

16 CHANGES IN LAW WANTED BY WOMEN

Delay in Issuing Marriage License Is Proposed.

HIGHER LEGAL AGE ASKED

Proposal for Censorship of Films Delayed Because of Faith in Hays' Administration.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 19.—Sixteen proposed changes in state laws and three measures now pending before congress were endorsed by the fifth annual assembly of the Women's Legislative Council of Washington, in session here today. A proposed recommendation for strict censorship of motion pictures was stricken from the legislative programme and four other proposals, including the entire legislative programme of the Washington Educational association, were referred to the more than 40 affiliated organizations for further study.

Marriage Delay Proposed.

Among proposed changes in state laws recommended for presentation to the legislature were bills providing for a lapse of 15 days between application for a marriage license and its issuance and a bill raising the legal age of women from 15 to 21 years. Action on a measure authorizing the retention by married women of their maiden names after marriage was postponed until the October meeting.

The proposal to recommend motion picture censorship was laid over after Mrs. Victoria L. Trumbull, president of the council, had declared that "we women have a great faith and confidence" in Will H. Hays, motion picture dictator, and that "we feel confident that he will bring about many reforms and that censorship will not be necessary."

The council endorsed suggested changes in the state law to provide a fund sufficient to extradite wife and home deserters and to compel husbands within the jurisdiction of the court to provide for their families. The proposal to reintroduce an appropriation bill for the support of the women's industrial home and clinic at Medical Lake, Wash., also was adopted.

Americanization Plan Backed.

Amendments to the lunacy law, which would keep suspected insane observation 30 days before commitment to an asylum, the so-called Americanization measure, that would send teachers of English, arithmetic and American history into lumber camps and other out-of-the-way places; a bill providing for public defenders in class A and first-class counties; a bill for strict supervision of road houses and rural dancehalls; a bill for the establishment of parental schools in small counties; a bill for a state teachers' retirement fund; a bill for school observance of national prohibition day; a bill giving the wife equal rights with the husband in handling community personal property; a measure establishing state and county welfare boards; provision for a school for feeble-minded in western Washington and a bill for the codification and revision of all laws relative to children.

Municipal Auto Campers Enjoy Rest House.

Great Questions Are Settled by Knights of Road.

BY ADDISON BENNETT.
The large room in the resthouse at the municipal auto camp grounds is the general meeting place for the campers, and particularly when the weather is a little cool and a roaring fire is crackling in the fireplace. Then the knights of the road get together and settle great questions. For instance, only a day or two ago the initiative and referendum was finally disposed of to the satisfaction of all, or nearly all, of the campers present. And then the primary election, which was held in this state yesterday, came in for a lot of eloquence. With the lights at the hands of the campers there were given out much food for thought, more than one might have expected from strangers.

Superintendent Keaney was busy yesterday in getting in a dozen or more cords of wood for the use of the campers. A good many come with small sheet-iron stoves and others use the old-fashioned camp fire. Occasionally one sees an electric torch on the grounds, but not often. For lighting a night-trip, the water heating gas is used and the grounds are lighted by electricity and some of the cooking is done on gas plates.

Yesterday morning there were 43 cars on the grounds, which made a total of arrivals since the opening day, May 2, of 122 cars. The cars are mostly from Washington, California, Oregon and Nevada. So to speak, but very few of the real traveling campers are on the road at this date.

The price of 50 cents a day still prevails, but caused a little friction for a few days at first, but it is generally conceded that the price is reasonable, considering the conveniences the campers enjoy.

Mr. and Mrs. William Staples of Canyon City, Colo., arrived yesterday from Phoenix, Ariz., and later left Eugene. The Staples owned a fine fruit ranch in Canyon City, which they sold last summer, and started out on a sight-seeing trip. They spent the winter at Phoenix and Glendale, which is a town near Phoenix. Then they came up to Eugene and spent a few weeks visiting old Canyon City neighbors. But now they are pining for Canyon City again and may purchase another fruit tract.

Roy Phillips and his wife and three children, Roy Jr., aged 5; Kenneth, aged 2, and Robert, age 2, are on the grounds from the Yakima country and are on their way to California looking for a business location for an electrician. They are traveling in a Ford car, license 884.

