JAPAN DISCLAIMS DESIGNS ON RUSSIA

Evacuation of Siberia Also Is Promised.

IS. DISCUSSION

No Opposition by Any of "Big Five" Delegations Indicated-Quick Agreement Expected.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 23 .- (By the Associated Press.)-A sweeping disclaimer of any design against the territorial integrity of Russia, coupled with a pledge to withdraw the Japanese troops stationed in Siberia when orderly conditions are restored, was presented to the arms conference far eastern committee today by the Japanese delegation and was received with a general show of satisfaction by the other principal delega-

The general view was that the whole Siberian problem touched on today for the first time soon would be disposed of on the basis of the Japanese pledges.

In connection with the Japanese statement regarding Siberia, it was revealed that the American government had addressed a communication on that subject to Tokio shortly before the conference met and that the Japanese foreign office had replied wirtually in the same terms as laid down at today's committee meeting by Baron Shidehara. The American note was said to have pointed out that the American forces having been withdrawn from Siberia there was much speculation as to why Japanese troops remained.

Subject Not Discussed.

American spokesmen would not dis-suss the subject tonight in advance of the formal statement of view to be made tomorrow, but it was learned that the American government was deeply impressed with the Japanese statement and was disposed to regard it as a soletnn piedge behind which the conference could not properly go. Baron Shidehara said that since the last column of Czecho-Slovakia troops embarked from Vladivostok in Sep-tember, 1820. Japan has been looking braska legislature will meet tomortember, 1810. Japan has been looking forward to an early moment for the withdrawal of her troops from Siberia. He said the only region which now remains to be evacuated is a southern part of the maritime province around Vladivostok and Nikosk. "It will be appreciated that for Japan the question of the withdrawal of troops from Siberia is not quite as simple as it was for other allied powers, he said. There is a considerable number of Japanese residents who had lawfully established themselves in Siberia long before the bolshevik and Siberia long before the bolshevik eruption. In 1917 prior to the Japanese military enterprise the number of such residents was $117.

Plans which would justify withdrawal of Japanese troops with reasonable precaution for the security of Japanese residents and for the Korean frontier, were in the mind of Japanese government, he said, when negotiations were opened at Dairjen, with an agent of the Chita government. Negotiations, he said, looked to the conclusion of provisional commercial arrangements, the removal of the existing menace to the security of Japan and to the lives and property of Japanese residents in eastern Siberia. From a sub-committee a report was submitted recommending continuance of the present inter-allied control of the Chinese Eastern road with provisions for financing and policing. The Chinese member, however, dissented from the financing article, proposing an international commession of financial control and from the proposition to continue policing of the line by Japanese troops. As a result the subject was transferred to a new sub-committee headed by Ežihu Root.
