

21 ARMS ADVISERS TO BE BIG FACTOR

Body Is Expected to Reflect Public Opinion.

FIRST DEBATE WEDNESDAY

Committee Appointed to Help U. S. Delegates Looked To for Important Decisions.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 4.—The advisory committee of 21 selected by President Harding to act with the American big four at the armament conference will assemble three days in advance of the conference opening to give its opinion on the initiative steps of policy to be taken by this government.

A "reaction agency" was the way the committee was considered at all official circles today to illustrate the extent to which it will function in reflecting public opinion on the problems that come before the conference. It was indicated that some questions might be submitted directly to it for study before being considered at all by the big four, while in other cases sub-committees or advisers would be asked by the principal delegates to render opinion on details.

COLLEGE NEWS DISCUSSED

EDITOR OF REED PRESS SAYS SHORT STORIES ARE BEST.

Fewer Long Football Reports Are Urged as Needed Reform at Pacific Conference.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 4.—(Special.)—The need for more short feature stories and fewer long football reports was emphasized this afternoon at the first business session of Pacific Intercollegiate Press association at the University of Washington by William Stone, editor of the Oregon Daily Emerald, who was elected temporary chairman in the place of Robert Bender, the president, who was graduated last spring and was unable to be present.

Frank W. Bartlett of the Daily Californian, discussed staff organization at the morning meeting and told how the staff of the Berkeley paper was run. He explained that there are no women on the regular Californian staff, but that the new women of the college work under their own woman editor and the editor of the paper takes such of their stories as he sees fit.

BOSTON, Nov. 4.—Radical labor forces in America have reacted swiftly and powerfully to the violent protests raised in Europe against the execution of the death sentence on Sacco and Vanzetti, Italian communists in jail in the village of Dedham awaiting death for the murder of the Braintree paymaster and his guard.

Roused by the bomb throwing and threats against the lives of American diplomats, the reds in the United States are opening their purses to aid the Boston defense committee, and with the added funds it will be possible to carry through one of the greatest legal battles this country has known.

The bomb set off in the home of Ambassador Herrick in Paris appears to have accomplished its aim. The eyes of the radical forces of the world are centered on the Dedham cell and the money is coming in to help the condemned men.

STATE GUARD IN PARADE

Tens of Thousands of Citizens Line Streets, Cheer and Wave Flags as War Passes By.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—Citizens of Indianapolis and many Indiana cities and towns today paid homage to Marshal Foch in one of the greatest demonstrations ever witnessed here. Official guest of the American legation, whose national headquarters is located here, he was welcomed on practically the entire population of the city.

Practically the entire Indiana national guard, members of the American legion and uniformed cadets from Indiana and Purdue universities passed in review before the French warrior. The tens of thousands of citizens who were massed along the long line of march cheered, shouted and waved flags as the parade proceeded. The famous black-horse troops from Culver military academy acted as escort.
