

NEARLY ALL BRITISH POLICE QUIT ERIN

Only Two Battalions of Auxiliaries Left.

THESE WILL GO TODAY

City Hall of Dublin to Be Turned Over to Municipal Authorities by Military.

DUBLIN, Jan. 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—All the British auxiliary police except two battalions have left Ireland. These two will leave tomorrow. Today the evacuation of the British army in Ireland began in earnest. Soldiers are waiting here to convey the troops, which were scheduled to arrive for embarkation by seven special trains.

Eight military airplanes left for England today.

The city hall tomorrow will be returned to the municipal authorities by the military and will be used by the provisional government as headquarters for the present instead of the Mansion house.

Bank of Ireland Agent.

Announcement was made tonight that the bank of Ireland had agreed to act as agents for the Irish free state.

During the repression period Sinn Fein funds for the most part were camouflaged to avoid seizure by the British government. They were kept at various banks. The choice of the bank of Ireland by the new ministry is taken here as indicating a disregard for any merely political considerations, as the bank of Ireland has been largely governed by unionists.

A striking tribute to the departing British troops was made by General Sir Nevil MacLisdey, military commander of Ireland, in a special order of the day.

Day of Appreciation Is Expresed.

The government having decided that the time has arrived to commence withdrawing troops from Ireland, I wish to express deep appreciation for the services they rendered the time they formed part of the Irish command.

"While I feel there is no desire by the army to take up past animosities or bitterness, you have been called to perform duties in many respects repugnant to our traditions and devoid of all the glamour of war, though in many ways entailing greater strain and greater individual dangers."

"The call has been answered in a manner worthy of the best traditions of the service. I honestly believe no other troops in the world would or could have carried through the work in which you have been engaged without loss of morale or prestige."

PEACE EFFORTS REVIEWED

Raising of More Troops for Ireland Barely Averted.

EDINBURGH, Jan. 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—At a political meeting tonight Austen Chamberlain, government leader in the house of commons, revealed that at the time of King George's visit to Belfast the British government was maturing plans to raise 100,000 additional men to carry on the struggle in Ireland with the utmost vigor and to institute martial law. The government, he declared, had already put every gallon of petrol in Ireland that could be spared, but they were inadequate to carry the struggle to the end.

"On the morning of the king's return," he added, "I said to the premier: 'I think our countrymen will expect we should follow up in action the words you have said at Belfast. We are to use and that before invoking our country to great efforts and bloodshed we should make yet another effort for peace.' The premier agreed and our colleagues, when consulted, also agreed."

MORAL DECADENCE SEEN

Conditions Angur Disintegration of Nation, Avers Speaker.

Moral decadence of the United States as reflected in the modern dance, the divorce problem, the moral downfall of motion pictures and the attitude observed toward the protection of the nation after the manner of ancient empires, according to declaration of William J. Johnson, associate secretary of the Presbyterian temperance and welfare union, before the City club luncheon at the Benson yesterday.

Mr. Johnson branded divorce and remarriage as consecutive polygamy and characterized it as equal in character to other forms of matrimony. One divorce to 2 1/2 marriages and Washington, one to 3 1/2, he declared.

Mr. Johnson indicated that he felt the Portland divorce situation was no more serious than in other cities throughout the country. It is a great destroyer of moral virtue, he declared.

INSURANCE CASE BEGUN

Writ of Mandamus Served on Head of Public Works Department.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Jan. 20.—A writ of mandamus issued by the state supreme court today directed E. V. Kuykendall, head of the state public works department, to show cause why he should refuse to accept insurance policies on motor vehicle passenger carriers through the automobile insurance exchange of Seattle. The hearing was set for January 24. The complaining company alleged it has complied with the insurance laws of the state and has issued surety bonds on a large number of motor buses, which formerly were passed by the state department.

Although the case has been in the supreme court before, no ruling was made directly on the validity of the policies, and Director Kuykendall informed the company he could not accept the policies until the situation had been clarified.

FATHER GIVES BODY AWAY

FUNERAL EXPENSES SPARED THAT FAMILY MAY EAT.

Joseph Springer Lewis, 39, Gives Up Struggle of Life—Profit to Science Is Desired.

Joseph Springer Lewis, aged 39, gave up the struggle for life last Saturday morning in the modest little cottage at 418 East Morrison street, after suffering for months from cancer. His body was to go to the medical school of the University of Oregon at his own request.

"Neighbors of the Lewis family who knew the death of the father of six little children was momentarily expected, did not know of his unusual request, when the grim reaper knocked at the door of the little cottage, they naturally wondered that no undertaker called at the home. But late that afternoon a truck from the medical school drove up to the Lewis home, men entered the house and later came out with a box holding the body. This was put on the truck and driven away. That was the funeral rite for Joseph Springer Lewis."

SCIENCE HARMONY URGED

JUDGE DISCUSSES NAMING OF 3 CHURCH TRUSTEES.

Controversy Must End Soon or There Will Be No Funds Left, Is Court's Declaration.

BOSTON, Jan. 20.—The considerations which govern selection of three new trustees of the Christian Science Publishing society were outlined by Judge Crosby at a hearing in the supreme court today. After listening to arguments for and against the appointment of three men suggested by the directors of the First Church of Christ, Scientists, he said he would not make the appointment at this time.

"I have not in mind," he said, "three persons whom I at this time believe I can appoint or am likely to appoint."

He said that the trustees were called on to perform duties as defined by the trust deed of 1885, by which Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy created the trust governing the society, and that if they did not so perform their duties they were subject to removal by the court.

