

CASE OF STILLMANS HITS ANOTHER SNAG

Banker Refuses to Pay for Canadian Commission.

ALL TO BE DONE OVER

Latest Upheaval Means Few More
Months of Delay in Action Already Lasting 2 Years.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Although Mrs. James A. Stillman is in Canada interviewing local witnesses and steeling herself for the final fight in her divorce suit, her lawyers today tangled with the banker's counsel and there will be no Canadian commission as planned on January 11. There will be no more hearings in the suit for several months.

The formal process of reappointing another Canadian commission must be repeated. Mrs. Stillman's heretofore had gone for a hearing. It is probable that she will return to this city until the legal machinery is readjusted. This is what happened today to upset the Canadian drama: Counsel for Mrs. Stillman obtained an order from the Supreme Court Justice Mordue, calling upon the banker's lawyers to contribute $10,000 to the expenses of the Canadian commission. The Canadian commission was designed to take testimony that would support the Mrs. Stillman-Fred Stillman episode as outlined by the banker. Charges were made to be made that Mr. Stillman's agents employed "bribery and corruption."

Fred Beauvais to Testify.

Fred Beauvais was to testify, and Mrs. Stillman, so the plan went, would listen. But in the order that Mrs. Stillman's counsel obtained, the provision that if the banker's counsel refused to pay, all hearings would be automatically suspended until an appeal was decided. Cornelius J. Sullivan, chief counsel for the banker, said that he would not pay. Mr. Sullivan was sufficiently confident that he would win the case, but he said today that his mind was made up since the order obtained by Mrs. Stillman's counsel carries the stay of proceedings.

All Must Be Done Over.

If Mr. Sullivan does what he says he will, the Canadian commission has toppled before it has been created. After the appellate division decides upon the merits of the order, another commission must be appointed. Specifically, this means that counsel for Mrs. Stillman once more must apply for a commission, hold a hearing upon it, argue the case, present briefs, get the order decided, and then should they still desire to hold the Canadian hearings, they must either appeal the appeal or pay their own expenses.

"I thought that Mr. Sullivan would welcome the opportunity to hear the charges of bribery and corruption," Brennan, counsel for Mrs. Stillman, said. "He has a chance to cross-examine witnesses we will put forth, but refusal of funds means dragging the case and I see no advantage in this for him. Why should we pay the expenses for a Canadian commission?"

"We have paid sufficiently to enable them to hold the hearings without additional funds," said Mr. Sullivan. "We have adopted the case. We'll try to bring the appeal just as soon as we can, within a week at the latest."

Mrs. Stillman will learn of the postponement tomorrow and the news will doubtless come as a surprise, for today's decision was totally unexpected by the bankers of the case. It will, however, serve to add a few more months to the little less than two years in which the case has been in the court.

1925 FAIR TO BE HELD

ference of opinion as to the method of finance. Although the opinion that there is some ill-feeling existing against Portland, but that this feeling is not as deep nor abiding as some radicals would imply, and that this feeling is largely without justification.

Subsequently a resolution was offered proposing that a plan to finance the fair be initiated and left to the people to decide. James B. Kerr, who had been appointed to the effect that a sub-committee be appointed to work out a plan. This was about to be adopted when Edgar B. Piper called attention to the resolution showing that it did not sufficiently make clear the commitment of the committee to carry on the 1925 fair. The delegates instantly wanted that fact brought out in no uncertain terms, so Mr. Kerr redrafted the amendment and it was adopted, thereby streamlining two things:

1. The plans for the 1925 exposition will go forward;
2. A plan of finance will be worked out and offered to representative state bodies for approval and co-operation.

$500,000 Tax Proposed.

Herbert Gordon proposed that for financing the fair Portland hold an election and vote $500,000 as a property tax, wiping out the $2,000,000 tax voted in November; that another million be raised by subscription; that in the legislature of 1923 an appropriation of $1,000,000 be asked for a state building and exhibits and possibly another appropriation be asked in 1925 of the legislature. His plan would do away with initiating a measure in November.

