

CLUB WOMEN FAVOR DANCING IN SCHOOLS

Stand of Methodist Ministers and Laymen Opposed.

EXPERT ON GIRLS SPEAKS

Mrs. Baldwin Backs Up Pastors by Declaring Temptation Past in Way of Youths.

Prominent club women of the city, when interviewed yesterday, did not agree with the stand taken by Methodist Episcopal ministers and laymen Monday against dancing in public school buildings of Portland.

On the other hand a strong supporter of the stand against dancing is Mrs. Lola G. Baldwin, head of the women's protective division.

"I am not opposed to dancing in the auditoriums of public schools, provided the dances are given under the proper auspices and the young people are well protected," said Amedee M. Smith, a Methodist minister.

"I do not dance myself and I do not know that any good comes from dancing, but I think the Parent-Teacher women have made an earnest effort to provide clean, wholesome amusement for their children."

"I believe that the schools should be kept free from dancing. I think there should be nothing in the schools which any parents can criticize. We should hold our schools for other forms of recreation."

"Dancing in the schools tends to break down the morale of some homes. Parents who do not wish their children to dance are in an embarrassing position. The dances are held in the school buildings and the parents find it hard to keep their children from going to such affairs."
