THE MORNING OREGONIAN, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1921

for. Roll collars, belts and tie sashes. Some are $12.95 trimmed with angora bands. Priced very special at 13

BE $58.277

George Isackson was low black of the general building contract out of ten builders in the field. Mr. Isack-son's bid was $189,106, or $19,394 un-der the estimate of the superintendent of properties. His nearest competitor was Lindstrom & Feigenson, $198,014.

Below Estimates.

TO

SAVING

East Pine streets, led to the only real fireworks of an otherwise un-eventful meeting. School Director Woodward stated that an option had been obtained from the owner of property there, who had agreed to transfer lots that were wanted by the school board if he could obtain fjacent property. The foundation of a $10,000 building had been begun upon the property before the option had been obtained. The claims of the contractor which the school board had been pledged to assume included a $500 architect's fee and a 15 per cent commission charge on the cost of all work performed

Board Members Object.

reach a settlement.

intended to put a similar building on the other property, there should be no charge above actual expenditure. The matter was referred to a com-mittee to confer with Mr. Davis and Business Women's club of Portland,