Instant opposition to this plan came from W. W. H. of the opinion that county, who declared such a programme would make a hero of Multnomah county and the upstate doesn't want something like that, but the one receiving the highest vote was adopted. Mr. Mescham of Baker related the condition of the farmers, stockmen and sheepmen in that county and said that while the people want a fair they cannot afford to pay for it.

Proposal Not Acted On.

Mr. Gordon's proposal was not acted on, but the committee can consider it along with any other suggestions.

According to J. S. Dellinger of Astoria, Clatsop county will vote a property tax but the opinion he did not receive support from B. P. Stone, also of Astoria. Mr. Dellinger suggested that the gasoline tax and the property tax both be placed on the November ballot and the one receiving the highest vote be adopted. Mr. Mescham of Baker related the condition of the farmers, stockmen and sheepmen in that county and said that while the people want a fair they cannot afford to pay for it.

Also he spoke of the friction which has arisen over freight rates and the Umatilla-Walla Walla cut-off. Mr. Harrah endorsed Mrs. Mescham's views, saying that people are agreed they want the fair, but conditions in Umatilla are not good at present and much agitation has been raised by the organization of taxpayers' leagues which have become very radical.

Desire for Fair Reported.

F. O. Dockenbach of Salem reported that everyone wants the fair and wants someone else to pay for it. The gasoline finance plan he considered as equitable as any, as "it hits a large number of people as gently as possible."

He called attention to an objection to the gasoline tax which is that the railroads, timber owners and similar lines would not contribute to the tax. The gasoline tax, so these will have to be reached in another manner. C. E. Gates of Medford hoped the committee did not take the action of the Jackson county delegation in the legislature as expressing the sentiment of the county, saying that county was misrepresented, as the people who do things in that county are for the exposition. If the final plan calls for a subscription he said, the meeting at Jackson county will contribute as heavily as if a property tax was imposed.

State Exposition Favored.

"Hood River wants to know if it is to be a statewide exposition," said Truman Butler. "If it is to be a fair of temporary buildings, plenty of architecture and sundries, Hood River doesn't want it. But if it is to be a state exposition we are for it, for we want the state's underdeveloped resources exploited and we want a million population."

"It has always been the plan to make it an Oregon exposition," explained Chairman Meier. "It is to be an Oregon enterprise, to exploit the state and every corner of it. For Round-up at Pendleton for four months; an international regatta at Astoria; an international hog show at Clatsop; an international poultry show in Marion county; an international horse show for 60 or 90 days, and to get the visitors to see Crater Lake, the Oregon caves, and, in short, all of the scenic points and the fields and mountains of Oregon, that has been the intention from the beginning."

Portland Vote Is Cited.

The best proof that the people want the 1925 exposition is in the three votes it has received, said J. A. Thornburgh of Forest Grove. The first test was when Portland voted 4 to 1 the second when it was passed in the lower house at the legislature, and the third test was when it passed in the state senate by a small if not a constitutional majority.

Senator Meier made a motion that the finance plan be initiated for the November election and Senator Joseph declared that the plan of a gasoline tax should be carried out, and submitted in November. These motions were tabled, as it was the sense of the committee, after deliberation, that the finance plan will first have to evolve a programme before anything more can be done.

Portland Vote Is Cited.

Sometime next month the committee will probably be called to hear a report of the committee on a plan to finance the fair.

JACKSON FOR FAIR, VIEW

MEDFORD MAYOR SAYS SUP- PORT IS ASSURED.

Voluntary Stock Subscription to Put Project Over Would Get Big Contributions, He Says.

That Jackson county is behind the 1925 exposition and will support it in every way possible was the declaration of C. E. Gates, mayor of Medford, in an address delivered yesterday noon at the luncheon of the Progressive Business Men's club at the Benson hotel. Mr. Gates said that the action recently taken by members of the legislature is no criterion of the feeling in the county.

"It comes to a question of supporting the fair by a voluntary stock subscription. I am confident that our section of the state will contribute fully as heavily as if a tax had been put over as a means of financing it," he said.

The speaker referred to the many beauties of the state and declared that Oregon was to a large extent like a big art museum closed to the public.

