Umpqua Valley Sends First Car of Product to Market.

ROSEBURG, Or., March 23 .- (Spe cial.)—The first carload of broccoli to be shipped from the Umpqua valley was moved today. It is expected that a second carload will be shipped tomorrow, and next week there will be several carloads sent out daily. Rainy weather is making the task of harvesting the crop difficult, but the crop is coming on so rapidly that growers are forced to stay in the fields regardless of the weather.

It is expected that there will be fully 125 carloads of broccoil produced this season, the largest crop on record in this section of the state. The damage from frost and cold is expected to be less than estimated.
