banks. The water is not only high but muddy, so it will be some time yet before fishing is good there.

Rogue Magnet Later.

The Rogue is another stream, but a little too far from Portland for the one-day man. Later in the sea-son, thoush, there will be hundreds of Portland anglers to fish along the Rogue and bordering streams. Planty of salmon trout and out this year which speaks well for the season. One Portland party returned from the Trask Monday with a mess of 40 beauties from ten inches up.

Many will forego the trout for a few weeks to try for the husky sal-mon. Salmon fishing has not been up to expectations yet and will not be until a few days of warm weather start the fish up the Willamette. There are plenty of fish in the Colum-bia but the water is cold and they bia but the water is cold and they are not moving upstream. The advent of the smelt run usually means that the salmoe are close behind. A tew days of warm weather and the Wil-lamette from just below Jennings Lodge to the Oregon City falls will be full of royal chinooks.

Bass Senson Closes,

Coincident with the opening of the the closed period on bass continued to May 15, but has been extended another month this year. Anglers are warned that they will encounter some bad road on Clats-kanie hill, between St. Helens and kanie hill, between St. Helens and Mist, and from McMinnville to the Grande Round post office.

A party headed by Faul Ferrin and Arthur Little will strike out for the Siushaw and Lake creek. J. C. Braily, Im Seavey, Bill Prier and Jack Hel-Frank Thorn will test his opening-day luck at Dairy creek.
