

WAR HERO GETS PAPERS

E. L. MEDLEY REINSTATED IN U. S. CITIZENSHIP.

Man Dishonorably Discharged From Marines Enlists in Canada and Is Cited for Bravery.

When war was declared in 1917 E. L. Medley possessed the spirit of thousands of other American men. He wanted to go to war. He read the signs on the street corners "The First to Fight" and enlisted with the marines. Several months later he was in a general courtmartial and became an "example" as a warning to other men. He was dishonorably discharged.

This country lost trace of Medley. All other countries lost trace of the name E. L. Medley. He went to Canada, enlisted in the Canadian army under an assumed name. He did valiant service, was cited for bravery, and came out of uniform and back to civilian life the possessor of an honorable discharge from a government not his own. The discharge he had received from the marines had taken away his citizenship.

Yesterday Medley appeared in the federal court of Judge Bean, where petitions for naturalization were being heard. He told his story without hesitation, admitted his discharge from American service, but protested his loyalty. Witnesses substantiated his statements, and Medley is now reinstated as an American citizen.

Of the 40 applicants for citizenship who passed before Judge Bean yesterday less than half were accepted. Many of them could not show the necessary educational qualifications, and were told to return to their homes, read American history, and acquaint themselves with the affairs of our government.

Draft evaders were granted little leniency, and men who admitted under oath that they had been bootleggers were treated in a like manner.

JUDGE STAPLETON TO PASS ON MEASURE AT ONCE.

Circuit Court Decision on Soldiers' Aid Bill's Legality Expected Today or Tomorrow.

Either this afternoon or tomorrow morning Presiding Circuit Judge Stapleton will pass on the legality of the Oregon state aid measure, as required in a test case recently initiated by Thomas H. Boyd, commander of Portland post of the American Legion, for the purpose of getting a Supreme court ruling which would facilitate the sale of bonds provided for in the law.

I. H. Van Winkle, attorney-general, and Willis S. Moore, assistant attorney-general, filed their answer yesterday to the Boyd suit in the Multnomah circuit court. Frank F. Korrell, attorney for Mr. Boyd, and Maurice E. Crumpacker, deputy district attorney, who will appear with Stanley Myers, district attorney, as friends of the court in the action, held a conference with Judge Stapleton later, in which the judge promised to pass on the matter without unnecessary delay.

In the answer filed, the state of Oregon and the bond commission contended that the objections to the law raised by the plaintiff were technical, trivial and did not invalidate the legislation. It was conceded that entries in the legislative journals were slightly irregular, but it was held that they were sufficient. The fact that a viva voce vote instead of a ballot by yeas and nays was taken in the house is not a valid objection, it also was alleged.

WAR DEAD ARRIVE HERE

Bodies of Meuse-Argonne Heroes Honored by Legionnaires.

The bodies of 24 soldiers who lost their lives overseas arrived in Portland yesterday morning and were sent to various points in the northwest for final burial. The list did not include any former Portland men, although there were men from other points in the state.

The majority of the bodies were of men who lost their lives in the Meuse-Argonne offensive. Since that time they had been lying in the American cemetery at Romagne, in the heart of the Argonne.

The bodies were met at the station by committees representing the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and other patriotic organizations of the city.

Assignment and Sale!

The inevitable has happened — the firm of R. M. Gray, Inc., Men's and Women's Clothing, has made a voluntary assignment for the benefit of the Company's creditors.

For years the firm has been struggling under a handicap of which the public knew nothing.

Eight years ago the firm lost heavily in the handling of its lease on the Broadway Building. Figuratively speaking, it broke its back.

—starts at 9 o'clock this (Friday) morning

Despite this serious wound, it made a brave fight through all the years intervening in its present location—repeatedly securing new footing only to lose it again through circumstances over which the management had no control.

The scene of the fight at last brought the firm up to that proverbial stone wall, the surmounting of which could not be accomplished in good business form.

Thus, the inevitable, namely, the firm's action in turning the stock over to its creditors to do with it as they thought best in order to get the money due them.

It has been decided to sell it at once at whatever sacrifice necessary to get quick action. Mr. Gray and his old force of assistants are retained in charge of selling.

The stock has been inventoried and prices deeply cut—in line with the above-mentioned policy—on every article of men's and women's fine clothing and men's furnishings.

Everything is in readiness to start the sale promptly at 9 o'clock this (Friday) morning—with plenty of salespeople to give you prompt attention, and with

DRUG SENTENCES HEAVY

NARCOTIC PEDDLERS SEVERELY HANDLED BY JUDGE BEAN.

Long County Jail Terms Imposed Upon Man and Woman Vendors on Pleas of Guilty.

Narcotic peddlers experienced little mercy in the federal court of Judge Bean yesterday and A. J. Price and Mrs. Gladys Gage, who pleaded guilty, were sentenced to the county jail for nine and six months respectively. L. Dean Gage, husband of the woman, pleaded not guilty to an indictment for drug vending and was held for trial. Price and Gage were arrested several months ago by federal officers. Mrs. Gage was not taken at the time, but a few days later she brought about her arrest when she attempted to smuggle narcotics to her husband and Price in the county jail by concealing them in a tooth-paste tube. Declaring that he was sorry that he could not inflict a jail sentence, Judge Bean imposed a fine of $500 on W. H. Smythe, confessed liquor runner.

James Lindenburg of La Grande pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with having robbed boxes in La Grande, in violation of the interstate commerce law, and was sentenced to five months in the county jail. He was formerly an employe of the O.-W. R. & N.
