TWO IN BASEBALL PLOT CASE FREED

Court Promises Acquittal to Three More Tentatively.

CONNECTION NOT SHOWN

Louis and Ben Levi Released While Buck Weaver, Happy Felsch and Carl Zork Are to Get Off.

CHICAGO, July 27.—The defense in the baseball trial today in three hours tore down the network of evidence woven by the state in seven days sufficiently to bring immediate freedom to two defendants, obtained a tentative promise from the presiding judge of freedom for three others and presented an alibi supported by two witnesses and numerous written records for a sixth of the 11 men on trial.

As a result of the defense's first attack, Louis and Ben Levi of Kokomo, Ind., legally were freed of any connection with the deal through which, it is alleged, Chicago White Sox players agreed to throw the 1919 World series for $100,000.

To Buck Weaver and Happy Felsch, once idols of the American league, and Carl Zork of St. Louis acquittal was promised by Judge Friend unless further evidence is presented against them, and David Zelcer of Des Moines, Ia., presented an alibi through his own testimony which was corroborated by witnesses and documents introduced.

Defense of Others Next.

Tomorrow the defense will begin trying to free Joe Jackson, Eddie Cicotte, Claude Williams, Chick Gandil and Swede Risberg. First on the schedule, however, will be a number of witnesses from St. Louis to testify for Zork, the defense wishing to make his case as strong as possible.

Following him, Weaver, Felsch and Risberg will testify, with Chick Gandil probably coming next. The defense does not expect to finish before the middle of next week.

The state rested its case today after Billy Maharg of Philadelphia gave testimony corroborating that previously given by Bill Burns, the admitted accomplice.

The defense then presented motions for dismissal of the charges against the Levis, Zork, Felsch, Weaver, Zelcer and Joe Jackson. The state promptly dropped the cases against the Levis, but refused to take similar action for the others, holding that they might be further incriminated through defense testimony, but admitting the case against them now is weak.

Visit Is Recalled.

Zelcer, identified by Maharg and Burns, testified that he was in Chicago September 28, leaving that night for Cincinnati and arriving there September 29, the day Bill Burns had testified he had conferred with him in New York over the alleged conspiracy. Returning to Chicago after the two Cincinnati games, Zelcer said he was confined to his hotel here three days through illness.

His testimony was confirmed by a witness who went to a ball game here with him September 28 and then traveled to Cincinnati with him. A hotel bookkeeper here testified Zelcer paid his bill September 28 and left town, returning later. The hotel records were admitted as evidence, as were later bills, showing he had paid the hotel for drugs and medical service the days he said he was sick.

Others Also Registered.

The state obtained an admission from Zelcer that he had registered himself, Joe Attell and the two Levis at the Sinton hotel, Cincinnati, September 30, presenting the register as evidence. Zelcer explained he had been moved to another room that day and had volunteered to take in Attell when the latter could not obtain a room. He presented a telegram from the Sinton received today stating he had registered there September 29, and that the register showing this would be sent here if wanted.

"I don't know Maharg or Burns or any of the defendant ball players and never saw Maharg or Burns until they testified," Zelcer testified. "I have known Attell for years, but did not know anything of this alleged world series deal, and Maharg and Burns have made a big mistake in saying I am the man they knew as Bennett."

The testimony presented against Weaver and Felsch included only the statement of Burns that he saw them in a room in Cincinnati with other players who were said to have been in the alleged conspiracy. This testimony was counteracted by his statement under cross-examination that he was not sure Weaver and Felsch were there.

Plot Connection Not Shown.

Harry Redmon of St. Louis who said Zork told him he was "the little red head from St. Louis who started the deal," was the only man who has testified against Zork. Judge Friend held that this did not connect Zork sufficiently with the original conspiracy which the state's own witnesses testified was abandoned after the second game, Zork's statement being alleged to have been made after the fourth game and coming up in a conversation about the possibility of the games being thrown.

The evidence against Louis Levi was that he bet against Cincinnati and Ben Levi was never mentioned in the conspiracy.

Weaver and Felsch were the happiest persons in the court building when informed of Judge Friend's statements. Tonight both were receiving scores of congratulatory telegrams and telephone messages.

Weaver said he wanted to get back into major league baseball, but Felsch was not so sure.

