The posthumous citation was for a brave and remarkable achievement in Sergeant Schaeffer's first major engagement at Vaux, July 1, 1918.
With a platoon of men in his command he cleared a stretch of woods, capturing 50 prisoners, a quantity of capturing 50 prisoners, a quantity of ammunition and materials and several machine guns. A remarkable feature of this achievement was the fact that it was accomplished without the loss of a man from the platoon. Subsequently the Portland hero fought at Belleau Wood and in the Soissons drive. He was killed in action about 10 A. M. on July 18, in the Soissons engagement.

"Mr. Cannon pointed out that to these veterans, saving the country was not one great act. The children of israel, after they crossed the Red sea said: 'Now it is all over.' They began to disagree, quarrel, follow false gods, and as a consequence were compelled to wander for 40 unnecessary years in the wilderness. The civil war veterans did not do that, but pursued the work of peace as faithfully as they did the work of war. We cannot live on the glories of the Argonne, Gettysburg nor Bunker Hill. The best way to bonor the noble dead is by being true to that for which they died."
