F. S. STIMSON DROPS DEAD—AT HIS HOME

Owner of Hollywood Farm Succumbs at Seattle.

LIVESTOCK UNIT HEADED

President of Pacific International Is Stricken While Dressing for Thanksgiving Dinner.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 24.—(Special)—Fred S. Stimson, resident of Seattle for the last 30 years, owner of the famous Hollywood farm and other extensive holdings in the northwest, died suddenly in his apartment at the Hamilton Arms, 533 Broadway North, at 10 o'clock this morning of an attack of heart disease while he was dressing to attend a family Thanksgiving dinner party at Hollywood. Mr. Stimson was in California. With Mr. Stimson when he was stricken was his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Harold C. Stimson.

Mr. Stimson had been suffering from a severe cold contracted while attending the recent Pacific International Livestock exposition in Portland, of which he was president. He was feeling sufficiently well this morning, however, to plan to attend the dinner. He was partially dressed, when, without warning, he was stricken. His son-in-law, Dr. Walter A. Moore, arrived in a few moments, but Mr. Stimson had expired.

Mr. Stimson Born in East. Mr. Stimson was born in Grand Rapids, Mich., 42 years ago. He was president of the F. S. Stimson company, owner of Hollywood farm, owner of Hollywood poultry farm, Hollywood dairy and Hollywood gardens.

He also had large real estate and timber holdings. He was a life member of the Rainier club, Seattle Golf club and Arctic club and was recently re-elected president of the Pacific International Livestock association.

Mr. Stimson is survived by his widow, Mrs. Nellie Clarke Stimson; a daughter, Mrs. Walter A. Moore; two sons, Harold C. Stimson and Fred F. Stimson, and three brothers, Willard H. Stimson of Los Angeles, C. D. Stimson of Seattle and E. T. Stimson of San Francisco.

Livestock Show Promoted. Mr. Stimson was for several years a director and at the annual meeting in Portland, November 7, was elected to serve his second term as president of the Pacific International Livestock exposition.

He was one of the chief promoters of the exposition and it was largely through his efforts that the enterprise was put on the present sound foundation.

MR. STIMSON KNOWN HERE Prominent Part Taken in Stock Show Given Recently.

Many Portland people were surprised and grieved by the news of the sudden death of Fred S. Stimson, president of the Pacific International Livestock Show. During the 11 years since the beginning of the Pacific International, Mr. Stimson had increased his wide acquaintance among local citizens and was one of the best-known men in livestock and general business circles in the northwest.

He was recently re-elected president of the livestock association and only a few weeks ago, during the annual show, he was actively engaged in authoring its responsible for the success it attained. Several times during that week the crowds had occasion to listen to his addresses.

Although his interests were largely in Seattle, he also gave a great deal of time to Portland and was widely acknowledged responsible for the success and prominence which the stock show gained.

His interest in livestock was a natural one, for he owned the Hollywood dairy farm, one of the largest in the northwest, and also had 10,000 Lechorn chickens on the farm as a by-product. His stock is famous all over the United States, and the herds from the Hollywood farm contain many ribbon winners at the best of the country's shows.

He also owned several creameries for the distribution of his farm products and was interested in several Seattle banks. In this latter capacity he financed many young stock breeders in this section of the country to the benefit of the region.

BUILDING PERMITS GAIN Increase of 179 Per Cent Over October, 1920, Reported.

Portland made a gain of 179 per cent in value of building permits for October, 1921, compared with the same month last year, according to a resume of building conditions from the American controller. The figures showed that Salt Lake City was the only city west of the Rockies to exceed Portland.

The Salt Lake gain was 201 per cent. The valuation of permits last month in Portland aggregated $1,942,510, compared to Salt Lake City's total of $284,410. The totals for October of last year were $694,720 in Portland and $94,537 in Salt Lake City.
