PENSION REMEDY WANTED

CORRECTION TO AID OLD-TIME EMPLOYEES ASKED.

Governor Wants to Include in Benefits Men Who Begun Prior to Civil Service.

SALEM, Or., March 13.—(Special.)—In a letter prepared by Governor Olcott today, Senator McNary has been asked to use his influence to the end of remedying the situation brought about recently by an opinion of the attorney-general of the United States in which it was held that pension allowances on civil service cannot be granted to postoffice employees who were in the service prior to the passage of the civil service law.

"This, I understand," said the governor in his letter, "will deprive a great many old timers in the postal service of their chance to get on the pension list upon retirement. I happen to have in mind, particularly, such men as Ben Taylor and Silas Howard, who retired recently after working many years in the Salem postoffice."

"You know something of the character of their faithful service in the years they were connected with the department and now if anyone is entitled to consideration, such men as these should be. Probably there are numbers of other similarly worthy cases throughout this state, as well as others."

"I am calling this to your attention as it may be possible some steps could be taken to remedy the situation. I believe it would be only a matter of justice and equity if steps could be taken along this line. No doubt this thought may have occurred to you prior to receiving this letter. At least you may be assured the plan would have my hearty approval."

Silas Howard and Ben Taylor, mentioned in Governor Olcott's letter, served in the government postoffice service here for many years, and only a few months ago retired at a ripe old age.
