EVERY SATURDAY AFTERNOON

The Oregonian switchboard is taxed to its utmost capacity receiving Want-Ad calls.

A special force of clerks are busy every minute receiving Want Ads which are brought into the office and arrive through the mail.

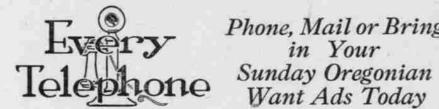

A great battery of 24 linotype machines manned by expert operators work at top speed transferring these Want Ads into type.

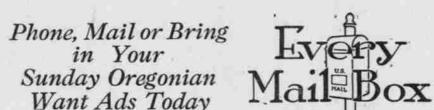

Proofs are read and another group assemble the ads so that they can be published in proper classified form.

Closing time arrives quickly and it requires an almost superhuman effort to get the more than 6000 Want Ads published in a Sunday's Oregonian into the forms.

By your patronage you have made The Oregonian the greatest Want Ad medium on the Pacific coast north of Los Angeles.

In handling this enormous number of Want Ads the only real difficulty encountered is last-minute copy. Will you help?