White Sox Job Not Wanted.

"If Judge Friend takes that attitude there can't be any doubt in any man's mind about my innocence," said Weaver. "I'm sure that no one will try to keep me out of baseball after that. I don't want to play with the White Sox any more for I don't want to work for Mr. Comiskey. I'd like to be traded—preferably to New York or Cleveland—and play the outfield, my original position."

"If you play the outfield, then I'll play the infield," broke in Felsch.

Ball Game Is Wanted.

The Failing park independent indoor baseball team desires games with any 5 foot 6 inch or unlimited team in the city. Games may be arranged by calling J. Weinstein, manager, at Marshall 1158.

Rickard Pays Tax on Fight.

TRENTON, N. J., July 27.—State Treasurer Read today received from Tex Rickard a check for $144,866.70, in payment of the state tax on the Dempsey-Carpentier fight. This is 10 per cent of the gross receipts.

The Vernon Tigers paid another tribute to Portland's highly esteemed reputation as a health resort yesterday. After he had the game well in hand the Tiger chief gave several of his hardest hitters the hook so they could enjoy the rest cure. Bill says a trip to Portland is as good as a vacation for his tired men.

Anyway, the game was about the goofiest spectacle seen on the home lot this season, which is some achievement. The final score was 17 to 7 for Vernon. After Essick had put in an entire substitute outfield so Sam Agnew, batting for him, and Stumpy Edington could take it easy, the fifth pitcher used by the Beavers, big Ellison, the ex-University of California lad, finally managed to cut off the run-making.

Pillette started for McCredie and lasted less than three full innings. Then Coleman and Quesinberry in turn being replaced by Gilbert, a left-hander. Gilbert walked one batter before giving way to Quesinberry, who, in turn, was relieved by Ellison. No need of going further into the gory details except to say that in the third the Tigers sent 11 men to bat and batted clear around in the fifth. The score:

San Francisco's Winning Streak of 10 Straight Is Broken Up.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27. — Salt Lake defeated San Francisco, 5 to 1, today and broke up the Seals' winning streak of ten straight games. The Seals were unable to hit with men on base.

"Butch" Byler, Salt Lake catcher, was banned from the game in the first inning after an argument with Umpire Finney. Manager Cravath replaced him and then Dorman, a former Oakland catcher, was called from the grandstand to relieve Cravath. Dorman started in the second inning and in the fourth when he came to bat he hit a two-bagger, scoring Gay, and went home himself a few minutes later on Siglin's single to center.

Duffy Lewis continued his batting streak with a home run and a single. Score:

SACRAMENTO BEATS ANGELS

Jack Dempsey Appears in Dugout in Course of Game.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 27.—Sacramento won from Los Angeles today, 4 to 2, but the crowd got its amusement out of the appearance of Jack Dempsey in the Sacramento dugout, where he spent most of the afternoon with his friend, "Rody" Elliott, and out of a slight disagreement between Messrs. Pick of Sacramento and Byron of the umpiring staff.

Byron pulled his watch on Pick in the course of an argument and the latter, recalling the forfeiture that occurred here last week, went away from there very speedily. Score:

TWILIGHT LEAGUE ORGANIZED

Grays Harbor Towns Will Have Six Weeks of Baseball.

HOQUIAM, Wash., July 27.—(Special.)—Definite organization of a Twilight league and adoption of a schedule for six weeks of games to be played, four games week days and two Sundays, was the outcome of the second meeting of representatives of the Hoquiam Colts, Aberdeen city and Aberdeen all-stars and Cosmopolis city teams, last night. Due to the non-appearance of representatives of the Knights of Columbus teams of Hoquiam and Aberdeen, and the further feeling on the part of those present that the lodge teams were not strong enough to make games interesting, the league will play with only four teams.

The season will start off August 2 with a game between Aberdeen city and Aberdeen all-stars on Stewart's field in Aberdeen. The winners of the Colts and Cosmopolis will tangle at Cosmopolis. One business man is taking part in the league activities in each city—Joe Smith, Hoquiam; Chet Strayer, Aberdeen, and George Royker, Cosmopolis.

