. The only way you can get real, sun-ripened pineapple outside the boundaries of Hawaii is to buy Hawaiian Canned Pineapple at your grocer's. This is fruit which has been allowed to mature naturally in the sun-drenched fields. Harvested in its prime, it is sealed safe in its shining, clean containers before sundown that same day. Your grocer has Hawaiian Crushed or Grated Pineapple in assorted sizes to suit your needs. Order six or a dozen tins from him today. Serve it as a dessert just as it comes from the container. It makes a most delicious dish. Use it for baking pies, making tarts, cakes, sherbets, salads and puddings. Send for our recipe book containing many hints for using Hawaiian Crushed or Grated Pineapple. ASSOCIATION OF HAWAIIAN PINEAPPLE PACKERS 58 East Washington Street, Chicago. Pineapple Marmalade: 1 cup Grated or Crushed Hawaiian Pineapple, 3 oranges, 1 lemon, 2 cups sugar, 3 cups water. Boil 10 minutes. Add pineapple and water, cover and let stand overnight. Cook for two hours, add nuts and mix, cook one hour longer. This recipe makes two and one-half cups. Pineapple Conserve: 1 1/2 cups Grated or Crushed Hawaiian Pineapple, 1/2 cup lard, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup English walnuts, 1/2 cup raisins, 1/2 cup currants. Mix pineapple, lard and sugar and boil gently for forty-five minutes. Add nuts