MONTAGU MAKES DEFENSE

Neglect of Cabinet to Take Action on Governor's Query Is Held to Have Justified Stand.

LONDON, March 15.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Earl of Derby has declined the offer of the Indian secretaryship, but has been asked to reconsider his refusal. It is understood that he considers he can better serve the coalition from outside than inside the cabinet.

Montagu Defends Stand

Edwin H. Montagu, who recently resigned as secretary for India, was granted an opportunity to defend himself in the House of Commons to-night against the government and Earl Curzon, secretary for foreign affairs. He stated that his "dismissal" was a pretext and that he had no option except to refer to Lord Curzon's private letter in order to defend his position, because, except for that letter, the government had nothing whatever to say in support of the publication of the Indian dispatch the ministers had been in possession of the dispatch for hours and made no effort to stop such publication, which might then have been possible.

Attitude Held Justified. Mr. Montagu's conduct is considered length in the contents of Lord Curzon's letter and expressed profound regret that there had been any misunderstanding but on the general question maintained that his attitude had been justified and repeated that if the government had been wise in the publication of his telegram to Lord Reading, the viceroy, it would have found that he realized the impossibility of the cabinet falling in line with the demands made by India.

PAROLE SAFETY REFUSED

A bench parole in Oregon does not protect a criminal from being prosecuted for a crime committed in another state. This was the decision of Circuit Judge Tucker in his opinion on the habeas corpus proceeding brought by Frank J. Lonergan for Edward A. Parsley, alias James A. Smith, wanted in California to answer to a criminal charge of forgery. It was announced that an appeal would be taken to the supreme court of Oregon.

DO YOU REMEMBER?

When the Tanner-creek sewer caved in March 8, 1904, and the water backed up to a depth of five feet on Multnomah field, giving griddon warriors a chance to go rowing over the same ground they had fought football battles on.

The sewer followed the old Tanner-creek ravine, which, filled in, is now the athletic field. It was built of bricks and when it collapsed, near Lowndes and Alder streets, the whole vicinity was flooded. March 10, 1904, E. W. Riner, the contractor who built the sewer, and E. Princeton, city sewer inspector, had narrowly escaped from death when they set off a charge of dynamite to blow out the blockage and then crawled into the sewer to see how it worked, nearly being overcome with gas and fumes.

The photograph shows the rear of the Multnomah Athletic club and the old exhibition building. These buildings and others were destroyed in 1910 by one of the most spectacular fires Portland ever has had.

When Depotmaster W. H. Bradford used to ask new arrivals if they came from North or South Dakota, and if they wanted to buy some good timber land?

When Albina consisted of a few business places on or near Russell street?

When the Steel bridge approach on the west side was just south of the O. W. R. & N. Boat office at the Almsworth dock, and we landed at the foot of Holladay avenue on the east side, where the old host laid off, and the rows of saloons lined up on the east approach?

When you Schlenk and his famous crawfish at the old Quelle, at Second and Stark streets?

When the expression, "Follow me and you'll wear diamonds," was used by nearly everybody?

That good old song, "Shoo, Fly; Don't Bother Me"?

FRED STRICKLAND'S WORK IN SEVERAL LANDSCAPE AND WATER VIEWS NEAR PORTLAND BEING INSPECTED AT GILL BUILDING.

An interesting exhibition of oil and water color paintings is on display in the art room on the second floor of the J. K. Gill company's building. The pictures are the work of Fred Strickland who now is an instructor in the Benson Polytechnic school. Mr. Strickland joined the Canadian engineers and went to the front in 1918. Several of his sketches were made in France and are realistic.

The Rhine Near Cologne is a beautiful study in color with splendid sky and cloud effects and with the water wet and deep in appearance. Mr. Strickland's manner of depicting whatever water there is in his landscape in which water is introduced is decidedly pleasing and above the average in skill. His "Bay of Mystery," a Columbia river scene, is decidedly clever and mystic in coloring.

CITY COUNCIL UPBRAIDED

BARGE LEONARD CENTRAL FIGURE IN LIVELY TILT. Attorney, Vexed Because Client Refused Rehearing on Revocation of License, Threatens Legislation.

A threat to "get" the city council by legislative action providing approval for his decisions was hurled at the city council by Barge Leonard, attorney, in the course of a lively verbal tilt with Commissioner Bigelow yesterday when W. H. McHardy, 254 First street, was refused a rehearing on revocation of his license to operate a cardroom and soft drink establishment.

"I'll get this city council right," shouted Leonard, after Commissioner Bigelow had expressed himself as opposed to reconsideration of McHardy's case. "I was responsible for the fact that the bill providing appeal to the circuit court from the city council's decisions was killed at the last session of the legislature. At the next session, I'll see that such a bill is passed."
