

CLOSING DAYS FIND CANDIDATES RUSHED

All Redouble Efforts to Carry Multnomah.

Electioneering on Friday, When Primaries Will Be Held, Is Absolutely Prohibited.

Two more days remain of the primary campaign—today and tomorrow. Electioneering is absolutely prohibited Friday when the primaries are held.

These closing days find all of the candidates for governor redoubling their efforts to carry Multnomah county. The campaigning is progressing toward a tropical finish and practically all of the gubernatorial aspirants are in the state and redoubling their efforts on the firing line in person to see that no trick is overlooked and to take advantage of any quick in any other place and where the situation is shifting around constantly. With interviews, conferences and things of that sort, the candidates have little time for sleep for they want to avail themselves of every hour between now and the time campaigning must cease.

Up-State Not Neglected. While the candidates are being neglected, the candidates realize that they must put in their best ticks in Portland, where more voters can be seen in a day than in any other place and where the situation is shifting around constantly. With interviews, conferences and things of that sort, the candidates have little time for sleep for they want to avail themselves of every hour between now and the time campaigning must cease.

George A. White's headquarters are at the Morgan building and he too, is marshaling his forces for the last of his campaign. J. D. Lee is among those present and Charles Hall has a battery of typewriter machines addressing envelopes while he, himself, is surrounded by his managers and lieutenants.

Governor Olcott Absent. Of all the candidates, Governor Olcott alone is not in Portland. However, a number of the governor's active supporters are industriously looking after his interests and in the past few days thousands of Olcott's cards have appeared on the streets.

Among the democratic brethren, Webster Holmes is on the spot, located at the Wheatsden annex; Harvey G. Starkweather is planning his vote-getting from his office in the Broadway building; Walter M. Pierce has left his affairs in the hands of his friends while he has temporarily hurried back to his stock farm in Union county. Will E. Pugh has been flitting through town on his way to meet speaking dates.

Keen Interest Developed. Keen interest in the primaries did not develop until 10 days ago and since then it has commanded more attention until now, at least insofar as Portland is concerned, the people are thoroughly aware that election time is upon them. There is today as much talk of the primaries as there would be of a presidential election, which shows how the voters have been stirred up by the developments of recent date.

Each new day more special "tickets" appear until those who make collections of these by-products of campaigns find it impossible to keep up with the steady flow of new offerings, suggestions and recommendations. About 15 tickets are now in circulation, only a percentage of which comply with the law with respect to having the name and address of the author. Many do not possess even the printer's insignia of identification.

MASONIC LODGE ELECTS

W. O. NICHOLSON, BELLINGHAM, GRAND HIGH PRIEST.

New Charters Granted to Locals Which for Past Year Have Had Dispensations.

ABERDEEN, Wash., May 16.—(Special.)—Royal Arch Masons of the state of Washington today elected officers for the coming year and granted charters to several lodges which have been working under dispensations for the past year. Following the close of unfinished business Grand High Priest Nicholson appointed the remainder of the officers. Only one new name appeared in the list of appointees, that of William P. Williams of Walla Walla, grand scribe.

A campaign to unify the courts of Multnomah county, with the object of providing for specialization in court work and reducing duplication in court procedure, is being followed by Walter H. Evans, circuit judge, who is a candidate to succeed himself in department No. 6.

"The city of Detroit, by a unified criminal court, cleared its docket of 2500 cases in a few months, cut down cost of operation materially and reduced crime in the city 25 per cent in 1921 over 1920," commented Judge Evans yesterday. "I believe that Portland, like Cleveland, O., should follow Detroit's plan and go Detroit one better by completely unifying all the courts of the county under one administrative head."

Judge Evans was elected to the office of district attorney three times, once without opposition. As recognition for his services, he was appointed to the circuit bench by Governor Olcott in October, 1921, making a place for an ex-service man, Stanley I. Myers, in the office of district attorney.

Of Presbyterian and Methodist parentage, Judge Evans was born in Indiana. His father was a teacher in the footsteps of his father as a teacher in public schools. During the Spanish-American war he was stationed at Camp Scott, H. Thomas as a file clerk and was sent later to Porto Rico with the army of occupation and attached to department headquarters at San Juan.

Judge Evans completed his legal studies in the University of Oregon law school and entered private practice in Portland. He is admitted as assistant United States district attorney for five years before being elected district attorney.

Lancaster, who was honor guest of the Hood River Commercial club last night, when members of that organization voted unanimously to support his plans for summer camp on Lost lake, has announced a more ambitious plan than that which he has given out. In addition to the Lost lake plot of 100 acres in a virgin forest, Mr. Lancaster stated that he had just closed for a lease of 72 acres at Bonneville, where a summer camp will be placed.

The chief served with the volunteer fire department from 1904 to 1908 and was named captain of the paid department when it was organized in 1908. He was appointed chief in 1911 by J. W. Parks, mayor. With each change in city executives he has been reappointed without a dissenting vote in the council.

CENTRALIA, Wash., May 16.—(Special.)—Under the auspices of the chamber of commerce a meeting will be held in Centralia on May 23 for the organization of a radio club. Any one interested in radio will be eligible to join. The city at the present time has about 40 radio fans, who have set up their own equipment. A study of radio development will be one of the things taken up by the new organization.

Narcotics Addicts Released.

