BEARS AND VIKINGS IN BIG RACE TODAY

Crews End Workouts at Seattle—Weather Puzzle.

LEADER IS IN QUANDARY

Washington Coach Undecided as to Coxswain—Either Grant or Smyth to Be Choice.

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON, Seattle, April 20.—University of California and University of Washington rowing crews today finished their last light training practices and were ready for their clash on Lake Washington here tomorrow afternoon to decide the western intercollegiate championship and the Pacific coast's entry in the national events at Poughkeepsie in June.

Both crews were in top form for the three-mile grind and rowing experts predicted a close, fast race. While no official time has been taken, it is understood both crews in practice spins have covered the course in close to record time.

Rowing Styles Opposed.

Tomorrow's contest is hailed as a clash between two entirely opposed styles of rowing, the California method depending upon a long preliminary stroke with a quick, hard pull at the finish, while Washington will use a quick catch and easy pull through. Rowing fans here assert that the Washington stroke is smoother, but admit the possibility of additional power in the Bear method.

The California varsity and freshman oarsmen arrived in Seattle Sunday morning and worked out on Lake Washington in the afternoon. The golden bear eight is not as heavy as last year, when it defeated the Washington crew by five feet on the Oakland estuary. They average about 175 pounds to the man, which is about the weight of the Husky oarsmen.

The southerners worked out on the lake every day before the big race tomorrow at 4:30 o'clock. Coach Leader made a temporary change in his lineup for the Sunday workout, but soon came back to his original aggregation and in all probability will keep it for the race.

Fans Want Fair Weather.

The weather so far for the month has been inconsistent, wind and rain playing a big role. Rowing fans are praying for a clear, calm day, but if the elements fail to please the race will be postponed until Saturday morning.

Here is the personnel of the Washington crew:

Captain Mike Murphy, stroke, 160 pounds; 3 feet, 11 inches in height. First year as varsity oarsman. Captained freshman crew which won by eight lengths over California on Lake Washington last year. Regarded as one of the keenest and coolest oarsmen who ever stroked a Washington varsity boat.

Fred Spuhn, No. 7. Weight, 178; height, 6 feet 1 inch. Proclaimed by former Washington oarsmen as the best oar in the boat this year. Has perfect rowing form and handles his sweep with natural grace and drive.

Sim Shaw, No. 6. Weight, 184 pounds; height, 6 feet. Rowed against California last year and was on the 1920 freshman crew. His weight and strength are valuable assets to Washington.

Ingram Strong Man.

Bob Ingram, No. 5. Weight, 187; height, 6 feet. Rowed on varsity last year and on the babe crew the year previous. Ingram is a two-year letter man in football and is the captain of next year's gridiron aggregation. He pulls the strongest oar in the pulpit and solid shell.

Lloyd Mason, No. 4. Weight, 178; height, 6 feet. This is Mason's first year in the varsity boat, but he rowed in the freshmen shell last year.

Al Skibeness, No. 3. Weighs 174 and is 6 feet 1 inch in height. He has been a consistent worker under Leader for three years, but has never participated in a varsity race. His stamina and form make him one of the boat's most valuable men.

Wright Perkins, No. 2. Weight, 176; height, 6 feet 2 inches. Although he has had three years' experience, he has never rowed in a varsity race before. He is a junior in college.

Tidmarsh New Man.

Pat Tidmarsh, bow. Weight, 162; height, 5 feet 11 inches. Pat is another new man in the first shell, but he has three years' rowing experience behind him.

The boat in general is well balanced, the bow and stern being lighter than the middle portion of the shell, as should be the case for the best rowing result. Mason, Ingram and Shaw, from their positions, mid-boat, pack most of the beef for the outfit, and it is from them that much of the driving power will come.

The position of coxswain is still in the air and Coach Leader seems just as puzzled over his choice of a rope holder as are the sports writers. Don Grant and Russ Smyth each seems to have an equal chance. Once before a similar situation arose and a coin was flipped to decide the position. Leader may know who he will choose, but he hasn't told anyone yet.

Personnel of the California crew follows:

Captain Dan McMillan, stroke. Weight, 176. Third year on varsity, changed this year from No. 6 to stroke. He is the most experienced man in the boat, and besides his rowing activities was a member of last year's football team.

Williams Lacks Experience.

G. A. Williams, No. 7. Weighs 184 pounds and is a natural oarsman, but lacks experience in varsity races.

Bob Gardner, No. 6. Weight, 175. Another natural oarsman, but lacking in big race experience.

Beryl Howell, No. 5. Weight, 178. Rowed in second varsity last year.

Carl Steinorn, No. 4. Weight, 185. First year in the varsity shell, although he has been rowing three years.

L. A. Brown, No. 3. Weight, 185. Last year's varsity man. A big man for his position at No. 3.

R. W. Bolling, No. 2. Weight, 168. First year in the varsity shell, a hard worker and a good oar.

Brooks Walker, bow. Weight, 155. He is acclaimed the pluckiest man in the Golden Bear shell. He displaces Rogers, a two-year letter man.

