Shipping Board Rejects Lower Bid on Ground That Local Firm Is More Satisfactory.

The Albina Marine Iron works won for the contract to repair the steamer Effingham, which jammed her nose opened yesterday morning by F. B. Pape, local manager of the construction and repair division of the ship-of insurance and moving the big ves-sel to the Todd plant on Puget sound. The other proposal was for $25,382, with the provision that the shipping board should bear the expense of moving the vessel to Puget sound and insurance during the voyage. Unsuccessful blds were made by local firms as follows: Smith & Wat-Iron works, $44,500; Pacific Marine Construction & Repair company, $55,680, and Willamette Iron & Steel

The Effingham moved at noon yesterday from municipal terminal No. 4, where she has been discharging additional cargo, to the port dry dock, where work will be started as soon as possible.