CENTRALIA, Wash., May 16.—(Special.)—John Peterson, Seattle, and Winifred Clansen, Tacoma, both alleged drug addicts, were arrested by the local police Saturday in a rooming house and held for investigation in the hope of ascertaining the source of their supply. The pair was released yesterday after Peterson had been taken violently ill. A small quantity of drugs was found in the couple's possession when arrested.

Bond Election Restricted.

OLYMPIA, Wash., May 16.—(Special.)—An irrigation district in a first-class county of this state cannot hold a bond election except the first Tuesday after the first Monday in May, under a law passed in 1921. W. L. LIGHTNER IS TRAINED

REORGANIZATION OF COUNTY FINANCES PROMISED.

Ex-Commissioner and Now Candidate Straightened Out Tangle Following Depression of '90s.

Reorganization of Multnomah county's finances and putting its affairs back on a cash basis are the promise of William L. Lightner, candidate for nomination for county commissioner in the republican primaries. From May, 1904, to January 1, 1917, Mr. Lightner served as a commissioner of this county, so that he comes before the people in the primaries well equipped with experience and an intimate knowledge of the affairs of the county.

In that period of years Mr. Lightner demonstrated that it is possible, by the use of sound business methods, to do a vast amount of construction work and still keep the county on a cash basis. For example, after the commissioners with whom he served cleared up the tangled mess following the years immediately previous to their administration, several great enterprises were undertaken.

The Multnomah county courthouse was built and paid for. It cost approximately $1,500,000, equipped, including the county jail. The magnificent central library, approximately $400,000, was constructed. The county farm of some 200 acres, with buildings costing $150,000, was acquired. All of these were provided and the county kept on a cash basis.

During the 12½ years of service, Mr. Lightner was in office when the reconstruction period followed the financial depression of the '90s. When he went into office the county was "in the red" as it is at present, and through his management the finances were straightened out and Multnomah was placed on a firm footing and kept on a cash basis throughout the remainder of his administration. With the county once more in poor financial standing, Mr. Lightner is convinced that he can once again drag it out of the "red" and do away with the thousands of dollars of outstanding warrants on which the taxpayers are forced to pay interest.

Supporters of Mr. Lightner point out that the best way to judge the promise of a candidate is to study his past performance. They contend that having displayed ability to overcome one difficult financial situation, he has the training, capacity and willingness to accomplish the feat again.

"If Multnomah county were a private business concern instead of a public corporation, it would long ago have been called into court by its creditors," says Mr. Lightner. "Not only is the county's financial condition serious from any point of view, but in my opinion when the current liabilities exceed the current assets by more than $5000 the indebtedness is unconstitutional. The one thing which is of most concern to the taxpayers of this county now is to get it back on a cash basis and to stop work I am willing to do at my time and energy. If elected I will be at my office in the courthouse all day and every day, for the affairs of this big corporation of $300,000,000 are too important to be dealt with as a side line of a commissioner's private business."

Mr. Lightner believes that the law giving county commissioners $50 a month for handling the business of the interstate bridge should be repealed, as this is an injustice to the taxpayers.

"County business should be conducted with the fullest degree of economy and efficiency," declares Mr. Lightner, "and there should be neither waste nor extravagance. When large capital outlays are proposed, no matter what their character, and to be served and the benefit to be derived should be carefully weighed, and the cost counted before the work is begun. All public work should be carefully estimated and there should be no deficiencies."

For nearly half a century Mr. Lightner has been a resident of Portland.

COURT UNITY ADVOCATED

JUDGE EVANS URGES REFORMS IN MULTNOMAH TRIBUNAL.

Detroit System of Procedure in Criminal Causes Is Favored to Effect Efficiency.

A campaign to unify the courts of Multnomah county, with the object of providing for specialization in court work and reducing duplication in court procedure, is being followed by Walter H. Evans, circuit judge, who is a candidate to succeed himself in department No. 6.

"The city of Detroit, by a unified criminal court, cleared its docket of 2500 cases in a few months, cut down cost of operation materially and reduced crime in the city 25 per cent in 1921 over 1920," commented Judge Evans yesterday. SOUTH TO COME FIRST

WESTERN STATES SECOND IN FORESTRY PRESERVATION.

Washington Supervisor Returns From Conference Held at Washington, D. C.

OLYMPIA, Wash., May 16.—(Special.)—Southern states will receive precedence over western states in the distribution by the federal forestry bureau of the Weeks law fund for forest preservation, E. Pape, supervisor of forestry, said today, upon his return from Washington, D. C., where he attended a conference of state foresters with federal forestry officials to work out a more equitable plan for distribution of the fund.

Advantage goes to southern states, Mr. Pape said, because of their proximity to the lumber market and their advantage of lower freight rates. Though these states have not as much standing timber to protect as have the Pacific coast states, federal officials made it plain that they considered the fund rather for the preservation of young timber on re-forested areas than for the protection of mature timber. Sixty per cent of the standing timber in the nation is west of the Rockies, but the south has greater reforested areas.

Washington and Oregon will get as large shares of the appropriation as any other states Mr. Pape believes.

Mr. Pape visited an area in New York where white pine blister rust has been causing much damage to timber. Radical steps, including complete destruction of all currant and gooseberry bushes through which it spreads, are being taken to check the spread of the disease, which is quite general throughout the New England states.

Which, by universal consent, is the best in a majority of the communities in Portland is The Oregonian.
