MOVING PICTURES

TODAY'S FILM FEATURES. Majestic—Mary Miles Minter, "Moonlight and Honeyuckle." Liberty—A Daughter of the Law.

THE latest issue of Screenland News, Portland's home talent news sheet, is for popularity with "Courage," the feature picture of the film programme at the Columbia.

The idea of making a film record of interesting events in Portland each week originated about two months ago when A. C. Raleigh, manager of the Columbia, was looking for a short feature for his programme.

Raleigh joined forces with Sandy, local photographer, and enlisted the services of Zach Moseby, whose quaint and humorous philosophy and stories are printed each week in "Screenland."

Founded on the local scene, Screenland News made a big hit and steadily increases its following with each new issue.

The first authentic pictures of the girl wing-walker, who performed such daring stunts on a speeding aeroplane. Views of the damaged ship "Birmingham," Charles A. Skinner, surf-boat champion, in the latest fall styles and human interest bits are shown in the reel.

The local reel has a freshness and novelty that are often lacking in the big national news weeklies.

"Courage," the feature picture at the Columbia, is a dramatic story of a woman's love and loyalty to her husband, who is sentenced, unjustly, to life imprisonment.

Screen Gossip. Mrs. Mary Gish, mother of Lillian and Dorothy Gish, Griffith stars, is near death in the Presbyterian Hospital, New York.

She was recently operated upon for a growth on the throat and county cations developed into a heart affection, which it was feared would prove fatal.

Mark Dittenfass has signed Jack Johnson, the negro ex-champ, for a series of feature pictures. Production on the first of the Johnson pictures will start next week.

It will carry a story based on Johnson's experiences in Europe, showing him as a bull fighter in Spain, as a jazz dancer in Paris, a strong man in Germany, during the war and has been identified with the larger independent concerns from time to time.

James Young, the director, is about to lose his third wife. The present Mrs. Young divorced her second wife last week.

The latest Mrs. Young was Clara Whipple, a scenario writer. She married the director in 1919. They have been separated since July 18, she charging extreme indifference and cruelty.

The first Mrs. Young was Rida Johnson, the authoress, and the second Clara Kimball, the picture star.

William A. Brady was in Washington last week, appearing before a congressional committee to make an effort to remove the tax on amusements.

He cited that there were no more high-priced stars and none would be getting over $1500 per week; also that 4000 picture houses were closed.

Marie Prevost's first feature has been retitled and is now called "Moonlight Follies" instead of "The Butterfly."

MAYOR HYLAN UNDER FIRE

LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE ASKS PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

Immense Increase in Assessed Valuations in 1921 Laid to Head of American Metropolis.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Mayor Hylan was interrogated for nearly five hours today by a legislative committee investigating his administration, but he disclaimed responsibility for the enormous increase in the city's debt since the assumption of office.

Prior to the interrogation, Mayor Hylan read a lengthy statement in which he attacked the methods of the committee, the legislation which made it possible and declared that "department for department, New York would compare favorably with the corresponding departments in any city in the country."

When Hylan was told by committee counsel, that the city's debt exceeded the constitutional limit by $102,000,000 for all purposes other than docks and rapid transit construction when he took office on New Year's day, 1919, he said that this excess had swollen to $120,000,000 on January 1 of this year.

The mayor was not positive he had taken a hand in raising the assessed value of the city from $1,200,000,000 in 1919 to $997,000,000 in 1921, said to be the largest in the city's history.

SAVAGE TIRES

HISTORY OF THE RED MAN SERIES

THE CAMPAIGNS OF GERONIMO

BY "INDIAN" MILLER

The trail of the Indian in the Great Southwest was a crooked trail in the olden days. It led from water to water. In the present day those trails would seem erratic and vagrant; for they twisted and turned and climbed, regardless of direction, elevation, or distance.

The Indians knew of short-cuts; but these were only used when time was pressing.

Then came the paleface. He cursed the Indians and their bad, crooked trails; and laid out wagon roads on easier grades. He did not regard the watering-places so much; for he could haul water in his prairie schooners; but he did have to keep water in mind. He also sought to shorten the distance considerably from place to place.

There are many reasons why the roads of the paleface seldom followed that of the Indian; and one of the principal ones is that paleface and Indian seldom went to the same place. But they could not avoid many of the same waterholes and springs.

So it was that Indian strategy often led to water in time of war; and the thirsting paleface was generally exercised to find a drink; for he did not know other drinking places as the Indian did.

It is said that each Indian killed in the Geronimo campaigns cost the government a million dollars. Few understood how that mere handful of Apaches defied the U. S. and Mexican armies for years. In the first place the Apaches were hard to catch; because they were swift travelers. We may say, however, that the Apaches won by water; for they knew how to control the supply. Also their leaders were great strategists.

But the most important thing of all was that they were superior on the bad trail, having far greater endurance than the paleface. And, too, pursuing troops often had great difficulty in extricating themselves from thirsty places, for fleeing Apaches would leave a warrior behind to besoul the water on the approach of the pale face.

As the Indian of old was superior on the bad trails because he trained to endure, so Savag Cord tires are superior on the bad trails today, for they are Built to Excel. Quality will tell.

MISSING BANKER TAKEN

SPURGIN REPORTED ARRESTED IN CHIHUAHUA.

President Oregon Is Asked to Expel Chicago Financier as Pernicious Foreigner.

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 9.—Warren C. Spurgin, missing Chicago banker, who is under arrest at Chihuahua City, Mexico, Chief of Police Hermosillo of Chihuahua today telegraphed police authorities in Juarez that he had Spurgin in custody and would bring him to the border if guaranteed $200 for expenses.

Spurgin was arrested at a ranch a few miles from Chihuahua City. A telegram was sent today to President Oregon asking an order for extradition of the banker from Mexico as a pernicious foreigner.

Mr. Spurgin, a native of Chicago, who was in the United States for some time, had left Chihuahua for the south. Spurgin had several pieces of baggage with him, the officer said, and appeared particularly careful of a large suitcase. A customs official asked if the suitcase contained explosives, the importation of which into Mexico is under strict regulation.

Spurgin replied that the bag contained money with which he intended to buy a ranch in Mexico. Examination by the customs officer showed that the suitcase was filled with American banknotes.

Plans are being made to grow great quantities of cotton on the islands of the New Hebrides group.