He said that the church had been "wholly disrupted" since the beginning of the litigation between the trustees and the directors.

"There has got to be harmony," he declared. "If the trustees to be appointed are trustees who will be engaged in differences with the directors this controversy will go on indefinitely. It seems to me that if any Christian Scientist desires to see success and growth and permanency of this organization, this controversy must stop and if it continues much longer there will be a condition financially which will make it perhaps of little moment whether there are trustees or not."

PORTLAND ROSE PREMIER

FRENCH EXPERT ALSO GIVES SHRUBBERY HIGH PRAISE.

Portland's roses and shrubbery outrank those of other cities of the United States and of Europe, in the opinion of R. L. Chenault, junior member of R. L. Chenault & Sons, rose and shrub specialists of Portland, who left last night for Seattle after spending three days in the park, nurseries and private rose gardens of Portland and vicinity. Mr. Chenault was greatly impressed with the Washington park test garden, which he declared was the most complete he had ever seen. Mr. Chenault is a soldier of France, who served four and one-half years in the infantry and received two wounds. His family has been engaged in the growing of roses and shrubs for generations. Mr. Chenault has studied methods in England and has been on exploring expeditions in various parts of the world to obtain specimens for cultivation and propagation. During his stay here he arranged for the shipment of some rose plants and native shrubs of Oregon from the city parks and nurserymen to his firm in France.

Mr. Chenault was influenced to visit Portland during his trip through America by the advice of his friend, M. Lyons, France, creator of the Madame Caroline Testout or Portland rose.

During his stay here he was entertained by leading rose growers and fanciers of the city. He spent a part of the day yesterday at the Oregan nursery.

WORTHY MAN IS IN NEED

Patrolman to Lose Job Because of Civil Service Rules.

Mayor Baker and City Commissioner Bigelow are wondering just now whether in this large city there is any one who can and will give employment to a worthy man, about to lose his job on the police force because of civil service rules, and who has five children, eldest 14, to support and mother, as well as father. This man, they say, is competent for certain work, although having been shot through the arm in capturing a criminal. He has no civil service rating and must be dismissed—and the mayor and commissioner are asking, "who will give employment of some suitable nature to this worthy man?"

FARMERS AT GRESHAM

Week Declared to Be Successful in Spite of Cold.

GRESHAM, Or., Jan. 20.—(Special.)—Farmers' week at Gresham has, on the whole, been very successful, although the cold weather has kept away the large crowds that were expected. Monday and Tuesday there were only a few out, but on Wednesday the hall was crowded.

There has probably been more interest in this year's programme than ever before. The feature of having the women meet in the library to discuss their own problems has "tomorrow" will mark the close of the week and will probably be the biggest day from point of attendance.

ROAD BONDS DELIVERED

OREGON CITY, Or., Jan. 20.—(Special.)—Alfred Dunn, county treasurer, went to Salem yesterday, where he delivered to the state highway commission—Clackamas county's 5 per cent road bonds, amounting to $100,000. This amount is to be applied on the Oregon City-West Linn bridge now under construction.

"comfortably clad, happy and contented," an investigating committee reported to Judge Graham in juvenile court yesterday. The committee was appointed last November, following a suggestion from a medical student to the court that Mrs. Cosidente, mother of five, should submit to an operation to prevent her from bearing more children. It was contended the children were not receiving the proper care.

In explaining a statement made at the November hearing today, Judge Graham said:

"If I were going to recommend sterilization, I most certainly would not recommend it alone on the basis of the statement made upon each of the offspring who prove to be feeble-minded or dangerously delinquent."

The court ordered the Cosidentes placed on probation.

DR. VILLERS STARTS SOON

WHITE TEMPLE DUTIES TO BE TAKEN UP MARCH 1.

Detroit Minister Telegraphs That He Is Closing Up Work and Preparing to Leave.

Dr. Thomas J. Villers will arrive in Portland with his family in time to assume on March 1 the duties of his pastorate of the First Baptist church, to which he recently was called unanimously, according to a special delivery letter received from him by H. W. Stone, chairman of the local pulp supply committee. He is making preparations to that end and is closing up his work in First church, Detroit, Mich.

"As I telegraphed you on Saturday, January 14, I accept the call of your church and, God willing, shall begin my pastorate with you on March 1," wrote Dr. Villers. "I profoundly appreciate your hearty and unanimous desire to have me as pastor and, in response to your warmth of action, I already find myself turning to you with eager and affectionate expectancy, despite the fact that it is painful to leave here, where the people by their unwearied kindness during nearly nine years have bound us to them with very strong ties."

"From the beginning of your approach, the conviction kept growing on me that God wants me in Portland. Then when your judgment was supplemented by that of the pastors conference and other denominational leaders outside your own membership, I could no longer doubt. So I accept without hesitancy and shall take up the work with fervent gladness."

"I crave your prayers. I am sure I shall have your united and enthusiastic co-operation. Without God and you, I can do nothing. But recalling the apostolic assurance that we are strong for all things in him who announces us, we shall look forward to mighty achievements in his name."

Dr. Villers' family consists of Mrs. Villers and a daughter, mother and daughter are widely known pianists and wield a great influence in the work of First church, Detroit. Dr. Villers will succeed Dr. William A. Waddell, who left this church to become pastor at Corvallis. Since then the pulpit has been filled from time to time by special arrangement.

Plans are being made by the local congregation's committee to tender Dr. Villers and his family a reception after arrival here, which probably will be late in February, the exact date not having been set.
