made the descent to the rim of the lake.

"From the rim of the lake is where the real beauty can be enjoyed," he said. "I wanted to get down to where I could look up and see the towering crags above and then I began to appreciate lis beauty."

Snow prevented the party from making the trip around the rim of the lake and this phase of the schedule was called off.

"A terrific mountain" is the way the author characterizes Mount Jefferson, which he attempted to climb from Hunt's Cove. The party made the trip to within about 1000 feet of the top when they found it would be impossible to reach the summit before durkness and gave up the climb, "And I was ready to quit" declared the author as he recited the incident of the climb,

Adv. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Christiansen,

Mr. and Mrs. Eaton will leave here tomorrow for their home in Sheffield, but Mr. Eaton plans to make more trips to Oregon and the west. He gathered material while on the outing for a new Boy Scout book which he will begin work on when he arrives home. The title of it will be "Boy Scouts on the Sky Line Trail." The author is pleased with the demand for his book "Boy Scouts in Glacier National Park" in which he describes the beauty of the park. He said this proves the interest which the people throughout the country are taking in the national park scenery.
