K amateur boxer, whose ambition is to become king of the heavy-weights, has been put flat on his back. But it took a railroad train to do it. Smith was a carpenter at a big movie studio until the slump hit the movie business and closed the place where he worked. Then he looked around for something that would keep him busy between bouts and pay the rent. Because of his extra-ordinary physique he had little trouble getting into the Los Angeles fire department service as a fireman, and was attached to a hook and
