

WIRTH GOVERNMENT TO RESIGN AS BODY Action to Be Taken When Reichstag Reassembles.

UPPER SILESIA IS ISSUE Chancellor and Minister of Construction Rathenau Then to Ask Programme Support.

BY ARNO DOSCH FLEUBOT. (Copyright by the New York World, Published by Arrangement.) BERLIN, Oct. 20.—(Special Cable.)—Semi-official information was received today that the Wirth government will resign as a body on the assembling of the reichstag and with the official announcement of the division of upper Silesia.

Chancellor Wirth and Minister for Reconstruction Rathenau will then go on record before the reichstag to urge that their programmes go through unchanged. The British government, agreeing to take over the government if the British will agree to a moratorium, was denied to the world today by the British ambassador, Lord Aberdeen. The British refusal to repeat assurances as they did over undivided upper Silesia for fear that the French will not let them carry them out.

It is reported that Herr Stresemann wanted three years without reparation payments. The people's party takes the position that the Wirth government went into debt to foreign bankers, largely Dutch, for a billion gold marks to meet Germany's reparation payments to date.

Even if Germany can meet the 25 per cent reparations by the delivery of material which the British guarantee commission hopes she can do, it will be still necessary to pay off the billion to foreign bankers before she can get credit for another billion by May 1.

The Dutch are so hard hit over the fall of the mark, which everyone is vested in on the knowledge that Amsterdam bankers were backing Germany, that German credit abroad is practically destroyed. The falling of Germany must raise two billion gold marks in six months.

While the future government is so unsettled there will be no decision as to Berlin's ambassador to the United States. Dr. Wirth's candidate is minister of food, Hermes, who although affable, has no diplomatic training under the old regime. The minister of foreign affairs wants Herr Solf sent from Japan, while others consider Herr Rosen, if he is not in the next cabinet. Only these three names are now being considered.

The burial at Munich of ex-King Ludwig of Bavaria, has been delayed a week to give time to prepare a monarchist pageant, in which the present Bavarian government will participate officially. The burial will be in the ancestral church with an attendant ceremony even more marked than that accorded reigning monarchs at death.

The funeral has given to the monarchists the chance they have been seeking to show where their sentiments lie, and as the monarchists are numerous in Bavaria, it is going to be an impressive demonstration. To make it more impressive it has been decided to rebury the late Queen Therese beside King Ludwig.

Bavarians will not permit their own government to interfere and the national government having permitted the burial of the ex-kaiserin at Potsdam can hardly object. The stock of a dynasty has been rising steadily during the past few weeks and the Austrian-Tyrol separatist movement has been linked with the name of Wittelsbach.

Monarchist Tendency Noted. In the government headquarters at Innsbruck the monarchist tendency is evident and with the economic ruin of Austria they hope to construct a Catholic kingdom under Crown Prince Rupprecht. This propaganda will show itself at King Ludwig's funeral.

Count von Lerchenfeld, the Bavarian premier, sent a telegram to Crown Prince Rupprecht saying that all of Bavaria was cast in grief. After reciting the late king's virtues and his services to the people, he stated "always held the love of the people, and close in fulsome praise and solicitation."

Wreath Sent by Ministry. The ministry sent a wreath to Sarvar, where the ex-king lies. The wreath was laid beside that from the ex-kaiser, sent from Doornik, Holland. Simultaneously with the expression of the monarchist spirit the four leaders of the Kapp Putsch—Eberhard Pabst, Bauer and Schnetzler—who were wanted to be tried, have suddenly offered to return for trial, asking only the assurance that they would not be jailed during their trials. They would not make such an offer if they did not think they were sure of acquittal and believe that it would make good monarchist propaganda in fertile soil.

Home Brew Makes Woman Leap Through Window. Allegations of Crimons Blue Seen Swimming in Back Yard.

ALLIGATORS of a crimson hue were swimming lazily around in a quiet amber-colored pool. With sunny nods and winks they beckoned to Mrs. Anna Grooce. They wanted her to join them in their seats.

For a moment Mrs. Grooce stood hesitant. But the appeal was too strong. Poising herself for a moment upon the brink of the pool, she held her arms aloft and dived.

A half hour later police picked her up in a semi-conscious condition where she lay amid a profusion of autumn leaves in the back yard of her home, 555 Overton street, and assisted her into the house. Later, when they discovered 71 bottles of flaring home brew in the basement they assisted her to a patrol wagon and carried her away to the jail house.