O. B. Douthett and W. C. Surber are running a Leo car, with Arizona license 10 07. They left Phoenix early in March bound for Akron, O. They are taking a slow and quiet trip and it does not make much difference to them when they get to Akron.

EDWARD C. ROBBINS DEAD

WIDELY KNOWN RAIL TRAFFIC MAN OF WEST SUCUMBBS.

Funeral to Be Held Today From Finlay Chapel—Widow, Son and Daughter Survive.

Edward Charles Robbins, one of the most widely known railroad traffic men in the west, died at the family home, 42 East Twelfth street, N. Thursday night after an illness of about three months. The funeral will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the Finlay chapel, with burial at Lone Fir cemetery.

Mr. Robbins had for many years been chief assistant to A. D. Charlton, general passenger agent of the Northern Pacific railway, and in this capacity had gained an acquaintance second to none among the railroad men in this part of the country. He had worked for the Northern Pacific for 27 years, all but one of which had been in the office of the general passenger agent.

Mr. Robbins was a native of Lima, Pa., and was 52 years old. He came to the coast when a young man and devoted his life to railroad work. He was a member of the Chamber of Commerce, the Transportation club and similar organizations, and had always taken an active part in civic affairs.

Mr. Robbins was taken ill about three months ago. He had undergone treatment in hospitals at Tacoma and St. Paul, but all without avail.

The deceased is survived by a widow and a son and daughter, all of this city.

ASSAILANT SUSPECT HELD

ATTACK ON SAWMILL ENGINEER IS CHARGED.

Officers Search for Man Who Found Victim Lying Unconscious.

Assault Thought Mistake.

ASTORIA, Or., May 19.—(Special.)—Charged with attacking Clarence Roberts, night engineer, Wednesday night at the Westport Lumber company's plant, Oscar Kelly has been arrested at his home in Kerry. Officers are now searching for Arthur Warranka, the man who reported he found Roberts lying unconscious in the road. Warranka disappeared yesterday, but the officers believe they know where he is hiding.

Just how the officers connect Kelly with the attack on Roberts has not been made public. Warranka is out on bail in connection with a shooting affray following a raid by deputies on a bootlegger's rendezvous several months ago. Kelly was also arrested at this time, but was released when the officers could not marshal sufficient evidence to hold him. The trial of Warranka was to be held May 22 in St. Helens.

Those acquainted with the facts believe the man who beat Roberts, apparently with a heavy bottle, mistook him for someone else, as he has worked in Westport but a short time and is not known to have any enemies. He was in this district at the time of the raid on the bootleggers.

BLACKTAIL MADE EASY FOR FAKERS

Psychoanalytic Field Invaded by Army of Quacks.

NEW GRAFT AVENUE OPEN

Investigation of Medical Society Shows Men of Checkered Careers Prey on Public.

NEW YORK, May 14.—(Special.)—One of the richest fields to be invaded by quacks, blackmailers and laymen without medical knowledge is psychoanalysis, according to George W. Whiteside, counsel for the New York Society of Psychoanalysts and the New York Medical society, which have been carrying on an investigation of charlatans of this type.

The investigation showed that many men with checkered careers and without the slightest tincture of medical knowledge have been posing as experts, writing books, setting up oferts, writing books, setting up offices and taking fees for psychoanalytic treatments. Among the men who have been living by their wits for years, who are alleged to be attracted to psychoanalysis because it opens up interesting avenues for blackmail.

"There have been many cases of this kind which would be sensational," said Dr. A. A. Brill, a member of the New York Society of Psychoanalysts, "except for the fact that victims of blackmail cannot make charges without revealing the secret which subjects them to blackmail."

"The fakers of this type who are preying on the public are increasing because the subject has been such a popular fad. Unfortunately, while the attempt of an unauthorized person to treat disease by this method, is a crime, the quacks among the laymen have cleverly formed alliances with a few renegade members of the medical profession. In such cases, the medical man is usually about as ignorant as the layman of the subject by which they are earning a living."

The investigation has shown, according to Mr. Whiteside, that many of the psychoanalysts of this type are advocates of immorality and have developed sex appeal as a regular advertising method.

