NINE SEWER PROJECTS UP

ORDINANCES TO GO BEFORE COUNCIL TOMORROW.

Measures Are to Receive Final Consideration; Bryant-Street Programme Is One.

Nine sewer projects in districts on the east side are covered by ordinances which declare the cost of construction and which are to go before the city council at its session tomorrow for final consideration. They include:

- Sewer in Bryant street, from 100 feet west of East Thirteenth street to an existing sewer in East Seventeenth street.
- Sewer in Campbell street, from 106 feet south of Portland boulevard to a sewer in Campbell street.
- Sewer in Leland street, from East Thirteenth to East Twenty-second street.
- Sewer in Liberty street, from 120 feet west of East Twenty-ninth street to an existing sewer in the latter street.
- Sewer in Stanton street, from 450 feet east of East Sixty-eighth street to an existing sewer in the latter street.
- Sewer in East Sixth street, from 120 feet north of Ainsworth avenue to a sewer in Portland boulevard.
- Sewer in East Eighth street, from Webster to Webster streets.
- Sewer in East Twenty-third street, from 120 feet north of Ainsworth avenue to a sewer in Dekun street.
- East Yamhill and East Eightieth streets sewer system.

interpretative dances, full of pep and grace. The act is handsomely staged, the drop curtains being especially beautiful in color and design, and the four maids wear attractive and fresh looking raiment.

A charming mite with a mighty voice is Violet Carlson, a prima donna who does not confine all her vocal expression to operatic arias, an idea that meets with delighted approval from her audience. She has a lovely rich voice and her songs are appealing and well chosen.

Willard Mack may take the credit for the lines used in the conversational skit between Ethel Ray and Earl Foster, but it is their original and natural, and wholly fascinating way of saying the lines that garners the laughter. Both are fine in the art of pantomime and their little meeting in a hotel parlor and the man's efforts at a flirtation prove amusing and diverting.

Six Tip Tops have a great novelty act in which six youthful athletic chaps put over a series of wonderful adventures in leaping, tumbling and balancing, turning amazing whirls and entertaining generally.

Miss La Toy's models are smart little dogs of merry moods and a clever little pony. Miss La Toy is charming and sweet and puts her pets through a delightful series of tricks.

Many Teachers to Attend Meeting.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Dec. 26.—(Special.)—A large number of the Hood River county teachers will attend the annual convention of the State Teachers' association in Portland this week. Among them will be A. M. Vaannon, city school superintendent, and L. R. Gibbons, county superintendent.

CHEST PLANS DEVELOPING

TOTAL NEEDED MAY BE UNDER THAT OF 1921.

Campaign, It Is Expected, Will Begin in January; Services of Women Solicited.

Though the budget committee of the community chest has not completed its survey, indications are that the sum asked from Portland folk for charitable purposes the coming year will be smaller than the $250,000 required in 1921. This was announced by officials of the community chest yesterday.

The chest campaign will begin in all probability the last week in January, though the date has not yet been positively fixed. The goal sought cannot be announced until every organization seeking to share in the bounty of the community chest has made a report of its needs for 1922, the budget surveyed and allotments made. An effort is being made to keep the demand considerably under that of 1921, with the budget committee of the community chest acting in a role similar to that of the tax supervising and conservation commission.

Selection of the campaign chairman has not been made, the job being of the nature seldom sought by men most qualified to fill it. Personnel of the campaign committee, however, will be announced in a few days.

Girl Plans Vengeance

"You know, Julia, by rights I should be going around with murder in my eye. You know how shabby little Annabel used to dress until I took her in hand and she turned into a regular butterfly. Well, she is going to marry Dou, my former best beloved. They're crazy over each other. Well, I didn't care much about him anyway, so I'll forgive all and get even by sending them a pretty wedding present. Yes, about her clothes, I took her to Cherry's, 349 Morrison street. Oh, yes, Julia, they are open evenings until Christmas, and they take in the entire second floor at Park and Morrison, entrance 349 Morrison, center of block. Take elevator."—Adv.

At the Theaters.

Pantages.

A CHRISTMAS present in the form of a very fine bill was presented to Portland by Alexander Pantages, whose local theater in every week proving more popular because of the general excellence of the bills.

"The Night Boat" is a delightful episode that happens on a boat which plies the Hudson. A charming widow who has been shopping in New York is en route home and three of the victims with whom she has flirted while in the city have pursued her to the dock and later have taken the same night boat, each unbeknown to the other. Their efforts to engage in conversation with the woman, who seems most anxious to avoid meeting any of them, keeps the action flying and the audience roaring with laughter. A surprising climax arrives in the story when the captain of the boat turns out to be the woman's husband, and another climax arrives in a sleep walking scene at the close of the act.

A great deal of the enjoyment the sketch affords is in the fine characterizations made of the three types of men. C. MacLean Savage as an English chappie, William Rand as a youthful upstart of breezy ways and Frank E. Mitchell as an old philanthropist, frisky and rheumatic, are all exceedingly clever in their delineations and never get out of the parts.

The captain is nicely portrayed by Leonard Delmers, and a charming girl with gorgeous red hair, Hazel Hickey, plays the flirtatious widow alluringly.

"Melodies and Steps" is a diverting act, in which four interesting and talented young girls carry on in various moods of entertainment. Two of the girls are the Wyns sisters, whose name is expressive of their dancing, for it "wins" warm applause. They dance new and original steps and are graceful and pretty. Alvia Baker and Dorothy Brown are the other girls, one of whom is a pianist and saxophone artist of ability and the other of whom sings jazz and steps.
