

BONUS IS EXPECTED TO SURVIVE FIGHT

Enmity of Congress Grows
but Is Not Enough.

CASH IS BIG OBSTACLE

Payment of Money to ex-Soldiers
Regarded as Taking Much
From Nation's Capital.

(Copyright, by the New York Evening Post, Inc. Published by Arrangement with WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 31.—(Special).—There is increasing opposition in congress to the bonus measure, but there are no signs that there is sufficient of it materially to impede the progress of the bill. Some of the strongest senators in both parties will both oppose and vote against the bill, and if the existing opposition should become better organized it may achieve formidable momentum.

There are many members both in the house and senate who are opposed to the bill and many others who take the same attitude now that President Harding himself took last July, namely, that for the present, at least, the treasury is in no condition to stand the strain.

It is no more convenient for the treasury to meet this burden today than it was last July. From one point of view, it is less convenient for the treasury has immediately ahead of it the business of finding money, about $2,500,000,000 of notes falling due in the next 15 or 16 months.

Friends Highly Organized.
If those who oppose the bonus on principle and those who think it should at least be deferred, could get a sufficient amount of organized backing on the part of public opinion that is opposed to the bill, the situation might conceivably change. Those who favor the bill are highly organized.

The opposition to it is scattered. Much of this opposition comes from farmers in the west. Still more of it comes from farmers in the south. If a popular poll were taken in the south, it is doubtful if it would be in favor of the measure.

The farmers and business men in the north anticipate that if the negro ex-soldiers received cash sums of $500 to $400 a month, they would stop working until the money was spent and it is feared that the spring planting season in the south would be hampered by lack of labor. Much opposition also comes from chambers of commerce and other organized trade bodies.

Ex-Soldiers Want Money.
Members of congress who have let it be known that they are going to oppose the bill have received a surprising amount of support from the ex-soldiers. The number of these who regard the measure as undesirable is unexpectedly large. There can be no doubt, however, that the bulk of the ex-soldiers want the money, and are making their wishes known in the most effective way.

In the demands for the money on the part of the ex-soldiers there is a curious psychological factor. They say it is not merely that they want the money. As they express it, they "don't want to seem like suckers." As one soldier expressed it, "The soldiers would gladly have fought for nothing, if the patriotism that war demanded of them by law had also been extended to other classes of the community. The real reason that most of us want and demand the bonus is not so much that most of us also need it, but it is in resentment against being made 'suckers' by the people who made money, and lots of it, during the war."

Stamp Note Often Heard.
Again and again in the arguments of the soldiers for the bonus arises the same note—that they had to go away and fight for a dollar a day and come back with hardly enough money to pay carfare, only to find their friends and acquaintances who had not been in the army riding in automobiles bought out of the four or five or six dollars a day which became the usual wages of civilian labor while the war was on.

There is, of course, not an economist in the country who does not realize that whatever we pay in the shape of a bonus will be just that much added to the cost of a war that ended more than three years ago. They realize also that for the most part this money will be taken out of the capital of the country and will be spent in such a way that so far as the country's capital is concerned, it will have disappeared.

Education Eyed Differently.
If this bonus could be given in the shape of education to the ex-soldiers or in helping them to acquire farms or homes, or in any other way that would not be a subtraction from the country's capital, the project would look different to many thoughtful persons, who oppose it in the shape in which it is now proposed.

The chief possibility of effective opposition to the bonus lies in the difficulty of finding the money to pay it. There is no representative of senator who is now in favor of the bonus but admits that no satisfactory way has been found to raise the money.

There are no unexplored areas where new taxes in large sums can be laid. Most of the possible sources of revenue have already been searched with a fine-tooth comb in the making of the tax statutes already in existence. Some want the money raised by the mere sale of government bonds, but it is understood that there is enough opposition to this method to make it impossible. It has been proposed that very high taxes be put upon pleasure automobiles and some other luxuries, but as to the automobiles, it is anticipated that the commercial and other interests opposed to making the keeping of automobiles more expensive will be able to prevent further taxation on them.

