

DISPUTE OVER RANK NAVY REACHES HEARDING

Navy and Army Have Directly Opposite Views.

HONOLULU CASE IS ISSUE

Whether Major-General or Rear-Admiral Is Senior Judges Are Unable to Agree.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 7.—The controversy as to seniority between the army and navy commanders at Honolulu has reached a possible adjustment between the legal advisers of the two departments and may be referred to President Harding, as commander-in-chief, for settlement. Directly opposing views on the problem were submitted by the judge advocate-general of the army and navy, to whom the question was referred with instructions to reach an agreement if possible. The army legal experts, it was learned today, held that Major-General Summerall, in command of the Hawaiian department, was senior in rank to Rear-Admiral Simpson, commander of the Hawaiian naval district. The naval legal experts contended, however, that Admiral Simpson was senior in rank.

visory committee immediately followed. Present at the advisory committee session were the public's attitude toward the election issues were discussed were five of the nine members, though all had been notified of the meeting. Reported Chairman Veatch last night. Those in the conference besides Chairman Veatch were Dr. E. O. Sisson, W. E. Kinsey, J. J. Crossley and William G. Holford. C. C. Colt had appeared at the meeting, but only for a few moments, having an engagement elsewhere.

Publicity Is Authorized.
It was the consensus of opinion of the board that the laying of the cornerstone of the Roosevelt high school, the building which is to replace James John high school, should be arranged for July 4, if possible. The suggestion was referred to the business committee. Letters from Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt and a copy of the last public statement of the late Colonel Roosevelt, her husband, are to be read when the exercises are held.

The committee on publicity for the election campaign was authorized to expend not more than $500 on necessary publicity and advertising. On a showing made by Dan C. Freeman, manager of the Associated Industries of Oregon, the board voted approval for Oregon time to be used in the Roosevelt school building if proper arrangements can be made with the contractor.

The board opened a large number of bids on lighting fixtures for the Alameda, Maryville, Roosevelt high, Rose City third-unit buildings. Bids on coal and janitors' supplies were also opened and all were referred to the proper committees for classification.

BAD CHECKS LAID TO FRANK E. DOOLY

Ex-Portland Banker Said to Have Left $2000 Trail.

WIFE SUES FOR RELIEF

Downfall of Steamship Director in San Francisco Assigned to Habitual Inebriety.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—(Special.)—Frank E. Dooly, ex-vice-president of a Portland bank and director of the Co-Operative Steamship Lines, with offices in San Francisco, is accused in a warrant issued here of passing worthless checks aggregating $2000. Simultaneously with the issuing of the warrant in the district attorney's office came the filing of a suit for separate maintenance by his wife, Ida F. Dooly of 296 Twenty-sixth avenue, in the superior court.

Habitual Inebriety Charged.

Mrs. Dooly states in her complaint filed by her attorney, Marion Veckel, that during the last year Dooly was habitually drunk and intemperate, neglecting his business through inebriation.

Dooly's business associates declare him to be a man with unusual executive ability and business sagacity, but attributed his present financial disaster to his excessive use of liquor.

For 15 years Dooly has had a prominent place in the business of the west, being for several years head of the largest insurance agencies in Portland, operating under the name of Dooly & Co.

Father Portland Bank Manager.
Dooly came from a wealthy family of bankers, his father being at one time president of the Utah National bank of Ogden, and later manager of the Wells-Fargo National bank of Portland. His uncle, John E. Dooly, manager of the Wells-Fargo bank of Salt Lake City, died leaving a fortune estimated at $1,000,000.

Marcellus Krigbaum, real estate broker of this city, who issued the warrant for Dooly's arrest, says of him:
"If Dooly would cease drinking and get to work he could name his own salary, for he has a reputation as a high-class business man on the coast."
"This is the first spot upon his record of clean dealings. Since coming of prohibition he has been on a permanent debauch, and the end was inevitable."

DOOLY PROMINENT HERE

Downfall Attributed to Liquor by Portland Acquaintances.

Frank E. Dooly for many years was one of the best-known young business men of Portland. He built up a splendid business and counted his friends by the hundreds. Then the drink habit got him and the story is the old one of the down-hill run and ruin.

Such was the explanation offered last night by men who have known and regarded Dooly highly and who would do anything in their power could they offer him permanent relief.

Mr. Dooly was for a time, about eight years ago, a vice-president of a local bank. Before that he had a big insurance business, with headquarters in the Board of Trade building, and he and his family lived in one of Portland's most beautiful west side homes. At one time he is said to have been worth at least $200,000.

MRS. TAYLOR DIVORCED

DECREE GIVEN EX-PORTLAND BELLE IN DENVER COURT.

Former Clare Thompson Figures in Marital Difficulties Involving Cruelties.

DENVER, Colo., June 7.—(Special.)—A preliminary decree of divorce was granted Tuesday in district court to Mrs. Clare Thompson Taylor, prominent leader in Denver society, from David Paul Taylor, wealthy business man, on grounds of extreme and repeated acts of cruelty, after Mrs. Taylor had testified among other things that Taylor constantly had complained that his wife "did not dress fashionably enough" and "was not popular enough with other men."

"You are too dowdy and mid-Victorian," Mrs. Taylor said her husband repeatedly told her.

Taylor, who has spent most of his time in New York since 1916, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mansfield Taylor, Denver social leaders, who left last week to open their summer home in Vermont, while Mrs. Taylor is a former Portland (Or.) belle whose marriage in that city to the Denver man was a social event. The Taylors have four children, the eldest a girl of 13 and the youngest a boy of 3 years.

In her complaint Mrs. Taylor asked $300 a month alimony and $300 a month for the support of her children, but announcement was made that a financial settlement had been made out of court. Taylor did not contest the case.

In addition to the charges already mentioned, Mrs. Taylor testified that her husband frequently declared that she had no social standing except that which was lent by his own mother and on one occasion told her sister, who was visiting the Taylor home, that he "knew his wife never had associated with real gentlemen until she met him."
