

EGGS AT 22 CENTS LIKELY NEXT WEEK

Price Declines Continue and Further Drops Predicted.

SMELT IS IN BIG DEMAND

Low Prices for Columbia River Fish Make Article Popular One With Shoppers.

Egg prices continued to shoot the chutes to lower levels during the week, and a still further decline is expected. Eggs were quoted at 25 cents a dozen yesterday, and the price today will be 24 cents a dozen. The price may drop as low as 22 cents within a week, according to J. A. Eastman, public marketmaster.

Eggs in Portland markets come in large quantities from farms near the city, and the plentiful supply of fresh eggs has naturally forced down prices. Storage activities have not started yet in any important degree. When large supplies of eggs are diverted from markets to storage, prices will rise again. The small cost of eggs, which may be prepared in many delicious ways, has brought a great demand by housewives for this product, and eggs will be substituted for meat in many households.

Smelt Also in Demand.
Smelt and halibut are also popular because of low prices and good quality. Plenty of halibut is available at 25 cents a pound, and halibut cheeks are 30 cents a pound. Columbia river smelt may be had at 5 cents a pound, a reduction from last week's price of four pounds for 25 cents. For 10 or 15 cents enough smelt may be bought to supply the average family.

Honey produced by Oregon bees is an attractive offering in the market. The best grade of comb honey sells at 30 cents a comb. The liquid variety is quoted at 38 cents a pint, 65 cents a quart and $1.05 a gallon. Honey is particularly popular in homes where hot cakes, waffles and biscuits are a regular part of the menu.

Butter of the best grade ranges in price from 40 to 45 cents a pound. Cottage cheese is 15 cents a pound. The past week brought an increase of 10 cents in the price of sugar, making the wholesale price $6.30 for a 100-pound sack.

Fruit Supplies Limited.
Variety is still lacking somewhat in the fruit and vegetable markets. Products that have dominated these markets during the past weeks are displayed in quantity, and the quality is excellent for the most part. Spinach and green onions are expected in quantity in about two weeks, if weather conditions are favorable.

Celery from California is quite plentiful. The price is lower than last week, with celery of good quality selling at three small bunches for a quarter in some stores. Celery hearts may be had for 15 cents a bunch.

A few green onions are available. Five cents a bunch is the lowest price. Potatoes are two to three cents a pound, with sweet potatoes five cents. Tomatoes are quoted at 15 cents a pound. Carrots at two cents a pound, cabbage at four cents and parsnips at three cents are popular offerings in the markets. Other staple vegetables displayed are turnips at three cents a pound, squash at four cents and beans at eight cents.

Apples Take Drop.
Apples, oranges and grapefruit still rule the fruit market. Hood River Spitzenbergs are slightly lower in price this week, and may be had for 25 cents a dozen. Newtowns range in price from 15 to 25 cents a dozen, and Delicieux are quoted at 30 cents.

California oranges are displayed in good quantity at prices from 20 to 30 cents a dozen. Grapefruit from California may be had for five cents, but the Florida variety sells at 10 and 15 cents each. Lemons are 40 cents a dozen and bananas 30 to 40 cents. Tender, plump chickens are available at 40 cents a pound for birds weighing five pounds. Fryers are 35 cents a pound, and capons 45 cents. Belgian hares are displayed at 25 cents a pound. Royal chinook salmon is 25 cents a pound, a five-cent reduction from the prevailing price a week ago. Other attractive offerings in the fish market are mackerel at 25 cents a pound, sturgeon at 30 cents and black cod at 15 cents. Skinned cod, which is similar to catfish but quite tasty, is recommended as a seafood specialty by dealers. The price is 20 cents a pound.

CLUB BOOSTER OF BEAN

Candidacy of Eugene Man for Governor to Be Promoted.

EUGENE, Or., March 10.—(Special.)—The Bean-for-Governor club was formally launched yesterday evening when 20 local business men met in the Osborn hotel to materialize plans for an organization to back Louis E. Bean in his candidacy for governor of the state. Officers were appointed and the backers of the local man made brief speeches outlining plans for action in getting Bean's name before the voters of the state.

George H. McMorran of the McMorran & Washburne store, was chosen to head the club. W. W. Calkins, president of the United States National Bank, was elected vice-president; E. O. Tamm, local attorney, was elected secretary-treasurer. The executive committee is composed of David Graham, proprietor of the Graham shoe store; G. W. Griffin, local hardware dealer; John B. Bell, state senator; L. L. Goodrich, vice-president of the First National bank; Harold Bortin, assistant cashier in the Bank of Commerce; J. H. Koke of the Koke-Tiffany Printing company, and Melvin Hansen, Eugene realtor.

SHEEP RULE IS MODIFIED

Oregon Animals Moving to California Must Have Certificate.

SALEM, Or., March 10.—(Special.)—Modification of the order of the California officials with relation to the importation of Oregon sheep into the former state has been granted, according to a letter received at the offices of Dr. W. H. Lytle, state veterinarian, from J. P. Iverson, chief of the division of animal industry, with headquarters in Sacramento. The new order becomes effective March 11.

The new order provides that owners of sheep in Oregon desirous of moving such animals to California must first arrange to have them inspected by a representative of the United States bureau of animal industry. The certificate required to accompany such movements must be issued by a bureau inspector subsequent to March 11, and it must show that the sheep have been found free from scab or exposure.

METAL CONTRACT CLOSED

Portland Concern Will Fill Big Orders for Propellers.

An indication of coming prosperity in the metal manufacturing industry came yesterday when the Oregon Brass Works signed a contract to manufacture the entire output for the Pacific coast of clovehead propellers for J. W. Morrow & Co. of San Francisco. Under the contract the initial order for the Portland concern amounts to $27,000.

According to W. F. Prier, manager of the Oregon Brass works, the contract calls for the manufacture of motorboat and steamship propellers of all sizes, and the plant is now equipped to manufacture propellers weighing 23,500 pounds.

Growers Purchase Flax Plant.

SALEM, Or., March 10.—(Special.)—The Oregon Flax Fiber company's plant at Turner has been sold to the Willamette Valley Flax and Hemp Growers' association, with headquarters in Salem, according to an announcement made here today. The consideration was $500. It was estimated that the purchase of this plant will save the association an outlay of approximately $30,000, which would be necessary to purchase a site, erect the necessary buildings and provide proper equipment.