"What we want to do is to open up the museum by bringing the traveling public here to see what we have declared. And the holding of the 1925 exposition will bring them. If we can get the traveling public to the state of California now, has we don't need to worry about other crops."

Mayor Baker, who introduced the speaker, urged the need of teamwork throughout the state, with a view to the development of the entire state.

Mark Daniels sang a solo and responded to an encore. He was accompanied by Miss Ruby Lloyd. The Misses Edna and Clara Low, two little Chinese girls, gave piano selections.

A committee on nominations chose the following officers to be voted on at the annual election next week: George W. Stapleton, president; Inez H. Hardman, first vice president; T. J. Webb, second vice president; H. P. Chapin, secretary-treasurer, and Mr. William P. Fiebig, C. W. Ertz, John A. Beckwith, Sherrard, G. C. Blohm and George H. Charters, members of the board of directors. The meeting was then thrown open for the placing of other nominations, but no one responded. The installation of officers will be held January 19.

conjunction with the primary contest in May.

The measure also was made by Senator Mescham that in case any one of the measures proposed by the legislature for submission to the voters, was found to be unconstitutional, the entire special election law would be invalidated.

On the strength of this showing Senator Eberhart of Union county described the agricultural bloc and voted for the passage of the election bill. As a result the measure received 16 votes.

SENATOR PENROSE BURIED SECRETLY

Funeral of Republican Solon Strictly Family Affair.

CEMETERY UNDER GUARD

Brief Services at Grave Veiled and Air of Mystery Shrouds All Phases of Obsequies.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—Buried with the greatest simplicity, "as was his desire," the body of Senator Penrose tonight rested in a brick-lined grave in South Laurel Hill cemetery beside that of his father. The grave was devoid of flowers. Guards who were thrown around the grave after the undertaker's assistants had lowered the bronze-lined casket into it shortly before 9 A. M. were still there at 10 P. M.

The same great secrecy that marked the making of the arrangements for the funeral was maintained until the end. No information beyond the brief obituary notice that the funeral would be "strictly private" was given out.

Hires at Grave Veiled.

Only the late senator and three brothers, Dr. Charles B. Richard, A. F. and Spencer Penrose and their families; Leighton C. Taylor, his secretary, and the nurse who accompanied the body from Washington, were in the funeral party. As the small cortege passed into the cemetery grounds the gates were locked and the guards warned away by the undertaker. No questions were answered and no one was permitted to see even from a distance the brief rites.

Mr. Taylor said tonight that there had been a short service at the grave, but that he did not know whether it was conducted by a minister. There were no services at the house. Everything was done in accordance with Senator Penrose's wishes, he said.

The will of Senator Penrose, leaving his entire estate to his three brothers, was the simplest of documents. It was filed late today. The estate is valued at $150,000 and upward, but friends said it was worth many times that sum. There were no public or individual bequests. The will was written on a single sheet of paper and dated June 10, 1905. It states that his entire estate is bequeathed to his three brothers, who also were named as executors. The brothers, however, have waived their rights as executors in favor of a financial institution. The executor was instructed to file "no inventory or account of any kind of my estate."

Newspaper Set Watch.

Newspapers that regard the burial of a United States senator as a matter of public interest set a watch on the funeral of the country as an important piece of news, set a watch on practically the same plan as death watches are set on prominent persons who are believed to be dying.

A report that Senator Penrose's funeral was to be held at midnight in order to avoid undue publicity, made the vigil of reporters almost an all-night affair.

About 7:30 A. M. today the three brothers arrived at the Spruce street home, where the senator's body lay, and where he was born. Four automobiles, each with a driver, were parked in the house about the same time. A little later Charles Penrose, who is a physician, and had attended the senator, came out on the front step and waved his arm and seemingly from nowhere a hearse approached the house.

Reporters Not Admitted.

A few minutes later the body of the senator was brought out and the hearse, followed by the four automobiles, proceeded to the cemetery. The bodies of the brothers, started for the cemetery. Reporters who were on watch at the cemetery yesterday were not admitted today. The funeral party through a steady rain to the last resting place of the dead. The senator was buried in the cemetery at 10:15 minutes and left before 9 o'clock.

