

CAPACITY AUDIENCE HEARS MISS BOOTH

Hundreds Turned Away From Public Auditorium.

POLICE GUARD BUILDING

Mayor Introduces Salvation Army Chief, Who Talks on "World's Greatest Romance."

Hundreds of persons were turned away from the municipal auditorium last night and the building was completely filled with a crowd which heard Miss Evangeline Booth, commander of the American forces of the Salvation Army and daughter of its organizer, General William Booth, deliver her famous address, "The World's Greatest Romance."

The doors of the auditorium were closed before 8 o'clock, when the last seat in the house had been taken. Late comers continued to arrive for half an hour afterward, but policemen had been stationed around the building and turned them away in order that the meeting inside would not be disturbed by the incessant rattling and trying of doors.

Mayor Baker, in introducing Commander Booth, said that seldom in the history of the city had such a vast audience been given to any visitor. When Miss Booth took the floor the mass of humanity gathered to hear her broke out in a torrent of applause that lasted fully five minutes before it was finally silenced and she could make herself heard.

Her address covered the history of the Salvation Army from its humble beginning in the streets of London when her father and two or three followers first began to preach, up to the present day, and it included a survey of the scope of activities now maintained.

A portion of the audience had seen the famous woman commander before, and practically every one could recognize her from her pictures. She is of extremely fine and dignified appearance, tall and slender, with most noticeable feature being the crown of dark reddish hair, and next a profile that is almost classic in its outline. She spoke in a voice that was rich with emotion and the spirit of her work and which held her audience almost as well as the message she gave them.

Expansion Is Described. "A little ring of people around a London lamp" she said, "expanded during the 59 years the Salvation Army has existed until it encircles the globe, and it has done so because it has reached the people that the churches cannot reach—the people of the street, the down-trodden, the loafers, the unfortunate, the men and women whose destitute circumstances and shabby clothes would put them to shame in church or in court circles by the nose of the big brass drum and the brass bands."

"Once we were arrested on the grounds that the drum was a public nuisance," she told the court that I did not object to church bells, that they were symbols of the faith of good people to worship. The brass drums call the bad people to worship, attract them and then we lead them to stop and listen to the gospel, which, I said, was more important than calling good people who do not need religion. I had with me in court 27 men, most of whom had been there before, but not in the uniform of the Salvation Army."

Since that time the base drum has stood as a symbol and it is now to be heard in 43 different countries on all quarters of the globe. It is in the halls, hotels for homeless men, schools, rescue houses, hospitals and many other institutions. Every night in the year there are 17,000 homeless men sheltered by the Salvation Army, and many of these are led to better paths through the work of the drum.

Both Mayor Baker and Governor Oleski paid glowing tributes to Miss Booth and in a few minutes she was on her feet to read the war record of the organization and outlining the success the army had attained. Mayor Baker said it was the only organization that had been found ready, willing and that had stood the test throughout the war.

The services at the auditorium were begun at 7:30 o'clock with a 20-minute song recital by the Whitely Boyce choir. Commissioner Gifford of San Francisco, and in charge of Salvation Army work on the Pacific coast, opened the program with a prayer, and W. J. B. Turner, chief secretary to the commander, read the prayers. Mayor Baker and Governor Oleski, her secretary, Mrs. Brewster, Brigadier R. Griffith and Major and Mrs. William Guard.

10-HOUR DAY RESTORED

NEW RULES ANNOUNCED BY LABOR BOARD.

Usual Hourly Wage to Prevail; Time and Half for Sundays and Holidays Ended.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Re-establishment of the eight-hour day, the elimination of time and one-half pay for regularly assigned work on Sundays and holidays were among the new rules governing railway workers, announced tonight by the United States railroad labor board, to replace the national agreement made under federal control.

The board's rules affect more than 12,000 rail workers and become effective February 16. According to figures based on interstate commerce commission statistics, it is estimated that the annual labor bill of the railroads will be cut about $200,000 by eliminating the overtime pay provision of the national agreement.

While the new set of rules retains the principle of the eight-hour day, the door is opened, as in the case of maintenance of way and clerical rules recently promulgated by the board, for a 10-hour day. Overtime for regularly assigned work on Sunday work is also eliminated.

FARM CONDITIONS BETTER

REPORTS RECEIVED FROM BASIC INDUSTRIES.

Corn Selling at Country Elevators in Nebraska and Iowa at 40 Cents Bushel.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 12.—Optimistic views of improved conditions in the country's basic agricultural industries are warranted by reports received by the war finance corporation from its field agencies according to a statement issued tonight by Managing Director Meyer.

"The situation at country elevators in Nebraska and Iowa at 40 cents a bushel, as against 20 cents four months ago," says Meyer, "is a good market and reports indicate that farmers are getting the equivalent of 80 to 90 cents for corn that is marketed on the spot. The market for sheep is stabilized. They are selling in large quantities and at prices considered satisfactory for the moment and future."

"The cattle market is no longer demoralized; the breeding herds are being held by the young stock, is not being sacrificed and the rearing and fattening business is proceeding in good volume and with fairly well satisfied returns. There is a broad market for wool and hides at good prices. The grain markets are showing a good consumptive demand."

"All this means that the farmer is being put in position to liquidate his debt, graduate his politics, and his purchasing power—so vital to the commercial and industrial and transportation interests—is being restored."
