Wool Warehouse Company Is Called Swindle.

STOCK SELLING ATTACKED

J. R. Kaseberg Alleged Concern Misrepresented Conditions in $12,000 Transaction.

Fraud and deception were charged against the Western Wool Warehouse company in a complaint filed in the circuit court yesterday accusing this 22,000,000 corporation of being a stock-selling proposition with the purpose of "separating the gullible from their money."

J. R. Kaseberg, who invested $12,000 in stock in the company last May, was the complainant, alleging that the stock purchased is worthless and demanding his money back with interest at 6 per cent.

"FOREVER" from George du Maurier's famous novel, "Peter Ibbetson" is an artistically beautiful picture, filled with a tender romanticism.

The scene in which the poor old major meets Peter on his return to Paris is emotionally perfect. Nell Roy Buck and Charles Eaton are two delightful children who frolic through the early scenes.

The settings and costumes assist in carrying out the atmosphere of the story. The photography is of high standard. Ouida Bergere wrote the scenario.

Screen Gossp. Edward Hearn, former Portland printer's "devil," who forsook his type cases for the stage some ten years ago, will be seen in the leading masculine role in Anita Stewart's latest photodrama, "A Question of Honor," which has been booked for showing at the Liberty in a few weeks.

All local photoplay records for modern productions will be broken when Vicente Blasco Ibañez's "The Four Horsemen of Apocalypse" returns to the Peoples theater soon for its fourth week's engagement in Portland.

Henry R. Walthall probably is best remembered by film fans for his portrayal of the "little colonel" in D. W. Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation."

The Apollo club held its final concert of the season. Herbert Gould, basso cantante from Chicago, presented a soloist in musical event at Auditorium.

Apollon Club Held in Final Concert of Season. Herbert Gould, basso cantante from Chicago, presented a soloist in musical event at Auditorium.

BY OLIVE NEAL MONTEITH. THE Apollo club of Portland, recognized as one of the leading male choral organizations of the Pacific coast, gave the final concert of its fourteen season at the auditorium last night under the skilled direction of William B. Hyde, who holds the distinction of having been the conductor during the existence of this splendid group of singers.

The well-arranged programme was full of variety. The more dramatic numbers showed a ringing volume of tone and the pianissimo passages were sung with delicacy and flexibility.

The Apollo club is noticeably a chorus of trained voices, no rough edges mar the purity of its tone ensemble, and the quality is rich in resonance and mellow as an organ. The fine diction and the perfect response to the thought of the conductor and the work of the composer bespeak a high standard of intelligence in the individual and collective membership of the club.

Long years of conducting and a musically considered program of first-class songs and lights and shades in musical values have made Mr. Boyer a master in producing effects of great beauty. With such material and with such results the club has created for itself a name which always brings out a large and appreciative audience of music lovers.

As a soloist the club brought out from Chicago Herbert Gould, one of the leading basso cantante singers in that part of the country and the possessor of a voice which combines the power and depth of the real basso with the more lyric beauty of the baritone. His interpretations are full of color and he sings with flexibility and ease in the more spirited passages. The combination of bass volume and range, with the variety and melodiousness of his upper voice make him the real basso cantante, which is a rare voice.

Mr. Gould was received with unusual enthusiasm. Easy in manner, he established friendly relations with his audience and sang every number on his programme in English. His voice holds a dramatic intensity in the "Lochinvar Ballad" by Chadwick and sang, among others, three charming English and Irish songs showing the soft tones of his high voice and a beautiful mezzo-voice. "I Am a Roamer or Bold" from the operetta "Ben Hur" (Mendelssohn), was given with spirit. An interesting novelty, cleverly rendered by Mr. Gould, was the "Mosses of the World," given by "The Classicist," sung here recently, belongs to the group of satirical songs so entertainingly written by this composer.

For encores he gave "Gipsy Love Song" from the "Fortune Teller," the "Wreck of the Flying Doodle" and "The Little and the Star" (O'Hara), "Three for Jack" (Squires), "I Will Give You the Keys of Heaven" (Old Brege), and "Home" (De Riegels). Mr. Gould's diction is a joy to hear and each word carried distinctly to the earthen corner of the auditorium. The choral number of Rachmaninoff and "Luther's Hymn" both were sung with organ accompaniment by Ralph W. Host, giving the effect of a cathedral choir. The delicate "Evening Serenade" (Pache) and "Heart-Ache" (Dvorak), with its unusual rhythms, were given with fine feeling and sentiment. The virile and distinctly masculine "On Board the Derelict," better known from the play days of Stevenson as "Fifteen Men on the Dead Man's Chest," was splendidly sung. "Bird Sightings," one of Grieg's best-known chorals, is a Norse ballad that should be heard again and again. It moves along in measured rhythm and rises to a tremendous climax of religious rapture and thanksgiving. This number, with the incidental solo beautifully sung by Mr. Gould, made a stirring finale for the programme. The piano accompanists were Edgar E. Courson and William McCulloch, who rendered most able assistance to soloists and choruses.

The club announced a complimentary concert to be given to club members and their friends at the auditorium on May 25. The programme will be made up of numbers requested by those who attended last night's concert.

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.
