ARCHITECT WANTS $24,000 FEE.—A fee of $24,000 for plans and specifications drawn at the order of Moy Back Hin for a proposed $300,000 hotel building to be erected on the corner of the present Oregon hotel is demanded in a suit filed in the circuit court yesterday against the Chinese capitalist by D. L. Williams, architect. Williams avers that he was employed in 1917 to prepare plans for such a structure, that he did so, that the project was temporarily abandoned during the war because of high building costs and finally abandoned last October. The fee is reasonable for the work done, he contends, and the schedule of architects throughout the country, he asserts.

FRANCHISE UP TODAY.—The ordinance starting a franchise to the Linnton Transit company for the operation of a bus line between Portland and Linnton will come before the city council for final consideration this morning. As the ordinance has been passed by third reading without objection, it is not believed that any objections will be placed in its way. Under the city charter, referendum petitions containing 2000 or more names can be filed with the city auditor within 60 days. Should such a petition be filed, it will be necessary to submit the franchise to a vote of the people.

ARBITERS GO TO KLAMATH FALLS.—Otto Hartwig and J. E. Flynn, members of the state conciliation board, have gone to Klamath Falls in the effort to bring about an end of the strike there among the employees of the sawmills. W. F. Woodward, chairman of the board, was unable to go because of illness. The two men were scheduled to arrive in Klamath Falls last night. It is said here that a federal conciliator from Los Angeles and one from Portland have been on the ground, but have thus far announced no change in the situation.

Those of the North Pacific Dental college. Those who reported losses of clothing and jewelry were M. J. Smith and H. A. Anderson, W. D. Smith and H. A. Pepper. The burglar forced open a rear door. The new building will increase its capacity about 25 per cent and give commodious office quarters. A portion of the addition will be two stories in height and the whole will give more than 4000 square feet of additional floor space. This promises the addition of additional equipment and some increase in the working force, it was stated.

ART PHOTOGRAPHS TO BE SHOWN.—Photographs from the paintings and drawings of Michael Angelo, including the very large reproductions of the details of the Sistine ceiling, are now displayed at the gallery of the art museum, Thursday, March 30, at 4 o'clock. Miss Dunlap will give a talk, illustrated by lantern slides upon the work of Michael Angelo. The hour has been selected for the convenience of teachers, but the lecture is also open to the public.

Jonnet, Portland music teacher, was found guilty by a jury of contributing to the delinquency of a minor girl, was sentenced yesterday to 90 days in the county jail by Judge Kandler of the court of domestic relations. Leniency was recommended by the jury. A motion for a new trial, presented by James E. Crab, on the ground of new evidence, was denied.

POSTER HOTEL HAS FIRE.—Firemen with chemical apparatus were called early yesterday to the Poster hotel to extinguish a fire which started in a room occupied by Harry Rose. Investigation showed that Rose had gone to sleep with a lighted cigarette between his fingers. He awoke a short time later with his bed clothing on fire. The damage was slight.

DUG VENDOR GETS SIX MONTHS.—Jung Joy, Chinese drug vendor, was sent to the county jail for six months when he was found guilty in police court yesterday of peddling narcotics. Testimony was given, showing he had sold a small quantity of opium to a white drug addict. This is the extreme penalty permitted under the law.

Roy E. Miller, who heads the corporation, is a graduate of Oregon Agricultural college and the University of Chicago, and for the last year has been manufacturing his products at Grants Pass. MARSFIELD, Ore., March 28.—(Special.)—One hundred electors voted on a $30,000 bond issue to enlarge the city's water supply at Myrtle Point where there should have been 200 votes, but the measure was lost by a narrow margin. The proposal is to build a dam on Johns creek, several miles from the city, and insure a sufficient water to last an entire year, which, however, would be renewed as rains fall and the spill overflows.

PAVING SURVEY PLANNED

COST OF REPAIRS IS OBJECT OF CITY INVESTIGATION. Economy Believed to Warrant Big Change of Policy, Including Complete Resurfacing.

A complete survey of the condition of all paved streets in the city, the cost of maintenance, and estimated costs of resurfacing will be undertaken by the public works department immediately, according to an announcement made yesterday by A. G. Johnson, assistant commissioner of that department.

Preliminary surveys of a number of streets which have been repaired from time to time have convinced officials of the department that in many cases it would be cheaper to resurface or repave the streets than to attempt to patch them. Should the survey determine to repave any number of streets, it is probable that the municipal paving plant will handle the work. This plant was established for the purpose of keeping the streets repaired at a low cost, but it was not long after the plant was put into operation that the city entered into competition with private contractors for new improvement work.

Of late the plant has been underbid in this improvement work, and while no statement could be had on this subject, it is believed that the department is planning on providing work for the paving plant which will be largely resurfacing work.

The survey will not be completed for several weeks, and it is probable that when completed the entire report on the subject will be submitted to the city council for its consideration.

Three Famous Compositions on Symphony Programme. Selections From Masters Will Provide Thrilling Music.

COVERLY BEAUMONT. "LOVE CANNOT DWELL WITH SUPPLICATION"—such would seem to be the keynote to the story of Lohengrin, which many of us were so fortunate as to hear last week. Long, long before the 10th century in Germany, when Lohengrin appeared to champion Elsa Brabant, the same truth had been exemplified in the Greek myth of Love and Psyche, in which the woman, unable to resist the temptation to discover her lord's identity, suffers loss and sorrow.

From George Schumann's setting of "Love and Psyche" the Portland Symphony orchestra will play one of its lightest numbers on its programme, "The Dance of the Nymphs and Satyrs."

In a reiterated call from the horn, these melodies of the wood and fields come tripping in obedience to the music of the pipe of Pan, and in semi-quieter notes, penetrating the wood, quiver everywhere in the air.

as now, with tender tune, now with gay tune, the dancers float leisurely or joyously, till they float away "in the trance of the dance."

In listening to the music of Subtilus, whose tone-poem "Finlandia," is another number on this programme, we are conscious of lights and shadows so unfamiliar that they seem to come from another world. It is not too much to say that Finnish music has the Finnish character, is the outcome of a fearful struggle which has been for life or death, but which has resulted in triumph and life.

"Finlandia" records an exile's return, after many years' absence, to his fatherland, his solitude and silence, and his passionate love of home and country is movingly portrayed in the music.

Who could be moved deeply by the agitated, almost vehement, volutes of the brasses, the deep, penetrating trumpet, the woodwinds, the pleading passages of the strings—all indicating the earnestness and soundness of the Finnish soul reaching out for freedom and expression? A brighter theme seems to prophesy that eventually this longed-for vaudeville. The general make-up of the act itself is laughable, a joke that Billy Van really never tells being the background. "Jim"
