Bootleggers Establish Headquar ters in Seattle to Prevent Customers From Robbing Boats.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 27 .- (Special.)-This city has become widely known for bootlegging, rum running and as a general distribution station for liquor. It is not a crime to ship for liquor. It is not a crime to snip-liquor from British Columbia even to the United States and millions of dol-lars are made monthly by various schemes of shipping whisky across the international boundary. The former quiet, gondola-like cances and three to four knot lounches which haunted Coal harbor, the Venice of Vancouver, have given place to dull gray or dark brown