Crew results since 1907 for Pacific coast intercollegiate championship:

1907. No race, Washington swamped.
1908. Washington first, 5½ lengths, California second.
1909. Washington first, Stanford second.
1910. No race. Stanford swamped.
1911. Washington first, California second.
1912. Stanford first, 1½ lengths, Washington second.
1913. Washington first, 7 lengths, California second.
1914. Washington first, 5 lengths, California second.
1915. Stanford first, ¾ length, Washington a second.
1916. Washington first, 7 lengths, Stanford second.
1917. Washington first, 5 lengths, Stanford second.
1918. No race.
1919. Washington first, 1-6 length, California second.
1920. Washington first, 1-6 length, California second.
1921. California first, 5 feet, Washington second.

Freshman Results.

1917. Washington, 1½ lengths, California second.
1918. No race.
1919. California first, 1-6 length, Washington second.
1920. Washington first, 6 lengths, California second.
1921. Washington first, 3 lengths, California second.

Washington's crew coaches, 1907 to 1917, Conniebear; 1919 to 1922, Leader.

FISHING PROSPECTS GOOD

CLEAR WEATHER BRINGS RIVERS TO GOOD CONDITION.

Many Good Catches Reported Last Two Days, Most of Mid-Week Anglers Getting Limit.

With the clear and bright weather of the last few days, this week-end should bring good luck to fishermen. At the opening of the season Saturday, the streams were in none too good condition, but they have been improving daily. Many good catches have been reported the last two days, most of the mid-week anglers getting the limit without trouble.

Reports of fishing conditions as reported by agents of the Southern Pacific lines follow:

Gales creek—Water high. Week-end outlook fair to good.

Salmonberry and Nehalem rivers, and Foley creek—Water rather high. Week-end outlook good.

Kilches and Miami rivers—Water rather high. Week-end outlook good.

Willamette river—Water clearing. Week-end outlook good for salmon fishing. Fishing fair at Jennings Lodge. Distance from Oswego one-half mile.

Little Luckamute—Water little swift. Week-end outlook fair to good. Salmon eggs used for bait.

Silver Butte and Abiqua creeks—Water high and somewhat muddy. Week-end outlook fair to good. Angle worms and chub bait are suggested. Several fair catches. Stream within walking distance of Silverton.

Calapooia river—Water muddy. Week-end outlook only fair. Worms and red-bodied flies used. Reached by walking or auto service.

Willamette river at Harrisburg—Water rising. Week-end outlook fair. Several nice strings caught by local men. Red flies and chub bait being used. Stream within walking distance.

Row river and Coast fork Willamette river at Cottage Grove—Water riley. Very little fishing being done in these streams.

Upper Smith river at Drain—Water little high. Should be in good condition this week-end. Week-end outlook very favorable. Salmon eggs and worms being used.

North Umpqua river at Roseburg—Water little high and riley. Week-end outlook good. Several nice catches of trout and steelheads. One angler caught 5 steelheads. March brown flies for trout, spinner for steelheads.

Rogue river and Evans creek—Water clearing and should be in fine shape by this week-end. Outlook fine for coming Saturday and Sunday. Several nice catches cutthroat trout. Common snell hooks used with salmon eggs and worms for bait.

Rogue river at Gold Hill—Water little high. Week-end outlook good. Few steelheads, cutthroats and black-spotted trout caught since the 15th. March brown and black gnats favored for trout. Good run of choice salmon (chinook) going up the river.

Ashland, Bear and Neil creeks at Ashland—Water fairly clear. Week-end outlook very good. Several nice catches reported with salmon eggs for bait.

McKenzie river—Water higher than normal, but clear. Week-end outlook good. Reached by stage from Eugene 38 miles. Best fishing made with dry fly from boat.

Willamette river at Eugene—Water moderately high and in good condition. Week-end outlook splendid. Several good catches reported. Upright red and blue flies are favored.

Willamette river at Jasper—Condition of water good. Week-end outlook good. Several nice catches made last few days.

Lower Lake creek—Water high. Week-end outlook excellent. Reached from Sweet Home on the Coos Bay line. Chub bait and worms suggested. Limit catches made last Saturday afternoon. Some fish seen swimming to the top for bite upriights. With bright weather this week should see some good fly fishing this week-end.

Siuslaw river at Swiss Home—Water ideal for good fishing. Week-end outlook fine. Gray backle, red and white flies suggested. Fishermen last week caught the limit. Some steelheads in the river, one landed last Sunday. Fishing at Indian creek, three miles Deadwood creek.

Smith river at Gardiner—Water clear. Week-end outlook good. Chub bait and salmon eggs being used. Fishing within ¾ mile of station. Several good catches salmon and cutthroat trout. Some trout 18 to 20 inches.

Ten-Mile creek at Lakeside—Water little high. Going down gradually. Week-end outlook good. Several nice catches made during past week. Spinner used with good success.

Coquille River—Water high and muddy. Week-end outlook not very good.

WINGED M NINE TO PRACTICE

First Workout of Season to Be Held This Afternoon.

The Multnomah club baseball team will hold its first practice this afternoon at 1 o'clock on Multnomah field against the North Pacific college team. Later Multnomah and North Pacific will play a three-game series. Starting Tuesday, the clubmen will practice Tuesday and Thursday nights at 5:30 o'clock on Multnomah field. Howard Lyng is managing the team. Drawings for the Sunday morning league at the club are under way and the first games will be played April 30.

Washington 13, Oregon 6.

SEATTLE, Wash., April 20.—The University of Washington baseball team fulfilled the expectations of its supporters when it defeated the University of Oregon nine in the opening game of the conference season by a score of 13 to 6 here today.
