

SUPPLY OF PRODUCE TO BE INCREASED

Eggs to Be More Plentiful on Market Today.

GOOD APPLES AVAILABLE

Purchases of Potatoes Only in Small Lots Advocated Because of Frost Danger.

The supply of vegetables and winter produce on the public market today probably will be the largest in the last two weeks, although cold weather conditions will prevent it reaching the normal volume, according to Market Master Eastman.

The variety of winter vegetables has been somewhat limited, owing to the late winter season, and cold weather has hindered the preparation for market of those still in the field and those stored.

Mr. Eastman warned against the purchase of potatoes in anything but small quantities for the next few days. Frost damage, which makes potatoes practically unfit for use, probably will not show for a day or two, until they are thoroughly thawed out. In many cases the farmers themselves can not tell that their product has been injured.

Eggs 29 Cents Today. Eggs will be at the 29-cent level today, seven cents above the market of a few days ago.

Good Apples Available. A large quantity of good-grade apples are still upon the public market at 4 and 5 cents a pound for small quantities and from 2 to 2 1/2 cents for first-class box apples.

"CABIRIA" one of the greatest spectacular productions ever made, opens at the Peoples theater today. This picture was first shown in this country in 1914.

"Cabiria" was made in Italy. Gabriele d'Annunzio, the poet-soldier, wrote the scenario, supervised the settings and directed the majority of the scenes.

It serves to remind the public that spectacular pictures are not a development of the last few years. A volcano in eruption is one of the first effects presented and there follow the destruction of a fleet and the clash of rival armies to furnish additional thrills.

The picture is said to be correct historically and d'Annunzio, to achieve this result, spent much time in preparation and nearly two years in making the picture. The mode of fighting in ancient days is particularly well presented, it is stated.

"Cabiria" is founded on the struggle of Rome and Carthage for old-world supremacy. The story deals with Carthage, a young girl, who is homeless after the eruption of Vesuvius. Fate throws her into the hands of the Carthaginians, where she is saved from the sacrificial altar by Maestri, a giant slave, who is with his master on a secret mission from Rome. Maestri rescues Cabiria, but is sentenced to life imprisonment, chained to a millstone. The entrance of the victorious Roman army at an auspicious moment furnishes an exciting climax.

Screen Gossip. Those who have read "Fanny Herself" Edna Ferber's story, at the moments in the lives of simple people, will particularly enjoy "No Woman Knows," which will be the attraction at the Blue Mouse theater for only one week, starting today.

The story concerns a young girl, who risks her own happiness in order to give greater comfort to her brother. The picture is said to be interesting because of its sincerity and dramatic force. "No Woman Knows" is the second big production to come from the producers of Priscilla Dean's recent success, "Conflict."

"The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari," European impressionistic mystery picture, which was presented at the Star theater for two days this week, will come back to the Star next Saturday for an extended showing. This picture was withdrawn to allow minor changes, has been revised and is now ready for showing.

Betty Compson, who is rapidly becoming one of Portland's screen favorites, is to follow Jackie Coogan as the featured attraction at the Liberty. "The Law and the Woman" is the name of her latest vehicle. Miss Compson's picture, the film version of the James M. Barrie's "Little Mister," just finished showing at the Columbia.

Poll Negri, delineator of tragedy in to appear next week at the Majestic in "The Last Payment," a story of the fight of a father and son for the same woman's love.

Chinese Better Babies—of Portland, too—form one of the interesting sidelights on local life in this week's run of "Screenland News" at the Columbia. Dozens of smiling oriental tots were caught by the photographer. Other interesting local views include "The Indian Stick Game," a showing of a group of eastern Oregon Indians engaged in their favorite gambling game; a series of photographs of the twins of Portland, and views of the survivors of Oregon's old Indian tribes, who gathered in the city last week.

High prices of timber land, as realized in returns to the owner for stumpage, were thought to have reached the top here during the war, when Frank Boutin is said to have received that much for one or two acres of white cedar on it.

Make this white sauce, by melting 2 tablespoons butter, rub in 2 tablespoons flour, add 1/2 teaspoonful salt and few grains cayenne pepper, then stir 1 1/2 cups scalding milk into blended mixture. Cook 10 minutes. 2. Chop Tillamook cheese fine and stir, bit by bit, into the hot sauce, being careful to melt each spoonful of cheese before adding more.
