Prohibitionists Know Home Invasions Must Cease.

CONGRESS IS ANALYZED

Mark Sullivan Says Antagonism Is Not to Dry Law, but to Way of Its Enforcement.

By Mark Sullivan. Copyright by the New York Evening Post, Inc. Published by Arrangement. WASHINGTON, D. C., August 23.—(Special)—The feeling that has flamed up in congress over the amendments to the prohibition enforcement act is not a strong emotion that has flared up for a long time. It is not a feeling that is unfriendly to prohibition, if the wets are taking any comfort out of it they are mistaken.

But on the part of a group of senators and representatives, which is large in number and determined in spirit, there is a strong resentment against invasions of ancient constitutional rights which have been committed and tolerated in the service of prohibition.

For the future persons engaged in searching out arguments against prohibition will be compelled to restrict themselves with the same limitations that have been imposed by law for hundreds of years on officials engaged in ferreting out murder and other felonies.

Most of the prohibitionists realize that they must give up some of the things they have practiced during the past three years if they know it is no longer possible to search a man's house for liquor unless they have a warrant, but they hope to retain the right to search automobiles without a warrant.

This determination to get back to constitutional safeguards for individual rights and liberties goes further than congress and further than the subject of prohibition enforcement. There is a wide-spread feeling in Washington that during the previous administration, espionage functions of the government ran pretty wild. It arose out of the war, and so long as the war continued there was some excuse for it.

Allied to this spirit in favor of restoring constitutional safeguards is equally perceptible disposition to get back to a peace basis as regards free speech. Everything that any observer can learn of the spirit of the bill is the administration would point to early amnesty for Eugene Debs.

The chief obstacle is believed to be the more or less organized opposition carried on by some of the officials of the American Legion, the famous outfit, (is meant) has sent an emissary to General Berenger, the Spanish high commissioner, offering to surrender. The reason for his offer, he said, is the bad state of his health, and he is suffering from excessive obesity.

Officers of the Spanish army have begun preparations for a punitive expedition against the tribesmen. The trustees of the association for the coming year were elected, as follows: L. Bush, Bay Center; George Casals, South Bend; H. A. Eddy, Oysterville; E. W. Lilly, Menlo, and L. D. Williams, Spononia. The following officers: L. L. Bush, president; V. M. Bullard, secretary; E. H. Gaudin, treasurer; Mrs. E. A. Seaborg, historian.

FUTURE PREDICTED FOR WIRELESS TALK

American Programme Backed at Big Conference.

PRIVATE LINES DESIRED

International Gathering Concludes Two Months' Discussion of Air Wave Telephony.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—(By the Associated Press).—American backing of wireless telephony as the big thing for the near future prevailed in the international wireless conference, which closed last night, after having been in session for two months. The American delegation headed by Major General George O. Squier, chief of the signal corps of the United States army, came to Paris with a definite programme.

Most of the programme is said to have been adopted, although the conclusions of the conference will be kept secret until they are presented to the various governments by their delegates.

The principal contention of the Americans was that certain bands of the radio spectrum should be reserved for wireless telephony. This was opposed by the Europeans, as they considered that they would have to relinquish a part of the usable waves.

Importance is emphasized. The Americans pictured presidents and premiers of the future speaking direct across nations and emphasized the overwhelming importance of wireless telephony in supreme moments as the necessity for speeding in its development.

The activity of the Americans in "selectivity" or the development of the equivalent of the private line in wireless, as opposed to the present "party line" where anyone may listen in on a conversation, met with recognition by the conference.

Among the 14 principal questions with which the conference dealt and adopted was a recommendation by the Americans that certain waves be assigned to each country, with provisions limiting each country to the use of instruments adapted to the wave lengths, so that the result would be secret wireless.

It was agreed to apportion these waves, probably designating each group by color, so that each country might have the exclusive use of certain colored waves.

Extension of Cables Advocated. There was the opinion of the conference that wireless never would supplant submarine cables and it advocated the extension of cable facilities. The speedy elimination of static interference, which now is so serious to wireless, was predicted.

The conference emphasized the need of governments interesting themselves in wireless telephony. The report of the conference, which will fill several mail bags, offers solutions for problems that were not coming before the international communications conference. It was believed that this report will be submitted to the Washington government in November.

SINN FEIN STILL WORKING ON REPLY

Members Also Attend Executive Committee Parley.

SPECULATION IS RIFE

Message Handed De Valera Not Yet Explained, Other Than Being From "Highest Authority."

DUBLIN, Aug. 23.—(By the Associated Press).—Of two meetings held at Mansion House today—that of the Sinn Fein executive committee, and that of the Sinn Fein cabinet—the latter was considered the more important and it is thought probable that it was to give the Sinn Fein further time to consider the cabinet's reply that an adjournment over Wednesday was taken after it had finished consideration of departmental reports and other business.

The Dalí now is faced with the task of dealing with the cabinet's reply and it is considered it cannot delay its answer much longer. When it is ready to be reserved for Sinn Fein members, the latter will have to have before it some report from the Sinn Fein executive committee, or at least it is believed the members will know what the executive committee thinks of the situation.

Speculation is rife. Considerable speculation was caused here last night by the delivery of a message to Mr. De Valera by Monsignor Edward Mulhern, bishop of Drogheda. It was asserted the message had not come from Cardinal Logue, head of the Catholic church in Ireland, but there was no further information relative to the origin of the message except it came from "highest authority."
