completed by Fred S. Stimson of Seattle, president of the local exposition. Mr. Stimson, who was in Portland yesterday in connection with the business of the exposition, made an automobile tour from coast to coast and return, meeting with prominent stock men and heads of stock shows in all sections of the east.

Mr. Stimson said that eastern cattle men have no conception of the development of the Portland exposition and he spent considerable time acquainting them with the importance of showing here. If they wish to sell cattle to the western man.

Mr. Stimson predicted that the show this fall would be bigger and better attended than ever before. He said that indications were that the new concessions building for the showing of farm machinery products and similar displays would be largely taken up by Portland concerns.

Portland merchants and business men have always backed the exposition and they are now welcoming this new opportunity to take an active part in their show, he said.
