

CONFERENCE IS HELD OVER VALERA'S NOTE

Hope Expressed for Settlement of Parley Crisis.

MEETING LASTS 3 HOURS

Premier Lloyd George Makes Government's Policy Clear in Talk to House of Commons.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—The first real crisis in the Irish conference, caused by Edmond de Valera's assertion of Ireland's independence last week, is not settled, but there are hopes, if not prospects, that it may be smoothed over or compromised.

Representatives of the British government and Dalí Eireann conferred early three hours today and this session was the only one before the conference, which adjourned until 4 p. m. tomorrow. The government was understood to have placed before the Sinn Fein delegates its ultimatum, or declaration, that Great Britain will deal with Sinn Fein Irish only as a part of the British empire and not with representatives of an independent republic.

Policy Is Made Clear. Premier Lloyd George made the government's policy clear to the house of commons this afternoon. De Valera's message was a "grave challenge" that the government's position on that question (meaning independence) had been made clear and that the conference could not proceed on any other basis.

The business of today's conference was described as an attempt to agree on a formula which would carry the conference over the apparent deadlock. While the Sinn Fein delegates have no special train or liner waiting, they say "our bags are always packed."

Branch Declared Desired. Some Sinn Fein followers professed to believe Mr. Lloyd George would welcome a branch, because he could then hold a general election on whether the government should concede the Sinn Fein's claims for a new lease of life for his party.

NOTE DECLARED BLAMELESS. Crisis in Conference Held Not Due to Message to Pope.

BELFAST, Ireland, Oct. 24.—Ernest Blythe, Sinn Fein minister, declared in a speech tonight that if there was any crisis in the Irish settlement it was not due to Mr. de Valera's telegram to the pope, which was very necessary.

PRINTING SCHOOL OPENS

NEW SPORANE INSTITUTION IS FULLY EQUIPPED.

Modern Machinery Is Installed and Students Begin Course of Study Under Experts.

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 24.—(Special.)—The Northwest School of Printing, said to be the best-equipped school west of the Mississippi river for teaching all phases of the printer's art, has opened in Spokane at North 318-24 Division street.

The school is owned and will be operated by the Northwest School of Printing, incorporated in the articles of incorporation the names of the following Spokane men appear as trustees: James A. McKee of the McKee Printing company, George Ross of the printing firm of Peterson & Ross, Walter N. Burns of Shaw-Borden company, Harry Hughes of the National Printing company, and Max Tonn, who has been named for superintendent.

Mr. Tonn will be assisted by a corps of competent instructors, and will closely supervise the work of students. He is a practical printer of many years' experience, having been foreman at the McKee printing plant in Spokane for 10 years, prior to going to Seattle about a year ago as mechanical superintendent of the Washington Envelope & Printing corporation.

It is understood the school has the endorsement of a large percentage of the printing interests of the Pacific northwest. It is stated the course of instruction will closely follow that of the printing school of Macon, Ga., which has met with great success since its commencement, early in 1920.

Our company contemplates training men and women to hold well-paid positions as operators in 13 weeks, said Mr. Tonn. The Northwest School of Printing starts off with a battery of 10 linotype machines, a web press, platen press, stereotyping machinery and all the necessary adjuncts of an up-to-date printing establishment.

Students will be enrolled in the order in which their applications are received. The capacity of our school is, of course, limited, and when it is reached, further enrollments will have to be placed on a waiting list until the graduation of operators makes room for more applicants.