A few of those who favor the bonus expect to raise the money by a sales tax. As to some of these, there is honest belief that the sales tax is a meritorious one to be adopted, anyhow. There is some thought that the bonus bill can be used as a means of initiating the sales tax and that the sales tax, once adopted, will prove to be so satisfactory that it will be kept indefinitely in lieu of some portion of the present income taxes. The opposition to the sales tax, however, is very formidable.

All in all, the bonus bill will probably go through, but it will not go through without some forceful and illuminating debate upon its merits.

Associated Industries Manager Says Every Portlander Should See Windows.

Striking proof of the variety and excellence of made-in-Oregon goods was shown by the displays of various articles of Oregon manufacture which fill every one of the 32 big display windows of the Meier & Frank store.

Not only were the goods shown as finished products, but also in process of manufacture, the displays being a liberal education in the manner of manufacturing various articles of common use ranging from brooms and willow furniture to fishing tackle and women's wearing apparel.

This week has been set aside as Oregon products' week by the Meier & Frank company, the plan being to follow up the work of the federated women's association in their displays at the Chamber of Commerce. The displays of goods at the Meier & Frank store were declared by Dan C. Freeman, manager of the Associated Industries of Oregon, to be the largest of the kind ever attempted in the state.

The diversity of the state's industries is admirably suggested in the displays, said Mr. Freeman. "They should be seen by every man, woman and child in Portland, for it is a civic duty of Portlanders to know what is manufactured here and patronize the home manufacturer."

Not only are the displays of Oregon goods shown in the windows, but such goods also are on sale in various sections of the store. Among the goods included in the display are desks and office furniture, willow furniture, mattresses, golf bags, trunks and baggage, hats and caps, women's clothing, kodak cases, shoes, auto tires, cut glass, brooms, knitted goods, fishing tackle, gloves, Indian robes and similar goods, biscuits and bakery products, ice cream, brushes, men's clothing and outing goods.

Mr. Freeman announced yesterday that the Olds, Workman & Kline store had offered to devote one of its best windows to a live educational exhibit of manufactures throughout the year. The plan, he said, is to display each manufactured product a week.

SALEM, Or., Jan. 31.—(Special).—February 16 is the date set by City Recorder Matthews for the recall election in the city of Milwaukee, to determine whether or not Mayor Snyder shall be retained as the head of the municipality. Official notices of the election will be posted in each of the city's two precincts tomorrow and the two election boards will be named at that time.

It is expected that the nominating petition for the opposition candidate will be filed today. Guy C. Pelton, ex-mayor of Milwaukee, who was succeeded by Mayor Snyder about five years ago, will be nominated. Mayor Snyder had five days after the filing of the recall petition within which he could have voluntarily resigned. As he did not make such action, it became mandatory on the part of the city recorder to proceed with issuance of the call for the election and selection of the election boards.

The diversity of the state's industries is admirably suggested in the displays, said Mr. Freeman. "They should be seen by every man, woman and child in Portland, for it is a civic duty of Portlanders to know what is manufactured here and patronize the home manufacturer."

Not only are the displays of Oregon goods shown in the windows, but such goods also are on sale in various sections of the store. Among the goods included in the display are desks and office furniture, willow furniture, mattresses, golf bags, trunks and baggage, hats and caps, women's clothing, kodak cases, shoes, auto tires, cut glass, brooms, knitted goods, fishing tackle, gloves, Indian robes and similar goods, biscuits and bakery products, ice cream, brushes, men's clothing and outing goods.

Mr. Freeman announced yesterday that the Olds, Workman & Kline store had offered to devote one of its best windows to a live educational exhibit of manufactures throughout the year. The plan, he said, is to display each manufactured product a week.

SALEM, Or., Jan. 31.—(Special).—February 16 is the date set by City Recorder Matthews for the recall election in the city of Milwaukee, to determine whether or not Mayor Snyder shall be retained as the head of the municipality. Official notices of the election will be posted in each of the city's two precincts tomorrow and the two election boards will be named at that time.

It is expected that the nominating petition for the opposition candidate will be filed today. Guy C. Pelton, ex-mayor of Milwaukee, who was succeeded by Mayor Snyder about five years ago, will be nominated. Mayor Snyder had five days after the filing of the recall petition within which he could have voluntarily resigned. As he did not make such action, it became mandatory on the part of the city recorder to proceed with issuance of the call for the election and selection of the election boards.