Political Leaders Excluded.

Political leaders from every county in the state came to Philadelphia within the last few days to do honor to the dead senator and not a single one of them was admitted. The senator was invited to the bachelor home of the senator where many political conferences have been held.

Questions were asked why the family desired secrecy in the burial of the senator, and the answer of close political friends was that the senator hated pomp and ceremony and that it probably was his wish that he be buried as simply and with as little commotion as possible. It is said to have been a tradition in the Penrose family, which is one of the oldest in the city, that all funerals of members be strictly private.

GOAT DAIRY STOCK SOLD

Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Herring Acquire Interests of Two Others.

Changes have just been made in the ownership of the Portland Goat Dairy company, owner of the largest goat farm in Oregon, whereby Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Herring have taken over the interests of M. E. Allen and A. C. Gage, and have become associated with Dr. J. Murphy, who was one of the original incorporators. The goat dairy is located at Fremont and East Eighty-second street, and practically all of its milk supply at present goes to feed babies in delicate health. About 40 Portland babies are living on goats' milk from this dairy. From 150 to 200 goats are kept on a tract of 700 acres, leased from the O. W. R. & N. company. In the herd are some of the finest specimens of Nubian, Toggenberg and Saanen strains.

A small plant for making cheese from goats' milk has been installed, the experimental runs have been highly successful and it is expected that cheesemaking will be started on a commercial scale early in the spring, when the milk supply is increased. Dr. Murphy is president of the corporation, has been a goat raiser for 22 years.

Name Given Dormitory.

GIRLS' INSTITUTION TO BE KNOWN AS SMITH HALL.

Structure of State Recently Completed at Home for Feeble-Minded at Cost of $47,500.

SALEM, Or., Jan. 5.—(Special.)—The state board of control at a meeting today named the new girls' dormitory, recently completed, at the state home for the feeble-minded for Dr. J. N. Smith, superintendent of the institution. The structure cost approximately $47,500, including furnishings, and has a capacity of 50 patients.

The board heard a number of complaints lodged against J. F. Meyers, superintendent of the Oregon Employment Institute for the Blind, located in Portland. These complaints were from inmates of the institution and alleged that Mr. Meyers was arbitrary in his rulings and that conditions were not as satisfactory at the institution as was desired.

The board of control took the position that Mr. Meyers had charge of the institution, and that he would be held personally responsible for its conduct. As a result of this ruling Mr. Meyers announced that at least two inmates of the institution who had defied the rules laid down by the superintendent would be dismissed.

Superintendents of practically all of the state institutions reported that they had kept their expenses within their appropriation for the first year of the biennium.

ANDERSON'S END SURPRISE

MANY MEN AT MEDFORD WERE WOULD-BE HUSBANDS.

Woman Who Disappeared With Money Inserted Matrimonial Ad in Valley Newspapers.

Two Roads Projected Farmers Procure Money to Help Build Lane County Highways.

Medford, Or., Jan. 5.—(Special.)—The surprising termination of the romance of Carl Anderson of Medford, 29-year-old bachelor, and Nan White or Whiting, or Betty McPhee, woman of several names, apparently married, and held up some of her callers here last night, was a surprise to many men and young men of Medford and vicinity, who answered the alluring newspaper advertisement for a husband. Anderson was finally chosen as the prospective bridegroom from the long list of entries.

The bride-to-be arrived in Medford two weeks ago, rented a postoffice box, registered at a local hotel as Nan Whiting and told some of her callers her name was Betty McPhee. She then inserted an advertisement in the Medford, Roseburg and some other Willamette valley newspapers as follows: "Wanted—Real pal. Is there a man, honest, sincere, of means, who would appreciate a real position, pleasing personality, no in-cumbrances. Have means. Fond of color. If interested, write to Anderson's money in Portland yesterday."

According to postal employees and hellos the woman received a heavy mail and held many conferences with Dr. W. E. Thompson, a local physician, who was registered at the hotel. But the ringing never was taken when she disappeared with Anderson's money in Portland yesterday.
