MISS BROWNING IS CHAMPION DISTANCE JUMPER OF THEATER

Outstanding Member of "London Folies" Cast Hops From London, England, to Seattle, Wash., to Join De Courville Revue.

THE champion long-distance jumper of the world, theatrically speaking, is Miss Connie Browning, who is an outstanding factor in making "London Folies," the English revue at the Hellig, the answer to a theatrical prayer.

Miss Browning may possibly be described best as the modern counterpart of the familiar heroine of the Scottish ballad, "Bonnie Sweet Bessie, the Maid of Dundee." First, because she is bonnie and sweet in a superlative degree, and, secondly, because she is not English, but a product of Dundee, Scotland, a city hitherto known best for its dainty linens and sturdy ships.

"Right-o," says she. But to get back to the jump championship. Just before Christmas Miss Browning was playing a "single act" in London and her performance one night was offered the leading feminine role in an Albert de Courville revue, and asked if she could accept it immediately.

"Right-o," said Miss Browning. "Where shall I report for work?" "Seattle, Wash., U. S. A.," answered the De Courville agent.

Miss Browning gave a little gasp. In Great Britain a "jump" means a leisurely ride of an hour or two. A four-hour trip is talked of for weeks in the dressing rooms. And here was a person suggesting a trip of 7000 miles to a girl who had never been away from her mother and England before.

First Steamer Caught.—Miss Browning's steamer and caught the first steamer for New York. Then came a voyage which she describes as "frantically rough and unpleasant."

"There were 23 nationalities represented on the boat," she said. "When we landed at New York, what do you think happened? They let the Americans off first, and I had to wait a long time because I was classed as an alien. I never thought we were aliens before."

"I had a difficult time with American money, but I made out all right. I had a lot of money, but I had to pay for anything. I just handed over all my money and told them to take out the right amount and give me the balance. I was very happy. I was honest, for I got to Seattle with cash left."

Role Handled Successfully.—Last Sunday night Miss Browning was the star of the first time. The next night she appeared in the cast and handled an exacting role with triumph success that has become a legend.

There is not a speck of affectation in Connie Browning. She talks with a simple enthusiasm about a wide variety of things. She is a girl, clean, clean, clean, electric signs, and other big taxicabs. In her spare time

MOUNT SCOTT WANTS PARK.—The Mount Scott Improvement association, which meets at the Arleta branch library, devoted considerable time at its meeting this week to a discussion of the prospects of obtaining for park purposes the triangular section of land lying between the library building and Foster road. It was determined to devote the energies of the association to this project until it is accomplished. A committee reported that Commissioner Pier, who has supervision of parks, had given encouragement to the plan and believes it can be worked out during the ensuing year. It is proposed to raise the unsightly buildings now on this triangle and to have the land parked as a proper setting for the public library building.

BONUS QUESTIONNAIRE OUT.—The Oregon state chamber of commerce has received from the chamber of commerce of the United States referendum No. 33, the subject of which is legislation for veterans of the world war, the different chambers being asked to fill out different questions in connection with this subject. Among other questions to be answered are whether a national system of reclamation should be initiated through adequate federal appropriations to help ex-service men in an opportunity to cultivate the soil, help in building homes, approval of legislation for national education and legislation for a general bonus through cash or deferred through use of certificates.

ADVENTURERS PLAN CHAPEL.—Rev. G. A. Roberts, who recently was elected as president of the western Oregon conference of the Seventh-day Adventist church, with headquarters at 805 East Everett street, announced that tentative plans are under way for building a chapel on the hill overlooking the new Portland cantonment, near the intersection of East Sixtieth and Belmont streets. Work on the hospital building has been delayed so that it may be five or six weeks before it is opened formally. The proposed chapel would cost approximately $10,000, said President Roberts, and it is to be built exclusively through donations.

BRIDGE AND SHACK FOR SALE.—The city has advertised for sale an old bridge and a small shack, to the highest bidder, for cash, at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the end of Macrum avenue in East St. Johns and also at Thirteenth and Lombard streets. The old bridge formed the entrance to the field of the construction of the East Thirteenth street trunk sewer, which work was done directly by city forces.

PEANUT FACTORY MEANS EXPENSE.—The Hoody Peanut Butter company, manufacturer of peanut products, is installing its equipment and increasing its plant in new quarters, a two-story brick building 50 by 100 feet in size at East Oak and East Eighth streets, on which it has taken a five-year lease. The company now is distributing its products in nine of the western states and finds a constantly expanding market. It has just received three carloads of peanuts from Texas, heretofore depended upon as the main supply.

METALWARE COMPANY FORMED.—P. A. Purdin and C. C. Purdin have organized the Purdin Metalware company with the plant located at 88 North Second street. The company will engage in the manufacturing of light tanks, ash cans, wood stoves and camp stoves.

"Rush Hours"

In all lines of business patronage is irregular. Street cars, stores, banks and restaurants have their "rush hours" when some delays in service are unavoidable. The public, with the situation before its eyes, good naturedly accepts a degree of inconvenience.

There are "rush hours" in a telephone exchange. With business service the "loads" of telephone traffic are determined by commercial activities, banking hours, etc.—the "load" of the residence telephone varies with household and social needs.

The demands upon the telephone operator and a complicated mechanical equipment cannot be seen, but telephone traffic varies in every hour of every day according to the individual desires of thousands of patrons.

If there should be at times a delay in answering your call, remember that trained young women with nimble fingers are doing their best to serve you, and that at the moment there may be a "rush" of telephone traffic.

The exercise of patience and consideration will mean better service.