Players of the teams will be kept and it was understood a cup will be donated by a Hoquiam man for the league leaders at the end of the season. Finances will be handled through a common fund into which all receipts from games will be put and from which all expenses will be paid.

CALMNESS ADVISED FOR ALL IN WATER

Good Swimmers Should Learn Lifesaving, Says Ross.

DEATHS SHOW INCREASE

Survey Necessary to Avoid Snags and Stones; Misjudging of Distance Should Be Avoided.

BY NORMAN ROSS.
World Champion Swimmer.

With swimming becoming more popular every year, the number of drownings is naturally on the increase also.

The Red Cross Lifesaving society is doing great work in continually extending its humanitarian activities, trying to keep up with the need for knowledge in the art of taking care of oneself in the water. Its instruction in lifesaving methods is free to everyone who can swim. Anyone wearing the Red Cross emblem on his suit has passed the tests and will give information as to where the tests can be taken.

We have the welfare of the novice and the good swimmer alike at heart, and for this reason have drawn up a number of suggestions and precautions for swimmers. If one is an expert, it will do no harm to review these matters; if he is a beginner he should read and observe carefully.

For self-assurance and safety in the water, the first essential is to learn to swim. Naturally, it is better to learn right at first, under a competent instructor. The average swimmer is a poor swimmer himself and makes a poorer instructor. Go to a man who makes a business of just that.

After having learned, there are certain precautions which every swimmer should observe. It is extremely inadvisable to enter the water immediately after eating; a wait of at least two hours is necessary. Hurrying to the beach and plunging into the cool water has resulted fatally many times, and always works harm.

Do not continue swimming when exhausted; stop and rest, by floating or treading water. If you swim well do not misjudge your distance when swimming out into deep water. Remember it is always much longer back than it was out.

It is a foolish procedure to dive bravely headfirst into water you know nothing about. Wade in or jump in feet first, and examine for depth and to see that there are no snags, or stones, or broken-off pilings which may injure you.

In wading in, never hold the arms above the head. Keep the hands in the water so that you will be able to stroke if you step off into a hole. Never wave your arms around overhead to attract attention should you be in deep waters. Their weight out of water will be sure to sink you.

It is a very easy thing to obtain mastery of your actions in the water. The body only weighs a few pounds when nearly submerged; and the only trick is to learn to move the hands and feet slightly to support the part of the body which is out of water. Self-confidence and calmness is all that is necessary. Once you become expert a new world of enjoyment opens up before you.

Swimming is such an easy matter if one will only keep cool and avoid any hurried action which will tend to cause his head to go under, such as throwing the arms out of water and trying to keep the whole body in the air. Left to itself the average body will float, and only a small motion, using the hands as paddles, is necessary to keep the mouth and nose out of the brine.

For instance, do not struggle if caught in a swift current or a so-called undertow. The force of the current will soon bring you to the surface, for there can be no current under water which is not fed from the surface.

Do not be afraid of a large wave—duck under it and you will come up smiling. If you are carried under by the force of a wave or by a current, push off from the bottom if you can reach it; you will shoot right up to the top.

If you swallow water, do not struggle and thrash around; clear the windpipe of water and you are all right.

Never call for help in fun. Remember the boy who cried "Wolf, wolf!" when there was no wolf. When there was one nobody came to his assistance. Besides, in some states it is unlawful to call for help in fun, and is punishable by fine and imprisonment.

If you are a reasonably good swimmer, learn the lifesaving methods, by all means. Every swimmer should familiarize himself with the methods of release in water, various holds for towing a person in distress to shore, and methods of resuscitation. As it is now most people would be unable to save themselves if they were suddenly cast into the water, let alone rescue anyone else. Any Y. M. C. A. will give the test, and anyone around the beach with a Red Cross emblem on his swimming suit will give information on the subject.

Ludy Langer and Stubby Kruger recently competed in a swimming meet in front of the Riverton Yacht club, New Jersey, and won a 400-yard relay race, defeating teams of four men each. There were nearly 100 girls entered in the intercity competition between New York and Philadelphia, the New York girls, of course, walking away with things.

Ethelda Bleibtrey, competing in her first meet since returning from Australia, easily defeated the field in a special 220. Charlotte Boyle romped home a winner in the 50 and 100. A match between these two at 100 or 220 will be a feature event soon.