In police court yesterday the whole story was related. Wednesday night Mrs. Grooce was hostess at a drinking party at her home. Drinking

A JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD picture of a thrilling tale of the northern woods opens at the Star theater tomorrow. It is "Nomads of the North," a story of adventure and romance, told in Curwood's best style, which has won him thousands of admirers among film fans.

A realistic forest fire and the performance of a bear and a dog, who play stellar roles in the picture, are notable features of the production. The photography is said to be unusually good and the settings amid the forests and snow of the north have their usual appeal.

One man's great love and another's hate form the story of "Nomads of the North." Nanette Howland, who lives with her father in the wilderness 1500 miles west and north of Montreal, is loved by three men—Raoul Chalonier, a trapper, corporal of the royal northwest mounted police, and "Buck" McDougal, son of an official in the Hudson's Bay Fur company.

On the wedding day Raoul returns and Nanette and he are married. "Buck" starts an argument with Raoul which results in the killing of "Buck's" friend. Raoul is accused of the crime and imprisoned and rescued by Nanette. Together they journey into the wilderness.

These Curwood pictures are being shown throughout the night. The hostess was too partial to the liquor of her own making. When she had about reached the limit of her endurance as well as capacity, she began seeing things. Then it was that the bright red alligators and leopards with green and pink spots.

In her delirium she climbed up to the window sill and dived headlong through the window pane to the ground below. She was cut by glass, and other injuries were suffered when she struck bottom.

After Judge Roseman had confiscated the 71 bottles of brew which were intact after the party, and had lectured Mrs. Grooce for her antics, he thought she had suffered enough, both physically and mentally. Upon her promise not to experiment again with homemade liquor, and to become a solid booster for Mr. Volstead, he permitted her to wend her uncertain and unsteady way homeward.

Irvin Hutchison, at one time heir-apparent to the throne of the Portland underworld, has just about reached the bottom of the gutter. He was arrested yesterday after he had "mooched" Patrolmen Kniskern and Galtner of the morris squad for the price of a meal.

The "coppers" dug up all they had been able to find and tried to try him. It totaled 25 cents. Then they watched him disappear in the general direction of a "beanery" where they advised him to go for food.

After prohibition Irvin turned his talents to bootlegging and prospered until he became addicted to the use of drugs. From then on his descent has been gradual but certain. Yesterday when he appeared in court, he looked like a ghost.

Omar Solberg, husky logger, wanted to strike up a flirtation with a young woman ticket seller at Erickson's resort, and when her husband put in an appearance and shattered the logger's budding romance, Solberg, "py yimminy," wanted to fight the whole world single-handed.

"I skoll clean out the middle dern joint," he announced as he doubled his fists and went into action. Police reserves arrived in time to curb any riot which Solberg might start, and Judge Roseman put on the finishing touches yesterday in police court, when Solberg pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly.

"I'll take all the fight out of you, and the booze as well," announced the court, "stay with us for the next 30 days."

SHEEP SEIZURE UPHELD Western Bond & Mortgage Company Has Right by Possession. LA GRANDE, Or., Oct. 20.—(Special.)—Judge Knowles has decided that the Western Bond & Mortgage company of Portland has proceeded in a proper manner in seizing a band of sheep on which it held mortgage.

Many Women Need Better Blood. They Lack Vitality and Color. It is a fact proved by thousands of grateful letters that Hood's Sarsaparilla is remarkably beneficial to women whose most common ailments exhaust and weaken the system and sometimes result in anemia, nervousness, general break-down.

Women overworked by family duties or overtaxed socially, find their nerves all unstrung, faces pale, appetite poor, sleep unrefreshing, and in general Hood's Sarsaparilla gives the blood more vitality and better color, makes stronger nerves, and contributes to the enjoyment of life.

Dr. Zimri L. Parvin, one of the veteran music teachers of this state and also a well known composer of music, died yesterday at 11:30 A. M. at his home, 421 1/2 East Eleventh street, from an illness of one week culminating in apoplexy. Dr. Parvin is survived by his widow and one daughter, Mrs. Mamie P. Brown, and two sons, J. R. and E. A. Parvin. The late Z. L. Parvin was a doctor of music and was born in Indiana 74 years ago.

Members of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War were guests of Joe Brandt, manager of the Peoples theater, yesterday afternoon for "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." The soldiers were enabled to live over again the scenes of the war in this Rex Ingram production of the screen version of the famous novel by Vicente Blasco Ibañez. About 90 veterans were the theater's guests during the afternoon. Some of them were taken to the theater from hospitals in automobiles furnished by the auxiliary of the veterans' organization. Others were dismissed early from their vocational courses at the Benson Polytechnic to attend the afternoon performance. The veterans were the guests of the theater management through the courtesy of C. E. Jensen.