"Aside from the blackmail and the vicious side of this abuse of psychoanalysis, there is a great deal of danger to the patient," said Mr. Whiteside.

"In the first instance, even as practiced by eminent medical men, psychoanalysis has its limitations. It has absolutely no application to a sickness caused by an organic disturbance. Such cases have to be ruled out at once. This requires a careful examination and diagnosis. Only a skilled physician is able to give such an examination and diagnosis."

"Confidence Is Required." "In the second place, the theory of psychoanalysis requires of a patient the disclosure of the most confidential information concerning himself, and he must repose absolute confidence in the man to whom he makes his confession or statement. When that is done to a physician, the law protects the patient, because we have a definite statute which makes it a privileged communication which the physician is not permitted to discuss, nor may he be compelled to disclose it."

"Most of the psychoanalysts emphasize question of sex to which they are traced mental disturbances and go into great detail. Some of them preach, or rather encourage, promiscuity."

Detectives employed in the investigation have obtained evidence against several lay practitioners, but prosecution has been withheld so far because of the question of policy involved. The County Medical society decided recently to initiate no more prosecutions for violations of the medical practice act, because it was unfair and injurious to the medical profession to put it in the position of a prosecutor, thus giving a certain plausibility with the court or jury to the charge that the profession was acting, not for the good of the public, but because medical men were being deprived of fees. Conferences are to be held with District Attorney Barton to provide for a method of prosecuting quacks of all kinds who practice in violation of law.

Andre Tridon, a layman and publisher of two books setting forth the theories of Freud and Jung, has denied that it was a crime for a layman to practice psychoanalysis.

"The layman should always turn over cases of physical trouble to a physician," said Tridon, "and if he does that there is nothing wrong in his treating other cases. There is no conflict at all between the medical man and the layman in this science. It is a form of medicine, but a layman who understands it can practice it successfully."

BLOSSOM FIESTA GOAL

300 AD CLUBBERS EXPECTED TO GO TO HOOD RIVER.

Portland Caravan Leaves Tomorrow to Visit Apple Orchards of Famed Valley.

Approximately 300 members of the Portland Ad club have already expressed their intentions of accompanying the annual caravan to Hood River tomorrow for the apple blossom festival, and requests for room in the machines are coming in faster than they can be placed.

Warm spring days and prospects of fine weather Sunday have increased the interest in the trip and fully 100 machines are expected to be in line when the caravan enters Hood River at noon. The cars will be decorated with Ad club banners and colors and will leave the Multnomah hotel promptly at 8:30 o'clock in the morning.

The party will not attempt to drive the entire distance in caravan formation but will meet at the Columbia Gorge hotel at noon and proceed from there through Hood River and back to the Chautauque grounds for a picnic lunch. Hot coffee will be furnished to the local contingent by the Commercial club.

An invitation has also been extended to the Dies business men and their families to attend the apple blossom festival and Hood River is expecting a large delegation from the east. The K. of P. band will furnish music throughout the day and accompany the tour of the orchards.

Memorial Day Is Planned.

COTTAGE GROVE, Or., May 19.—(Special.)—The most largely attended Memorial day observation ever held here is proposed by ex-service men who have charge. The meeting of Appomattox Post, G. A. R., at which plans for the observation were discussed was most touching, nearly everyone of the "old boys" declaring that two more Memorial days was the most they could hope to live to see, and this fired the younger men with determination to make the observation of the day this year a real one.

The parade and march to the cemetery will be held in the forenoon and the G. A. R. and W. R. C. ritual exercises will be held there. Services will be held in the afternoon at the Methodist church, at which Elbert Bede will give the address. This will be followed by the exercises of casting flowers upon the waters in honor of the sailor dead.

Pole Presented to Masonic Home.

CARLTON, Or., May 19.—(Special.)—There was delivered at Carlton the first of the week one of the longest poles that has ever been brought into this place. The pole was 146 feet in length and measured 18 inches at the base and four inches at the top. It was taken out for the Yamhill lodge at Masons and was presented by it to the Masonic home at Forest Grove. It was transported from here to Forest Grove by auto truck and trailer. The pole is symmetrical and tapers gradually from the base to within about ten feet of the top, when it runs down to a four-inch top from about nine inches in the last ten feet.