The late Dr. Parvin, who was an expert in the teaching of harmony, music, and he took a principal part in the organization of the Northwest Normal school of music and art that later had quarters in the Tilford building, this city, with Dr. Parvin as its president. Dr. Parvin's funeral will be held at 1:30 P. M. tomorrow, at Salem.

He awarded E. J. Lawrence compensatory damages of $25,000 and punitive damages of $25,000 in a libel suit against the Chicago Evening American. The suit grew out of articles published by the newspaper concerning the death of R. J. Lawrence.

Registration books at the court-house will remain open until 9 o'clock tomorrow night, announced County Clerk Beveridge yesterday, following a conference with District Attorney Myers and City Attorney Grant.

Originally it was intended to close the books last night under the law requiring that books be closed 30 days before a general election. This provision does not hold with a special election, and the date can be set arbitrarily, it was held.

Superintendent of Schools Grount promised to have the announcement made in every room in the various schools of the city so that the students could carry the news to their parents.

Novel Parties for Children Are Department Store Innovation. Devotees of Mother Goose rhymes and other nursery ditties, along with their mothers and any other members of the families who are interested, are to be entertained in the Molier & Frank auditorium at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in a novel way.

Two Bubble Book parties under the direction of Mrs. Beulah H. Grace are to be given, in which all those songs so dear to childhood are to be acted out in costume by 17 Portland children. For accompaniment the Bubble Book records are to be used, along with other music. Costumes and scenery have been brought from New York by Mrs. Grace and the auditorium is being specially decorated for the occasion.

THOUSANDS AT FOOD SHOW POSITIVELY LAST TIMES TODAY!

APPRECIATION AMPLY SHOWN BY ATTENDANCE. Portlanders Taking Advantage of Opportunity to Learn Things Not Found in Cook Books.

"The thousands of persons who attended during the first two days of the 12th annual food show now going on in the armory have been the best demonstration of the appreciation of the efforts of the Grocers' and Merchants' association in arranging this exhibition that we could ask for," said G. C. McPherson, secretary, yesterday.

More than 6000 passed the entrance door Wednesday and yesterday. Although the exhibitors were a little slow in getting their booths ready for the first day everything is in place now and the completed show is creating much interest among the Portlanders who are taking advantage of this opportunity to learn many things about foods that cannot be gleaned from a cook book.

Plenty of entertainments in addition to the exhibits and demonstrations are in store for those attending. Each afternoon there is a vocal selection of popular songs given by a fine local singer while in the evening there is a big public dance in the ballroom as well as a fine band concert in the main exhibit hall.

Today and tomorrow have been designated as "kid" days. All school children have been invited to attend and join in the festivities. Plenty of extra free samples of foodstuff have been arranged so that all will go away with something of value to remember the show by.

The show will not be open Sunday, but will reopen again Monday for the full week.

TRIAL TIME RECORD ONE Evidence Obtained, Arrests Made and Two Convicted in 2 Hours. ABERDEEN, Oct. 20.—(Special.)—Prosecuting Attorney Acrot obtained the evidence, arrested, prosecuted and convicted John Milich and Mike Muss in two hours this afternoon for liquor law violation.

The prosecutor happened into Milich's establishment at 320 South F street at 12:15 o'clock. Behind the counter he discovered small quantities of moonshine. After making the arrests, he made out the informations charging Milich with possession with intent to sell and Muss with possession. He then arranged a trial before Justice of the Peace Baumer and appeared both as star witness and prosecutor. Milich was fined $1000 and sentenced to four months in the county jail, and Muss was fined $250 and sentenced to two months in jail. Sentence was imposed at 2:15 o'clock, two hours after the arrest.

LAST DAM UNIT IS BEGUN $220,000 Bull Run Project to Be Completed January 1. Work on the final unit of the new dam and canal under construction at the Bull Run headworks began yesterday, according to report received by City Commissioner Mann from E. V. Hauser, president of the Hauser construction company, the contractor.

The dam will be completed about January 1, according to Commissioner Mann. It is being constructed at a cost of approximately $220,000 to provide an available supply of water for Portland. The old canal became inadequate and without a dam it was impossible to control the flow. The present dam is built with the idea of serving the needs of Portland for many years.
